COAST BATTERED BY RECORD STORM

75-Mile Gales Sweep Atlantic Seaboard from Cape Hatteras to Eastport, Me.

WIND CARRIES OFF STACK

Lifts Giant Steel Chimney in Flatbush Across Street and Lands It Upright in Cottage.

The Atlantic Coast, from Cape Hatteras to Eastport, Me., is in the grip this morning of one of the severest storms of snow and ice which has ever pounded against the shore. In the forty-eight hours ended last night, through which seventy-five-mile gales had whipped the sea into waves of mountainous height, hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of damage had been done.

In this city and its environs a northeast wind of forty-eight miles an hour at noon dropped to twenty-two miles at midnight and had veered into the northwest, while from the weather forecaster came the promise that after probable snow or rain today the skies would clear by Wednesday and the gales would subside.

But even as near by as Sandy Hook there was a sixty-eight-mile wind at midnight, and from up and down the coast came reports of disaster, which did not indicate that the storm was abating there.

The New England States, especially Connecticut, reported the worst storm they had suffered since 1907.

The telephone service in the Hudson Valley was crippled and almost put out of business. Up and down the shore towns were inundated, bulkheads and piers were swept into a sea already littered with the wreckage of unfortunate shipping which had not br could not heed Saturday's storm warnings. Strips of railroad tracks were ripped up and tossed hundreds of feet from the right of way, and towns in consequence were cut off from the outside world, frequently to be left also in darkness by the failure of their lighting plants.

In this city the havoc occasioned was slight compared to the damage done in towns some of which are only a few miles away. Yet in Flatbush, Brooklyn, the wind performed one of its most remarkable feats.

Wind Strained Great Stack.

All through the early hours of the morning it swept, singing through the steel guy wires which supported the two tall chimneys of the Flatbush Water Works at Foster Avenue, between Nostrand and New York Avenues. One of these chimneys, of steel, four feet in diameter, rose 110 feet into the air, and near by it rose another similar structure, only fifty feet in height, though its brick base of fifty feet brought its top only slightly lower than the bigger stack.

It was 10 o'clock when a gust of unusual violence swept over the plant. The straining guys sang like piano wires, scraped by a careless hand and then one of them, attached to the taller stack, snapped with a report like that of a rifle cartridge. Instantly another gave way, and then another, till finally the tall chimney staggered and then toppled over, crashing heavily to the ground and smashing against its companion chimney as it fell.

The blow shook the smaller stack. It was forced to one side, and one of its guy wires gave way. Then came a second gust, as strong as the first; the twanging wires snapped like threads; the stack shivered and shook on its brick foundation and then it was lifted bodily into the air and carried sailing away, still upright, a huge cylinder of steel floating lightly along fifty feet up in the air.

Lands on Cottage Roof.

It crossed the street which runs in front of the power house and still it did not seem to be falling. It floated a dozen more feet and then the roaring blast of wind which had carried it died slowly away. As it diminished the big stack settled groundward. As it ended the stack fell with a crash, squarely onto the roof of the small frame cottage which had once been James Duffy's when he was chief engineer of the works. Now it is occupied by his widow, her two daughters, and a small son, John.

Like a plummet, the stack thundered down through the house, tearing away the roof and the ceiling and floor of Mrs. Duffy's bedroom. It tore through the parlor ceiling, too, but now it was falling slowly, and as it struck the parlor floor with a crash which rocked the house it came to rest there, its top rising twenty-five feet above the shattered roof of the cottage.

Mrs. Duffy had been in this same parlor feeding a canary, which swung in a cage beside the window, when she heard the first crash. Terrified, she rushed for the front door, and had just stepped out of the parlor when the stack descended into it. She was showered with plaster and lathing, but was unhurt. Her daughters were away, but 6-year-old John was in the kitchen, and he, too, was plaster covered but uninjured.

Men from the works pasted tar paper over the hole in the roof so that the Duffys could occupy their home last night, and today they will try to raise

ANNULS MARRIAGE TO A CONSUMPTIVE

Court Sets Mrs. Sobol Free—Says Tuberculosis is Infectious and Often Hereditary.

In an opinion filed yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Blanchard tuberculosis is described as infectious, and the statement is made that the children of tubercular parents are very prone to succumb to the disease. The opinion accompanied the granting of an application by Mrs. Sarah Sobol to have her marriage to Joseph Sobol annulled because Sobol was a victim of the disease when he married her and concealed the fact.

She said in her application that she ceased to live with him when she discovered that he was tubercular. Sobol's physician testified that he was suffering from an incurable form of the disease.

Justice Blanchard said he could not find any similar case in this State that directly determined the question whether a tubercular marriage is subject to annulment on that ground alone, but he found cases where marriages have been annulled because one of the contracting parties had misrepresented his physical or mental condition. Then he said:

"It is for the court, in the exercise of sound discretion and with regard to public policy because of the peculiar nature of the contract, to determine whether or not the misrepresentation of fact and the probable consequences to be expected are of sufficient importance to cause the court to exercise its power to dissolve the contract in the interests of the parties and of the public at large."

Justice Blanchard said it seemed to him that it would be a perversion of justice to refuse to release a party from a matrimonial contract that might result in evil to the offspring.

"I do not think," he said, "it should be the policy of the courts to sustain the obligation of a union which would entail the burdens and dangers that would follow under the circumstances. This includes the danger of transmission and heredity that even science cannot fathom or certainly define."

MORGAN WINS BEACH CASE.

Oyster Bay Loses Long Fight by Court of Appeals Decision.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Dec. 7.—After defending title to East Beach, under an ancient patent, in the courts for eleven years, the town of Oyster Bay has lost in the Court of Appeals to J. P. Morgan, who, by a decision made public today, receives absolute title to the property.

The beach is one of the finest on the Long Island Sound shore. It extends from Peacock Point for a mile along the Sound. It adjoins Mr Morgan's country estate on East Island. The Morgan estate is one of the show places on the north shore. It consists of sixty-five acres.

The property was purchased by Mr. Morgan seven years ago from Leonard Jacobs. The town of Oyster Bay claimed title to the property when Mr. Jacobs had it and obtained a decision in its favor from the Supreme Court. On an appeal the town was overruled. Soon after Mr. Morgan acquired the property the town renewed its legal contest for title.

MRS. ROCKEFELLER BETTER.

Statement from Pocantico Hills Denies Alarming Reports.

A report was received here last night from Cleveland, O., that Mrs. John D. Rockefeller was critically ill at her home in Pocantico Hills, Westchester County. It was said that friends of Mrs. Rockefeller who live in Cleveland had had alarming news about her condition and that, according to reports which they had received, there were four trained nurses at her bedside.

Inquiries last night at the Pocantico Hills estate brought forth the reply that there was no foundation for the reports from Ohio.

"Mrs. Rockefeller's condition is far from alarming. She is much better than she has been in some time," was the statement given out at her home.

Mrs. Rockefeller's last serious illness was in October, 1913, when it prevented her from leaving her Forest Hill home in Cleveland. The nature of her ailment at that time was not disclosed. She returned to Pocantico Hills late in 1913.

SAYS WILSON YIELDED.

Evacuated Vera Cruz at Carranza's Order, Senator W. A. Smith Asserts.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Dec. 7.—Speaking at a reception to Gov.-elect Roland H. Spaulding tonight, Senator William A. Smith of Michigan declared that when the American troops evacuated Vera Cruz they did so because Gen. Carranza had given President Wilson twenty-four hours to get out.

He characterized the removal of the American forces as "a weak yielding to the demands of Carranza." He added that the United States forces left with conditions much worse than when they first occupied the Mexican port.

PORTLAND DEMOCRATIC.

William M. Ingraham Elected Mayor by a Small Plurality.

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 7.—William M. Ingraham, Democrat, was elected Mayor of Portland today over Frank M. Low, Republican, by a vote of 5,554 to 5,318.

The Democrats elected five of the nine Aldermen and thirteen of the twenty-seven Councilemn, making a tie vote on a joint ballot, with the Mayor having the casting vote.

Rockhill's Condition Critical.

HONOLULU, Dec. 7.—William M. Rockhill, former Ambassador to Russia, is critically ill, it was reported here today. He was stricken on the liner Chiyo Maru, en route to China, and was removed to a hospital here on Friday.

FRANK'S FINAL PLEA FAILS IN HIGH COURT

Nation's Supreme Tribunal Denies His Appeal for a Writ of Error.

GOVERNOR HIS ONLY HOPE

Lawyers Will Seek a Respite Until Prison Board Can Review Case for Georgia Executive.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The United States Supreme Court denied today, without opinion, the writ of error asked by counsel for Leo M. Frank, who was convicted in a Georgia court of the murder of Mary Phagan, a factory girl, in Atlanta, in 1913. In the opinion of lawyers, the action of the Supreme Court ends all hope of a new trial for Frank. There remains the chance of pardon or commutation of sentence by the Governor of Georgia. Unless there is some reprieve from that quarter, it is regarded as certain that the sentence of death will be carried out.

The court's denial of the writ today involved only the simplest ceremony. In granting or denying petitions of the kind presented by Frank's counsel, no reason for the court's action is ever given, and there is nothing to indicate whether the court is divided or not. Today's procedure was no exception to this rule. The case's number was read out along with a list of others, with the bare statement of what the petition asked. The court's decision was given in the one word "Denied."

While counsel for Frank last Monday asked the court's leave to file a petition for a writ or error, the brief that was filed set forth the merits of the plea for the writ of error itself, and what the court denied today was the writ and not merely the request for leave to present it. Henry Alexander of Atlanta of Frank's counsel then conferred by telephone with Louis Marshall of New York, also of counsel, announcing afterward that no further steps would be taken here at present.

Before the petition for a writ was carried to the full bench of the Supreme Court, it had been taken to Associate Justice Lamar and Associate Justice Holmes, in chambers. Both denied it, but in doing so, Justice Homes said that he gravely doubted whether the prisoner had received due process of law from the trial court that convicted him. It is believed here that this statement by a Supreme Court Justice will greatly strengthen the hands of counsel for Frank in seeking executive clemency.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 7.—Leo M. Frank received the news that the United States Supreme Court had refused permission for his attorneys to file a petition for a writ of error on the decision of the Georgia Supreme Court with no show of emotion but with the coolness that has characterized him ever since he has been in jail.

He was toying with a pencil and talking with friends when a reporter told him of the news. He was asked if he had heard of the decision of the court. He leaned forward eagerly.

"No," he said, "I haven't heard. What is it?"

He was told that the Supreme Court had denied the request of his attorneys to present a motion for a writ of error on the decision of the Georgia Supreme Court. The eagerness in Frank's eye gave way to astonishment.

"Is there any statement you wish to make?" he was asked. Frank smiled.

"No," he said. "Not now. Until I know the wording of the decision there is nothing that I can say. There is little left for me to say now. I had thought the Supreme Court would give me a chance."

Frank will be taken before Judge Hill tomorrow or Wednesday, and for the third time he will be sentenced to death. The decision of the United States Supreme Court leaves no further hope for Frank except the State Prison Commission and Gov. John M. Slaton.

As soon as the date for Frank's execution is fixed, his attorneys will apply to Gov. Slaton for a respite until the case can be brought before the Prison Commission. The commission has authority to look into the merits of the appeal for clemency and make a recommendation to the Governor. This recommendation the Governor can concur in or not, as he sees fit. The final word is his; he may either commute Frank's sentence or he may refuse to interfere with the sentence pronounced by Judge Ben Hill.

It is regarded as likely that Gov. Slaton will grant a respite, so that Frank's attorneys can make their representations to the Prison Commission. In the event that the commission refuses to recommend executive clemency Frank's attorneys and friends will undoubtedly go before Gov. Slaton in a final plea for the life of the condemned man.

Gov. Slaton reiterated today an interview which he gave to New York newspaper men when he was in that city recently.

"I did not know the case would ever reach me," he said, "and am familiar with it only in a general way. Without knowing, I presume that the next step of Frank's defense will be to ask me to grant a respite until the State Prison Commission can review the case and make its recommendations.

"Then I expect to review all the evidence and examine all the arguments, and not until I have done that will I form an opinion. I shall endeavor to insure justice as I see it upon a thorough investigation, as I should do in every case that comes before me, whoever the individual may be who is involved."

The Governor receives great numbers of letters in regard to Frank's case. Men and women from one end of the nation to the other are writing to him. Some explain their theories of the Phagan tragedy, many stoutly defend Frank, while others seek to prove his guilt by many methods of logic. Large numbers of these letters come from New York.

Henry Peeples and Herbert Haas, of counsel for Frank, refused today to comment on the decision, saying they would have no statement to make until they had heard from Mr. Alexander, who is in Washington. They said that the next step in the effort to get their case into the courts again would probably be determined at a conference to be held as soon as they had received definite information from Mr. Alexander.

AN AIRMAN'S ARROW KILLS GEN. VON MEYER

German Commander Picked Off While He Is Entering His Motor Car.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Dec. 7 (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—The Bavarian press reports that Major Gen. von Meyer, while entering his motor car, was killed by an arrow which was shot by a hostile aviator.

The French call these arrows "Les fleches." They are six inches long, grooved to insure straight downward flight, about an ounce in weight and are carried in a box which launches 1,000 at a time. Actual service has proved that from 2,000 to 3,000 feet altitude the arrows hit with a driving force of 100 pounds and will go clean through a rider and his horse. All French airmen are equipped with them whenever there is a chance for their effectiveness.

Major Gen. von Meyer was in command of the Sixth German Army, principally composed of Bavarians, which is operating south from Lorraine through the Verdun-Toul barrier line. It was stated a few days ago that Crown Prince Rupprecht had been requested to go to Brussels to aid in reorganizing the German civil administration of Belgium and had left Gen. von Meyer in command of the Bavarians.

Field Marshal Baron von der Goltz, who had been ordered to go to Turkey on Nov. 30 to direct the German-drilled army there, was, up to that time, Governor of Belgium.

GERMAN FLEET FLEES FROM SOUTH AMERICA

Hear British Squadron is About to be Joined by Japanese From Pacific.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 7.—Authentic information has been received here to the effect that the German fleet, finding itself outnumbered, has left these waters for South Africa. The report said the Germans were outnumbered by the British and that Japanese warships were coming around from the Pacific.

The Germans say that the British brought great pressure to bear on Japan and that the Mikado's Government reluctantly yielded and sent a squadron to the South Atlantic.

Dead Up to Nov. 10 Estimated at 100,000, and the Wounded on Nov. 19 at 400,000.

PARIS, Nov. 26, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The French War Office does not issue lists of losses in the war. A correspondent, by inquiry in various quarters, estimates that the French loss in dead up to Nov. 10 was under 100,000 men. The number of wounded and sick soldiers who were being cared for in French hospitals on Nov. 19 appeared to have been about 400,000. The Swiss Government's bureau for the exchange of prisoners of war has the names of 90,000 French prisoners in Germany.

Taking these figures together, the total losses of the French Army would be about 590,000 men.

The French military authorities, through their agents and spies, are well informed as to the situation of the German Army. The French estimate the number of German killed in battle on this frontier as considerably more than 100,000, because the German tactics have been more continually on the offensive, with correspondingly heavier losses than the defensive.

The French military administration does not share the popular view that the German losses have been enormously in excess of those of the French. Neither is any credence given to the reports of bad provisioning of the German Army and of soldiers famished and driven by overwork to exhaustion.

French commanders have no illusions on those subjects. They find German prisoners defiant and confident, and there is no indication of starvation except under circumstances where they have been cut off from the main bodies of German troops.

ALLIES ARRANGING BALKAN COMBINATION

Ministers of Great Britain, France and Russia Confer with the Premier of Greece.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Athens, telegraphing Friday, says:

"A collective visit was paid yesterday by the British, Russian, and French Ministers to M. Venizelos. No authentic information is available as to the object of the visit. The newspapers today suggest that the visit referred to Greece aiding Servia. It, however, had some reference to endeavors to arrange the differences dividing the Balkans."

It is believed that a basis has been arrived at for a Serbo-Bulgarian rapprochement, the most difficult to arrange, for between Bulgaria and Greece no great difficulties exist, the former having for the present tacitly abandoned its known views on Greek possessions. Their diplomatic relations are now friendly, thanks to the tact and moderation displayed by the Bulgarian Minister.

WILSON AGAINST DEFENSE INQUIRY

Says Gardner Method Might Be Misconstrued by Foreign Nations.

SUBJECT BEFORE CONGRESS

Senator Chamberlain Urges a Council of National Defense—An Anti-Republican Resolution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—At the very outset of the Congressional session it was made apparent that the recent discussion of the condition of the national defenses and the ability of the United States to engage in war would be one of the main topics of discussion in the Senate and the House for the three months of the session. In the Senate two resolutions and a bill dealing with the matter were presented, and it was noted that two of these three measures came from Democrats who are firm friends of the Wilson Administration. In the House a Republican Representative introduced two bills appropriating money to provide more adequate means of defense.

Cold water was dashed on the defense agitation by President Wilson today. He came out flatly, in a conversation with Representative Gardner, against the latter's proposal that there should be an investigation by a committee of Congress into the whole question of national military preparedness.

President Issues Statement.

After Mr. Gardner left the White House, the President authorized the following formal statement:

"The President told Representative Gardner that he was opposed to the method of inquiry proposed by Mr. Gardner, because he thought it was an unwise way of handling a question which might create very unfavorable international impressions. He stated to Mr. Gardner that he was entirely in favor of the fullest inquiry by the committees of Congress, and that there were no facts in the possession of the Executive Departments which were not at the disposal of these committees."

The statement discloses the attitude that the President and his supporters in Congress will adopt toward the determined effort to have a special investigation to determine whether the United States is in a state of military preparedness. Mr. Gardner, Senator Lodge, and those who stand with them, including the Army League, the Navy League, and other unofficial bodies devoted to creating interest in military affairs, think the time has arrived when the attention of the country should be drawn sharply to the condition of the army and the navy, the coast defenses, and to the question whether the military establishments have made preparations for supplying an enormous land force and a great fleet with the material necessary to wage a war. Their proposal contemplates a public inquiry of a comprehensive character. The President, on the other hand, holds that at this time the subject should not be agitated in any unusual way, and he favors letting the regular committees of Congress conduct such inquiries as they may desire in the usual way.

What President Wilson said today to Mr. Gardner indicated a fear on his part that if the matter of military preparedness—or, rather, the matter of military unpreparedness—were made a topic of earnest discussion while the war in Europe was in progress, with a view to making great increases in the strength of the land and naval forces of the nation, the attitude of the United States might be misconstrued in foreign countries, where the impression was likely to be given that this Government was preparing for war. Just what the President had in mind was not explained. What he said did not affect Mr. Gardner's position, however. He said on leaving the White House that he would continue to press his resolution calling for an inquiry.

In the course of their interview Mr. Gardner read to the President two questions. "There are two ways of defeating my resolution," he said. "It can be defeated on a square yea and nay vote, or it can be pigeonholed in the Committee on Rules. Which course do you advise? Will you authorize army and navy officers to testify before the Rules Committee on my invitation, either with or without restrictive instructions?"

What answers the President gave neither Mr. Gardner nor the White House would say.

The first of Mr. Gardner's questions will probably be answered tomorrow by Representative Henry, Chairman of the House Committee on Rules. Mr. Gardner recently asked the Rules Committee to fix a date for hearing reasons why the committee should report a rule for the consideration of the Gardner resolution by the House. Representative Henry said today that he would have a consultation tomorrow with the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy in regard to what Mr. Gardner sought to accomplish. It goes without saying that, with President Wilson opposed to the special inquiry, his two Cabinet officers will discourage any suggestion that the resolution be considered. This disposition appears to be that of Mr. Henry himself. While he would not say today what course was likely to be taken by the Committee on Rules, Mr. Henry seems to have made up his mind that the resolution should be pigeonholed.

Measures Offered in the Senate.

A bill introduced in the Senate today by Senator Chamberlain provides for creating a Council of National Defense. This body would determine what measures were necessary to put the nation in a state of military preparation. Mr. Chamberlain's bill acquires considerable significance, from the fact that he is a leading Democratic member of the Senate, a supporter of President Wilson's policies, and Chairman of the important Committee on Military Affairs.

A resolution presented by Senator

ALLIES BEGIN A FORWARD MOVEMENT; BIG GUNS FIRING ALONG WHOLE FRONT

Official Reports of War Operations.

GERMANY.

BERLIN.—No special reports have been received from the western theatre of the war nor from the region to the east of the plain of the Mazuran Lakes.

In Northern Poland we gained important successes in prolonged fighting around Lodz by defeating strong Russian forces stationed to the northwest and to the southwest of this city.

Lodz is in our possession. Details of the battle giving us Lodz cannot yet be made public, because of the extended field over which the engagement was fought. The Russian losses were very large. An attempt by the Russians to come to the assistance of their threatened armies in the north, from Northern Poland, was foiled by the activity of the Austro-Hungarian and German troops in the district southwest of Piotrkow.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA.—The fighting in the Russian war theatre is not yet decisive. The Austro-Hungarian and German troops in the district southwest of Piotrkow (Poland) attacked the Russian troops advancing northward across Nowo Radomsk and forced them to retreat.

In West Galicia important battles are proceeding, but no result has been reached. The Austro-German troops captured 1,500 Russians in that territory on Sunday.

In the Carpathians the battles continue, and from some points the enemy has withdrawn strong forces behind the mountains.

FRANCE.

PARIS.—(Night Report)—In Belgium the Germans have bombarded Oost Dunkerke, situated four kilometers (about two and half miles) to the west of Nieuport.

Between Bethune and Lens we have taken possession of the village of Vermelles and the position of the Rutoire, to the east of which we are along the railway line.

Our troops have advanced perceptibly in the region of Rouvroy, Parvillers and Le Quesnoy en Santerre, (Department of Somme.)

There is nothing else to report.

(Day Report)—In the region of the Yser we continue to attack the few intrenchments still held by the enemy on the left bank of the canal.

In the region of Armentières and of Arras, as well as in the Oise territory, in the Aisne region and in the Argonne, there is nothing to report, except to refer in general terms to the superiority of our offensive.

In Champagne our heavy artillery, on several different occasions, has shown marked superiority over that of the enemy.

There is nothing new on the eastern front of our line, where the positions of preceding days have been maintained.

TURKEY.

CONSTANTINOPLE.—Near Adjara we have gained new successes over the Russians, capturing cannon and ammunition.

The Russian attacks east of Lake Van (Kurdistan) have been unsuccessful. Our troops advancing from Revanduz have occupied Soujbulak, an important Russian point of support in the province of Azerbaijan.

270,000 RUSSIANS ATTACK CRACOW

NEW BATTLE ON IN POLAND

Russians Seek to Hold Line There While Strategic Plan Is Completed North and South.

LONDON, Tuesday, Dec. 8.—A Russian force numbering 270,000, under command of the Bulgarian Gen. Radko Dimitrieff, is reported to have arrived before Cracow and to have begun a bombardment of the suburbs to the southeast of the city, according to a Daily Mail dispatch from The Hague.

The opposing Austrian forces have withdrawn into the Bartfeld Pass, in the Carpathians.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 7, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—The fighting now raging in Poland is an entirely new battle. To all appearances the Germans have moved up several army corps with the fixed determination to smash the Russian defense on the line which the Russians have decided to hold in Poland pending completion of the strategic scheme over the whole of the front.

While the situation around Lodz is not yet clear, it appears that both sides are establishing themselves in trenches, which is not difficult as the frost has broken and rainy weather set in.

Receiving reinforcements from the French front, where the first line troops have been replaced largely by new formations, the Germans are now making strenuous efforts to drive in both wings of the Russian force. Victory has thus again been postponed in this section of the Russian front. The strategic needs of the Russian scheme will be fully satisfied if the Russians succeed in holding the appointed line.

The German attacks have been pressed, especially on the line to Glowno-Lowicz, against the Russian right and the roads leading toward Lodz and Piotrkow. Against the Russian left Emperor William himself, with his sons, is present in person and diligently busy visiting the various points on the Russian front.

Certain German divisions, including the famous Prussian Guards division, in desperate efforts to break through the Russians when almost surrounded suffered such appalling losses that they have entirely disappeared from the German fighting front. If escape from annihilation be victory, then the Germans have scored one in Poland.

On the other sections of the front, namely the East Prussian wing and the Cracow wing, the whole line of Russians is pushing forward continuously.

In East Prussia the most important feature is the siege of the fortress of Lotzen, which the Russians left untaken on their earlier dash into East Prussia, thereby enabling the Germans later to turn the tables on the invaders.

Nothing, however, has been heard officially for several days from the Russian armies fronting Cracow. The business, therefore, of the Polish front is merely to hold their line, a task pre-

AERIAL DREADNOUGHTS FOR INVADING BRITAIN

Seven New Zeppelins Ready—Carry Powerful Bombs and Defy Aeroplanes.

GENEVA, Nov. 20, (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Germany is slowly but steadily preparing to make her threatened aerial attack on London and on the eastern coast of England, even without the aid of the German Navy. This, at least, is the judgment of observers of the continued activity at the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen.

At this factory, on Lake Constance, more than 1,000 workmen, since the beginning of the war, have been employed in the construction of dirigible balloons, instead of the normal working force of 400 men. In place of the usual working period of eight hours a day, the men, who are all experts, have been divided into day and night shifts of twelve hours each, so that more than 500 are always engaged. All the finished materials and fittings, as well as sections of the airship envelopes, arrive from other parts of Germany ready made, and the workmen at Friedrichshafen have only to put them together. This makes it possible to build a Zeppelin in three weeks.

The latest and strongest Zeppelin ever built sailed to the north on Nov. 5, directly from the Friedrichshafen works, without any previous trial trips. It is considerably longer than its predecessors, and its motive power consists of three motors of 800-horsepower. It carries a crew of thirty officers and men. In a special basket this Zeppelin carried fifty torpedo bombs, each said to be capable of as much damage as the shells of the famous sixteen-inch guns. One of these bombs, during a trial near Friedrichshafen, penetrated the earth five yards. All the Zeppelins built since the beginning of the war have been similarly armed. "Dreadnought" Zeppelins were launched on Aug. 15, Sept. 3 and 24, Oct. 15, and Nov. 5, and two others of the same type at the beginning of August, making a total of seven.

These formidable aerial vessels are said to be able to resist successfully any aeroplane attack. They can sail with a weight of two or three tons; they have from seventeen to eighteen independent gas compartments, and water planes, that will allow them to land on water, if necessary, and continue their flight later. At Friedrichshafen they are called "marine airships," and in small letters on their hulls are painted the significant words "Meant for London."

Officially speaking, in Germany there have been built up to the present time thirty-one Zeppelins, but only the most recent dozen count with the military authorities. The older ships are employed in dropping casual bombs on towns, but otherwise doing the work of captive balloons, their places as scouts having been taken by aeroplanes. The new airships are being kept in reserve, it is asserted, for the raid on England, and especially London.

The German Staff and Count Zeppelin are understood to hold the opinion that from eighteen to twenty Zeppelins of the latest type are necessary for a successful attack on London, and this number is expected to be ready early next year.

All the latest airships carry several machine guns on special platforms and one large gun each.

SAY GERMANS LOST 100,000.

Result of a Month's Operations Around Lodz—Rename a City.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Petrograd says:

"The Bourse Gazette estimates the German losses in the month's operations in the Lodz region at 100,000 men or roughly, one-fifth of their strength.

"The Germans have renamed Czenstockov (Czenstochowa?) Kaiserberg."

FLEET BOMBARDS COAST

ALSO FALL BACK NEAR NOYON

British Lines Are Reinforced and All Danger to Channel Ports Is Thought Past.

LONDON, Tuesday, Dec. 8.—The allied French, Belgian, and British forces have begun an offensive movement in the west, while the German forces in the east are struggling with the Russians.

In Belgium the Allies are now virtually in possession of the left bank of the Yser Canal, and a Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam says heavy firing was heard along the coast yesterday, indicating that the warships of the Allies were again bombarding the German positions.

The Sluis correspondent of the Amsterdam Handelsblad says that the Germans delivered violent attacks yesterday on the trenches recently captured by the Allies, but were repulsed. He adds that the Allies have made marked progress in the neighborhood of Langemarck, Sonnebeke, and Bixschoote. The Germans are at a disadvantage because they have been obliged to substitute light guns for heavy ones, the floods making the use of the latter impracticable.

In Northern France, particularly in the neighborhood of La Bassée, where the Germans hold a very strong position, the Allies are beginning with a heavy cannonade to feel their way eastward.

The same process is being followed along the whole front, and the French official bulletin yesterday spoke of "the superiority of our offensive" and the "marked advantage" of the French artillery over that of the Germans.

The advance in the northwest, little as it is, has removed for the present at least, according to many, the German menace to the coast ports.

They believe that so long as the Germans are compelled to keep up the strength of their army in the east they will be unable to assume the offensive in the west.

There is a vague report, however, that the Germans have kept the pick of their western army in the Aisne Valley, whence at an opportune moment they can hurl it against the French lines and make another effort to get through to Paris.

BELGIANS BEAT OFF GERMAN BOAT ATTACK

Desperate Struggle Along the Ysar Canal—Searchlights Aid in the Assault and Defense.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUNKIRK, Dec. 7, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—In the dark hours of this morning the Germans hazarded another desperate attack by armored motor boats on the Belgian lines southeast of Ramscapelle, near Pervyse. Three powerful motor boats, fitted with searchlights, approached within 200 meters of the Belgian outposts. They towed a number of rafts, each holding fifty or sixty men. Machine guns were also carried on the boats and rafts.

The first warning was given to the Belgians by the throb of the motors. The alarm was at once given, and the Belgians opened fire in the direction indicated by the noise of the engines. At once the German searchlights flashed out on the Belgians and a murderous fire began from the machine guns on the rafts.

At first the Germans had the upper hand. The blinding glare of their searchlights dazzled the Belgians, most of whose shots fell wide. The bullets that struck the motor boats did little harm against their armored sides.

The Germans drew nearer, and were preparing to land and rush the Belgians when the latter managed to bring into play one of their own searchlights, which was hastily brought up from its position a quarter of a mile behind the lines. The German motor boats were then more easily located, and the Belgian gunners were able to direct their fire with some accuracy.

For some time this battle of searchlights raged, and as the great white beams fell on the battling forces a fantastic picture was presented. Gradually the Germans were driven back. Those who were still on rafts were unable to land, and, huddled together, they made an effective target for the Belgian guns.

One of the German searchlights was put out by a lucky shot, and in the confusion which followed the men on the raft attached to the boat carrying this light were pitched into the water. They swam toward the Belgians and gave themselves up as prisoners.

The other Germans, however, continued to work their machine guns, and the Belgians were unable to put them out of action.

One of the motor boats then drew off and a landing was attempted a few hundred yards to the right of where the fighting was in progress. Knee deep in water the Germans took cover behind their boat. The Belgians also advanced in the water and a fierce struggle took place for the possession of the boat. With a great effort the Germans succeeded in backing the craft out of danger and then drew off.

The third and last motor boat continued in action, and it might have gone hard with the handful of Belgians who were defending the line had not a French 75-millimeter gun got the range. When the first shell crashed into the water all three motor boats at once swung around and quickly disappeared. Two of them were badly damaged and appeared to be in a sinking condition. The third was damaged slightly.

The losses on each side are believed to have been about the same, about forty killed and thirty wounded.

FRENCH ADVANCE ON ROULERS.

Make Marked Progress South of Dixmude, the Germans Retiring.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NORTHERN FRANCE, Dec. 6, (Dispatch to The London Daily Mail.)—The French, fighting with great dash and choosing their line of attack cleverly, have made notable progress from a point south of Dixmude.

Protected by the floods on their left, they have pushed forward due east along the railway from Dixmude to Thielt and made good the triangle, Dixmude, Ypres, Roulers. This last town is now open to them and they have even made progress with patrols in the direction of Thielt.

The German retreat in this direction has been forced by floods and partly by previous heavy reverses near Zonnebeke.

At the same time the strong position of the British northeast of Armentières and the threatened advance along the Lys, where, however, the German sappers are very busy, made a redressing of the German line inevitable, but the prime cause of success lies in the French strategy and through the mouths of their incomparable field artillery. Few genuine successes of the war have been won with less bloodshed on the part of the Allies.

There is no question and there has been no question since the battle of the Marne that a strategist of the highest quality has been found in Gen. Foch. It says much for the fine modesty of the French that so little has been known publicly of a man who has proved such exceptional skill and promptitude in carrying out the general scheme of the Commander in Chief.

BRITISH LINES REINFORCED.

More Artillery Brought Up to Check Foe—Their Front Shortened.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

A TOWN IN BELGIUM, Dec. 6, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—The lull is at an end and serious fighting is taking place at many parts of the battle line.

There have been many strategic changes on the part of the Allies and the British, who all along have defended a front out of all proportion to their numbers and have shortened their lines. The British troops are thus enabled to take longer rests between the hours of actual duty in the trenches.

The situation is entirely satisfactory. Reinforcements have come to position, the British artillery has been strengthened, and the lines are so prepared that a German advance verges on the impossible.

As far as can be gathered the Germans are not so favorably situated. Undoubtedly they will have strengthened their positions during the lull and undoubtedly their men have had something in the nature of a rest, but there is good evidence for the belief that the magnificent organization of the Germans, which enabled them to make that wonderful dash across Belgium into France at the heels of the retreating Allies, has badly cracked under the four months' strain.

For instance, I have before me various pieces of old iron, bolts, and screws which had been used in default of shrapnel balls in shells, dated 1914.

There is evidence for the statement that many German prisoners had been reduced to eating grass through the absence of food supplies.

In addition the Germans are undoubtedly suffering from a terrible epidemic of typhoid, which is especially severe in the northern portion of their lines.

SAYS GERMANS CAN'T ADVANCE

Lieutenant of Joffre Quoted—Signs of Ammunition Running Short.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 7, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—Paul Erco of the Journal, one of the most trustworthy of French correspondents at the front, says in a message from Furnes today:

"It looks as if the Germans were out of ammunition. Yesterday we spotted several of their batteries along the Yser and as soon as the French and Belgian guns opened fire they withdrew in a hurry, declining combat.

"I asked one of Gen. Joffre's ablest Lieutenants if he thought the enemy meant to give up the Yser and Yperlee line. His reply was:

"'For obvious reasons I can't tell you what I think on that point, but I will say that even if the Germans resume the struggle on our left wing, they cannot break through. From the Lys to the sea they have a solid wall in front of them, which cannot be broken down and before which they will shatter themselves to pieces if they try it.'"

EXCITES PARIS AUDIENCE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—A remarkable incident occurred, says the Journal des Débats, at the opening matinée of the Comédie Française yesterday, when the old-fashioned Roman tragedy, "Horace," was presented.

Written in 1639, when France was fighting Germany, it contains numerous veiled allusions to the war and prophecies of successes afterward realized by Louis XIII One such is the Sabine heroine's appeal to Rome to spare her country and seek conquests further afield: "Hurl your battalions against the East, plant your flags on the borders of the Rhine!"

The Journal des Débats says:

"At these words a shiver of excitement passed over the whole dense audience, which rose, cheering frantically, and continued the applause for several minutes."

SAYS KAISER'S ORDER WRECKED WAR PLAN

Eager to Take Ypres, He Withdrew Guards from Arras When the Final Assault Was Near.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

A TOWN IN FRANCE, Dec. 7, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—It is always interesting to get the German view about what is going to happen. In the continuous battles for the trenches near Arras last week the French captured a Bavarian Lieutenant, who had been doing some hard thinking about the German position in Flanders. What he told his French captors throws considerable light on the German failure to reach the narrow seas and Calais.

He states that after the fall of Antwerp it was the German plan of campaign to cut off from the main French army the whole of the British forces, then moving into position in Flanders. For this purpose huge masses of new troops were brought to the western front from Germany, first to attack Dunkirk and subsequently to increase the pressure all along the line till the main attack should fall upon the point at which the British and French joined up at Arras, with such sudden and terrific force that the allied line would be irretrievably shattered and the armies would be driven into the shoulder of country of which Boulogne and Calais are the chief ports.

The main German concentration, he says, was before Arras, where in the middle of October the Prussian Guard Corps and Bavarian regiments were massed near Douai. Their stroke was to fall upon the Allies' line after attacks had been made successively upon various points, first La Bassée, then Dixmude and Nieuport, and later Armentières and Ypres. Finally an assault on Arras was to be led by the Prussian Guard Corps and the Bavarian regiments at the end of October.

While these operations were maturing the Kaiser arrived upon the scene and was present at the attacks upon Ypres, which thereby gained false importance in the whole scheme and wrecked the German plans. That is the Bavarian Lieutenant's story.

He states that the Twenty-seventh Corps, which made the first attacks upon Ypres, was almost entirely wiped out under the very eyes of the Kaiser, and that regiment after regiment was thrown in to make a victory for the War Lord. All were badly handled and were forced to retire.

The German Headquarters Staff thereupon decided to play the last and decisive stroke of the campaign, a blow at Arras. This, according to the Bavarian Lieutenant, was vetoed by the Kaiser, who ordered up the Prussian Guards Corps from Arras, where the ground had already been prepared by a German artillery bombardment for the supreme attack, with the idea of hurling his favorite regiment upon Ypres.

The Prussian Guard entrained from Douai with the Fifteenth Corps, thus weakening the German line before Arras to such an extent that the proposed attack could not be made. Meanwhile the Allies had shortened their line and strengthened their positions at Ypres, and in the seven days, which it took to organize the Prussian Guard attack, the vital part of the whole German plan was lost through the order of the Kaiser.

Ypres, which was as threatening in its way for the Germans as Arras for the Allies, was held with steadfastness and the holding of Ypres shattered the Kaiser's plans, which in themselves had defeated the plans of German Headquarters Staff.

Arras is still the head and front of the German plan of campaign. Men and guns have been concentrated at Douai and Carvin and for more than a week a terrific bombardment has been kept up on the French positions, together with infantry feints, which have been very puzzling.

Along the whole front we have been able to make little or no progress so overwhelming is the force opposed to us, but we have held every inch of ground between Arras and Armentières.

North of Armentières our position has eased very considerably, due in large measure to German withdrawals for concentration elsewhere.

VALUE OF ARMY LIQUOR BAN.

Few French Soldiers Suffer from Effects of Anesthetics.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—The medical correspondent of the Journal des Debats, writing from Vichy—where there is one of the largest military hospitals—gives striking proof of the value of the almost complete abstention from alcohol enforced on the soldiers. Of 1,500 cases operated on during the last three months, only 4 or 5 experienced difficulties of anaesthesia, which is usually 8 or 9 per cent., due, practically without exception, to overindulgence in alcohol, which reacts against anaesthetics.

Apropos of the alleged decadence of the French race, he says: The soldiers, anyhow, have not degenerated. Besides their excellent physique they show great recuperative powers. The Southerners seem to recover slower than the rest, while the Alpine chasseurs and artillerymen mend quickest, the former doubtless owing to harder training, but he is unable to explain why the artillery posesses any advantage over the rest of the service. He also notes the fact that all the wounded experience a bad first night after their arrival at the hospital, which he considers due to their being unaccustomed to the bed after sleeping in the open air.

HAVEN OF PEACE IN WAR.

It Is the "Swiss Protection Zone" in France Kept Sacred by Treaty.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—Although France has been at war for four months, says The Excelsior, there exist French districts which are neutral and peaceful. They are situated on the borders of Switzerland, and comprise the Haute Savoie towns of Saint Julien, Bonneville, and Thonon, the latter including the well-known fashionable resort Evian-les-Bains.

By virtue of the unabrogated Treaty of Vienna, dated 1815, they form, though part of France under French jurisdiction, "a Swiss protection zone" wherein France may maintain police, but not soldiers or fortifications.

So strictly is the old agreement observed that France has refrained from sending wounded to the Evian hotels, which are now empty, and would be exceedingly useful, owing to their nearness to the frontier where some of the most furious fighting of the war continues incessantly.

The Excelsior concludes: "Thus France respects her treaties, although this is signed by the name of the traitor Talleyrand."

VERDUN GUNLESS AMID WAR'S STORM

Old Fortress, Centre of the Eastern France Bulwark, Has Known No Conflict.

CRITICAL FIGHT NORTHWEST

There the French Forces Are Pounding German Lines Extending Through the Argonne Forest.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERDUN, Dec. 6, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—The more I see of the country the more am I struck with the influence of physical conditions in the present war. The hills above and below the Marne and the sub-Alpine region of which the Argonne and the heights of the Meuse are twin portions, slightly separated, have formed the most important barriers against the southward swarm of the German host.

You have only to see the hills about Soissons, the Craonne Plateau, the forest-clad slopes about Ste. Menehould and the wonderful girdle of mountains around Verdun, to realize that it must be exceedingly difficult to dislodge any force, well armed and supplied, from such positions.

We did not visit any part of the Argonne front, although it was only four or five miles away, and among the shell-shattered houses of Clermont firing was clearly audible. After seeing the ground, however, it is much easier to realize the nature of the struggle that has been going on for the last two months. The German lines have been pressed northward, very slowly but surely, and no the trench and mine warfare wages around the second, more northerly crossroads in the Bois de La Grurie.

There are, in fact, only three main roads east and west across the forest, and there is only one main road through its centre connecting these. It comes down from the Bois de La Grurie through La Chalade to Les Islettes, and so on to Triaucourt.

The first east and west way is the gap of Grand Pré, through which the Germans have useful railway, road, and river communications.

The second during the last month has been and still is the scene of continuous fighting. Running from Varennes on the east to Vienne-le-Château the German lines extend almost straight through the Suippe Valley to just above Rheims. Throughout this stretch of country it is close sapping and mining work between closely ranged trenches with small engagements between artillery and scouting parties.

In the difficult forest heights the French are attacking this critical line of communications, both from the Soudin road on the west and the Les Islettes road on the south.

The third crossway is as solidly French as the first is for the present German. It is the one by which, through Sts. Menehould and Clermont, we came to Verdun.

I am one of the first journalists to be permitted to penetrate into this fortress. It looks at first sight about as warlike as York or Chester. Its scarps and counterscarps, moat and crenellated towers are a curiosity, not a terror.

We came in after nightfall by the Porte St. Paul and no bluecoated guard arrested us. We crept by dark and narrow ways through the upper town past the Place du Government and the ancient cathedral to Gen. X.'s headquarters. Then, after reporting ourselves, we crossed the Meuse to our hotel beside the Town Hall.

Verdun is normally a place of only 22,000 inhabitants, and there are now probably not much more than half this number of civilians in it.

I will not conceal the fact that if we had depended upon the resources of the Hotel of the Three Moors we should have felt them to be meagre and uncomfortable. At the military club we had all we wanted for the inner man and a charmingly cordial welcome, also much talk about the war.

We quickly corrected our crude notions of military geography and defense organization. We learned that the real Verdun is not a certain quaint little town with gates and walls in the manner of Vauban and old houses, overhanging the Meuse, nor is it this, plus the old forts which held out for three weeks in 1870 and are now smoothed down into picturesque promenades. It is not even this, together with the circle of modern forts, marked upon the military maps, which have never been in action and whose guns have been used to better purposes elsewhere.

It is, in fact, a piece of country around this centre, protruding to the northeast from the general battle line a vast bastion, with a crescent face, seventy miles in length, and a solidly French hinterland for its support.

Here at the heart of this area we do not hear even the distant boom of guns. A bomb from an aeroplane, which killed a woman, is the only German shell that has disturbed the security of the town.

We had asked ourselves, "What came ye out for to see?" Now we know that we have come to see the real bulwark of Eastern France, the heights of the Meuse.

GERMANS LEAVING ALSACE.

8,000 at Cernay Imperiled by Advance of the French.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—The Liberté quotes from the Journal de Genève a statement that the German troops at Cernay, east of Thann, numbering 8,000, with several light and two heavy batteries, are seriously menaced by the recent French advance on the heights to the north.

Everywhere in Upper Alsace the Germans are expecting to retreat shortly The latest indication is the removal from Mülhausen of the French prisoners kept there since the French withdrawal consequent upon the defeat at Charleroi. Though the surrounding country is mined and fortified all the artillery and a majority of the troops have already withdrawn, a mere screen of Germans remaining.

MANY BRITISH OFFICERS FALL.

Total Loss in One Week 395, Including 106 Killed.

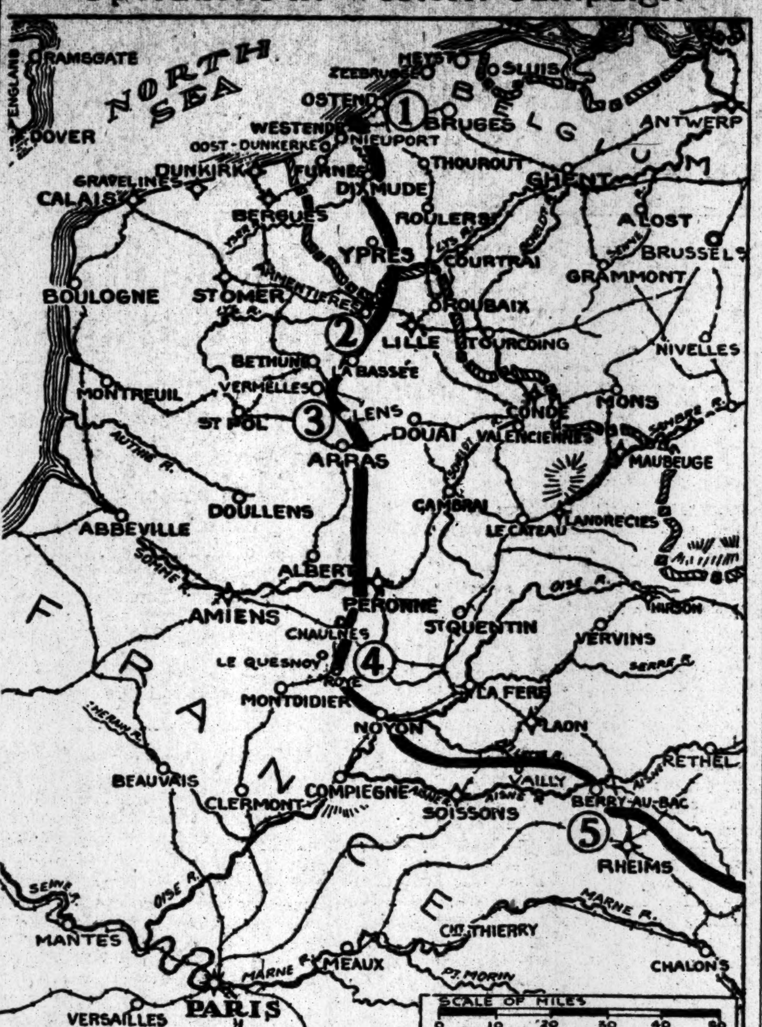
LONDON, Nov. 23, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—A list of British casualties for the week ending today, shows particularly heavy loss among officers. The total is 395, which comprises 106 killed, 238 wounded, and 51 missing.

Added to previous totals, this makes the British loss 887 officers killed, 1,777 wounded, 549 missing, or a total of 3,213.

In the week ending today eleven regiments at the front had ten or more officers reported as killed, wounded, or missing. These organizations are Grenadier Guards, 5 killed and 5 wounded; Royal Field Artillery, 3 killed, 13 wounded, and 1 missing; Royal Fusiliers, 3 killed, 4 wounded, and 3 missing; Royalists, 3 killed, 8 wounded, and 1 missing; Royal Engineers, 7 killed, 9 wounded, and 1 missing; Bedfordshires, 2 killed and 8 wounded; King's Royal Rifles, 4 killed, 5 wounded, and 3 missing; Staffordshires, 1 killed, 10 wounded, and 3 missing; West Surrey Regiment, 3 killed, 6 wounded, and 3 missing; Worcester Regiment, 3 killed, 7 wounded, and 1 missing, and West Riding Regiment, 1 killed, 8 wounded, and 1 missing.

The Indian contingent, in these seven days, had 11 officers killed, 31 wounded, and 10 were reported missing.

Operations in Western Campaign



Evidence accumulates that the Allies have begun an aggressive movement against the German lines at many points in Northern France and Belgium. The chief scenes of fighting yesterday were as follows:

1. The Allies attacked the few intrenchments which the Germans still hold on the west bank of the Yser Canal. Unofficial advices indicate that the warships have resumed the shelling of German positions along the coast. On the other hand, Oost Dunkerke, two and a half miles west of Nieuport, has been shelled by the Kaiser's artillerymen, presumably from across the canal near Nieuport.
2. The French official report indicates that some offensive movement has taken place near Armentières, though it may have been confined to an artillery attack.
3. The allied troops, according to Paris, have reached the railroad east of Vermelles.
4. A perceptible advance is reported by the French troops, in the region of Rouvroy, Parvillers, and Le Quesnoy-en-Santerre. These little places, very close together, are almost half way in a direct line between Noyon and Amiens.
5. The Allies' heavy artillery has evidently been active in the Champagne district, the French official bulletins referring pointedly to the proof of its "marked superiority," shown on several occasions.

DECORATED NINE GENERALS.

King George Honored Seven French Leaders Besides Joffre and Foch.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—During his visit to France King George conferred the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath on Gens. Joffre and Foch, and the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George on seven other French Generals.

GERMANY LACKS SALTPETER.

But Has a Satisfactory, Though Dearer, Substitute.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Dec. 7, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—Germany, while admitting that she cannot import Chilean saltpeter, professes to have found a chemical substitute which answers excellently for her ammunition purposes, although more expensive than natural saltpeter.

The Government has now forbidden the export of soda.

BOMBS SET OSTEND AFIRE.

Airmen and Not Warships Started the Flames.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUNKIRK, Dec. 7, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—I understand from excellent sources that the fire at Ostend was caused by the bombs of the British naval airmen and not by a bombardment of the warships.

The blaze started in the Boulevard van Iseghem and the flames were fanned by a high gale which was blowing.

The fire was extinguished with difficulty by the German garrison. The damage was not considerable.

The glare could be distinctly seen from the dunes near Nieuport.

GERMANS REPAIR THE GOEBEN.

Workmen Sent to Turkey to Mend the Damaged Cruiser.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 6, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—According to information from Bucharest the Goeben in her fight with the Russian Black Sea squadron received serious injuries, including the crippling of her second turret and the fighting tower, where the commands are issued. During the firing four or five Russian shells caused this extensive damage to the big Turkish ship. The Goeben is now under repair at Izmid, in the Sea of Marmora, workmen having been brought from Germany for the purpose.

The Turks are confident the Goeben will within a fortnight be ready to take an active part in the Black Sea operations.

IRON CROSSES FOR 710 JEWS

German Army Commissions Have Been Granted to 26.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Dec. 7, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—While previously soldiers of the Jewish faith have never attained any rank in the German Army, now promotion is given wholesale.

In the Prussian Army alone twelve Jews have just been promoted to be officers; in the Bavarian Army another twelve, and one each in the Saxon and Würtemberg Armies. Seven hundred and ten Jews have received the Iron Cross, which some have refused to wear because ti is the emblem of the Christian faith.

WALES TELLS EXPERIENCES.

Writes Long Letters to His Mother, Which Have to Pass the Censor.

LONDON, Nov. 27 (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The Prince of Wales in the course of his first week at the front sent two long letters to his mother relating his experiences and observations. Both letters were opened by the censor and officially passed in the same manner as those of any ordinary soldier.

It is expected that the Prince will remain abroad for several months, although he may have a brief leave of absence at Christmas so that he may spend the holidays with his parents.

SAYS IRISH ARE FOR ALLIES.

T. P. O'Connor Finds a Great Change of Opinion in This Country.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—In response to a request for a statement in regard to Irish opinion, especially in America, on the war, T. P. O'Connor, M. P., writes:

"The German campaign in the United States has been active and well subsidized; but I do not think it has made much way. All my information leads me to believe that the overwhelming mass of American opinion is on the side of the Allies.

"The opinion of the people of the Irish race in the United States might well have given cause for anxiety. These Irish people are in the main descendants of the uphappy peasants who were driven out of Ireland in the days of the Irish famine, and at an epoch much less wise and less humane than ours of today. These sons and daughters of Irish exiles drank in the story of suffering and of wrong at their mothers' knees. The results were very palpable to anybody who visited America some years ago. Any difficulty of England would then have been hailed as Ireland's opportunity, and the sympathy of these Irish people in America would have gone instinctively and unanimously to anybody who was England's foe.

"Now, I can assert positively and with full information that, though Irish opinion is not unanimous, it is overwhelmingly in favor of the Allies in the United States today.

"This war, with all its tragic horrors, has at least done this good—that among all the peoples that stand behind the Allies it has produced with a completeness and a rapidity the most sanguine could not have expected the submergence of racial, religious, political, and class feuds; it has substituted for these things a wonderful unity, and there is no unity I welcome with greater joy and satisfaction—for it has been the underlying purpose of all my political life—that union between Englishmen and Irishmen in this common resistance to the gospel of despotism, of militarism, and of servitude which is represented by Germany, her rulers, and her armies."

SHAW CALLS CRITICS LIARS.

Says They Falsely Describe His Pamphlet as Pro-German.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—G. Bernard Shaw, in a letter to The Dispatch, makes yet another reply to his critics:

"As to the general reception of my pamphlet," he says, "I wish that those who denounce it without having read it would make up their minds firmly as to whether I am a negligible person or not. If I am, the sensible course is to neglect me, not to fill columns with all sorts of fussings about me, from demands that I should be shot—apparently for high treason to Russia—to mere abuse.

"If, on the other hand, I am a writer of some importance, it is clearly a direct playing into the hands of the enemy to announce in all directions that my pamphlet is a justification of Germany and a declaration that she is in the right in this war. Several English journalists are claiming all my weight for the Germans in an insane determination to damage me at any cost, even that of circulating falsehoods and preventing people from recruiting, (many young men who regard me, rightly or wrongly, as an oracle, have thus been persuaded that I am against the war) and obscuring the vital necessity of averting a military triumph for the Prussian system."

Mr. Shaw concludes:

"Worse than the abusive people are the vainglorious people. They seem to believe that this war is going to be settled by Englishmen shrieking to the four corners of the earth that they are the flower of the human race and the Germans the dregs of creation. This war is going to be settled by blood and iron, and the blood on our side must be the blood of men deeply imbued with the popular British tradition of life and implacably resolved that the Prussian Junker tradition shall not prevail against it, either in England or anywhere in the world—even in Prussia itself, if they can help it. Not until we have convinced Prussia that the militarist game is not worth the candle will it be time to stop; for not until then shall we have reaped the harvest of our blood and tears."

BOMB KILLS TEN CIVILIANS.

German Airman Drops Missile in Crowd Gathered About Previous One

LONDON, Tuesday, Dec. 8.—A correspondent of the Central News in Northwestern France says:

"In attempting to destroy a railroad station a Taube aeroplane dropped two bombs on Hazebrouck.

"The first did no harm, but on returning the aeroplane dropped a bomb on a curious crowd, gathered about a hole made by the first missile, killing ten and wounding five civilians, including women and children."

ENGLAND SUBMITS PROOF OF SMUGGLING

Notifies United States of an Organized Move to Build Up Trade in Contraband.

FINDS FALSE MANIFESTS

Willing to Aid Legitimate American Trade If We Officially Inspect the Shipments.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Through the searching of ships the British Government has found evidence indicating an effort to build up an illicit traffic in contraband between America and Germany. British searchers for contraband have found false manifests and other irregularities.

On more than one ship, according to a high official of the Government, rubber has been found under false labels and usually manifested as gum. The matter has been placed before the American Government. This action was taken incidental to a discussion which has been progressing for an arrangement between the two Governments covering the treatment of American commerce by England's searchers for contraband and concerning the British prohibition against the exportation of certain articles from the empire. England desired to support its claims of the necessity of taking a firm attitude by showing what illicit things had already happened, thus justifying its course of action and its views on the nature of the agreement which should be made. The British official said:

"The evidence we have shows there are at work German sympathizers, and, I suppose, others, who seek large profits by smuggling through goods which our enemies need. I don't know how systematized this may be, but I have no doubt that those interested in traffic of this sort have put their heads together to decide what is the best scheme for shipments, routes, &c., to make their operations successful.

"We naturally are taking every precaution to keep the closest watch for contraband. If this strict scrutiny seems to legitimate shippers unduly to interfere with their operations, they must know it is only because of the illicit traffic of others of which we have ample evidence."

After a lengthy series of conferences between the Embassy and Foreign Office there went forward to Washington yesterday a series of proposals which will be—if Washington gives its approval—of great importance to American commerce, determining in a general way in what circumstances American shippers and traders' ships must operate, according to England's view of what the situation requires. England has set forth her views fully, and it is believed the proposals will be satisfactory to Washington. One feature is an examination of cargoes before ships leave American ports, probably by customs officials. If the American Government thus makes sure of the legitimacy of the manifest and cargo, the likelihood of interference through search by British naval vessels is reduced to a minimum, thus greatly facilitating American trade England has also decided to lift the prohibition on the exportation of certain articles from the empire, this at the behest of Washington on behalf of certain industries. Wool, however, will continue to be prohibited, as it has been decided that the military establishment needs all the available supply from the whole empire for the time being, at least.

Rubber, hides, jute, and certain metals and ores needed in the steel industry will be taken off the list. Americans, however, will be permitted to obtain these articles only on furnishing assurances through the State Department that they will not reach England's enemies, and there will be some system of permits for such shipments.

WON'T INSURE GERMAN COTTON

British Underwriters Refuse to Protect Such Shipments.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Dec. 8.—The London Times says:

"There is a strong feeling in the London market that the underwriters should have nothing to do with cotton shipments which it is proposed to make from the United States to Germany in neutral ships. Proposals have been made that they should give their agents in the United States authority to accept such insurance, but they have considered that any participation would in effect amount to trading with the enemy. It is understood that certain proposed shipments have fallen through owing to the lack of full insurance protection.

"The underwriters object to the business for the additional reasons that it might be difficult to limit shipments entirely to cotton and that the vessels would not leave Germany empty.

"Insurance on cotton from the United States to Scandinavia is being freely issued, without the clause excluding the risk of capture by the British Government or our Allies, but though it is argued that there is no legal disability, the line is drawn at insuring cotton shipments to Germany."

CONFISCATED OIL CARGO.

The Fact That It Was Landed in England Did Not Save It.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The Prize Court settled an interesting legal point today by ruling that the entire cargo of oil of the British tank steamer Roumanian, which sailed on Nov. 17 from Port Arthur, Texas, for Hull, was subject to seizure because it was German owned.

This decision upset the contention of the defense that 4,800 tons of oil, which at the time of seizure had been discharged at Purfleet, England, was immune from confiscation.

AGREE ON COTTON SHIPMENTS.

England Will Not Unnecessarily Delay Our Cargoes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. — Secretary Bryan announced today that an agreement had been reached between the United States and Great Britain which would minimize the delay of shipment of cotton from American ports to European countries, including belligerents. The British Government already has become a party to this arrangement, and the French Ambassador has given assurances that his Government will approve.

The British Consuls are expected to satisfy themselves as to the character of the cargo before a ship sails, but it is understood that they will be instructed to accept the assurance of reputable exporters as to the character of the cargo.

Mr. Bryan said he was satisfied that this method would afford a means of moving American cotton freely. He explained that already it was being put into practice, and a large steamer would be loaded with cotton at Charleston, S. C., shortly and be dispatched to a Continental European port with every prospect of making a speedy and uninterrupted voyage.

It was learned today that the British Government finally has secured undertakings by the neutral Governments that copper shall not be permitted to pass across their borders into belligerent countries. In consequence it was stated that there will probably be no further difficulty in shipment of American copper to Europe provided it is consigned to persons or firms by name in the neutral countries and not intended for the use of belligerent Governments.

THE GERMANS ADJURED TO BE CAREFUL OF FOOD

Proclamation by the Prussian Ministry of Commerce—To be Widely Circulated.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Dec. 8.—The Daily Mail says:

"Although unceasing assurances are sent to the outside world that Germany's food supply is not and cannot be imperilled by the war, the Prussian Ministry of Commerce and Trade has prepared a remarkable public proclamation adjuring the nation to practice Spartan economy in the preparation and use of edibles.

"Governors of provinces have been directed to display the proclamation in the most conspicuous manner possible, including posting it on billboards, in railway stations, waiting rooms, the various law courts, State insurance offices, soup kitchens, schools, workmen's quarters in factories and mills, and intelligence offices, 'in short, everywhere where there is large traffic of persons.'

"The proclamation, which has the caption 'Germany Is Standing Against a World of Enemies, Who Would Destroy Her,' reads:

"They will not succeed in defeating our glorious troops, but they wish to starve us out, like a besieged fortress. They will also fail in that, because we have enough breadstuffs in the country to nourish our population until the next harvest; but:

"One—Nothing must be wasted.

"Two—Breadstuffs must not be used as fodder.

"Three—Therefore be economical with bread, that the hopes of our foes be confounded.

"Four—Respect the daily bread. Then thou wilt have it always, may the war last ever so long.

"Five—Teach these maxims also to they children.

"Six—Do not despise even a single piece of bread because it is no longer fresh.

"Seven—Do not cut off a slice more than thou wishest to eat. Think always of our soldiers in the field, who, often in some far off exposed position, would rejoice to have the bread which thou wastest.

"Eighth—Eat war bread, (Kriegsbrod.) It is recognizable by the letter 'K.' It satisfies and nourishes as thoroughly as any other kind. If all eat it we do not need to be anxious as to whether we shall always have bread.

"Ninth—Whoever first peels potatoes before cooking them wastes much. Therefore cook potatoes with the jackets on. Thou savest thereby.

"Tenth—Leavings of potatoes, meat, vegetables, &c., which thou canst not use, throw not away; but collect them as food for cattle. Such leavings will gladly be called for by the farmers."

THE TARANTULA A WARSHIP.

Vanderbilt Yacht Known as the Tuna in Canadian Fleet.

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 7.—The latest addition to the Canadian Navy, the Tuna, is making her headquarters at the navy dock here. She is said to be one of the fastest vessels of the British Fleet. The Tuna was formerly known as the Tarantula.

It was reported last August that the yacht Tarantula, belonging to William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., was being refitted for naval service, but the fact of her transfer to the Canadian Government never was made public.

The Tarantula was built by Tams, Lemoine & Crane at Neponset, Mass., in 1913. She is 128 feet long, with a beam of 19 feet and is rated with a displacement of 90 tons. She is a twin-screw vessel with two 6-cylinder gas engines and is supposed to be able to make an average of more than 30 knot speed.

270,000 RUSSIANS ATTACK CRACOW

GERMANS ABANDON ZGIERZ.

Petrograd Intimates Pitched Battle Is Yet to Come.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 7.—The recently arrived German corps suffered heavy losses yesterday when they were repulsed during the reinforced attempt to secure a position for the coming pitched battle. The Germans have abandoned Zgierz, about seven miles west of Lodz, which was the axle of Gen. Mackenzen's determined cavalry evolutions in the early stage of the present invasion. His quarters and corps have moved north of Lowicz, in the direction of Kutno.

Among the German wounded whom the Russians found during the fighting northward, many spoke excitedly of the critical day of Brezlziny, when the cavalry corps, with Prince Joachim, the Kaiser's son, in high command, lost 10,000 prisoners and about double that number in killed and wounded.

The situation in the centre is now markedly quiet compared with the incessant activity on both flanks. The fighting with the German left wing, which was again repulsed yesterday, is regarded as a secondary operation connected with the effort of Gen. Mackenzen to keep a substantial Russian force engaged in the north.

At the other end of the line the Russians have gained a solid advantage by the fact that, owing to telegraphic leakages and the distance that the Germans from the west have to cover over rough country after they reach the Polish frontier, their powerful incursion is deprived of the element of sudden shock. Moreover, the freezing of the streams in the region between Piotrkow and Cracow hampers the Germans by increasing their difficulties of defense.

Several of the shallower Masurian lakes (in East Prussia) are also freezing.

HOLD POLAND, BERLIN'S ORDER

Germans Would Keep Belgium Also to Insure Good Peace Terms.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 7 (Dispatch to The London Daily Mail.)—The Germans have received orders to maintain and extend at all costs the occupation of Poland.

The Berlin statesmen say that Germany must have both that country and Belgium in their hands when the conditions of peace come to be considered. It will then have something to bargain with.

I have noticed here during the last few days a strange atmosphere of hopefulness in regard to a speedy ending of the war. At a club dinner of leading men in business here a number of bets were registered that hostilities would be suspended by the middle of February.

An official statement was issued this morning for the purpose of denying the German exaggerations of Russian losses. It gives appalling details of the extent of the slaughter of the enemy when the trap was closed upon them. At some points where they were exposed to an enfilading as well as a frontal fire there were heaps of bodies nearly four feet high.

The Russian Central Asian regiments, composed of Turko-Tartars, Kirghizes, and Bashkirs, did terrible execution. Many dead were found cloven from the shoulder to the belt by their blows. The German prisoners said the impression made was that a legion of devils had been let loose. It was utterly impossible to stand against them.

It was after this that 10,000 men, all that remained of one of Gen. Mackenzen's divisions, surrendered.

The Fall of Lodz.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Dec. 8.—The Daily News says:

"The outstanding piece of intelligen from the war is the fall of Lodz. At the time of writing, the German official claim to have taken this place has been neither admitted nor denied from Petrograd, but later messages in regard to the fighting before Lodz make its fall not entirely improbable, apart from the usual accuracy of the German official reports on military matters within the cognizance of German Headquarters.

The town had admittedly been very heavily shelled and little of it remained uninjured, but the issue is disappointing. Reinforcements brought up after the narrow escape of Mackenzen's army have evidently been sufficient to enable the invaders to resume the offensive quite seriously, at any rate at this one important point. Yet the success at best can be only very temporary and partial. If the campaign is to resolve itself into a question of bringing up more and more reinforcements there is no doubt how it must end

"Meanwhile the Germans have paid very dearly, and will pay more dearly still, for the fanaticism of their belief in the counter offensive. There must come a point against an ultimately invulnerable enemy like Russia at which it will be too dearly bought."

DESTROY OLD MONASTERY.

Structure Near Lodz Demolished by Germans Was 1,000 Years Old.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—A dispatch to the Havas Agency from Petrograd says:

"The Germans have destroyed the monastery of Lenczyca, about fifteen miles northeast of Lodz, which has been in existence for a thousand years, on the pretext that the ringing of the Angelus was a signal to the Russians.

"In the attack a priest and two monks were killed."

PRISON CITY FOR RUSSIANS.

Church and Canteens Provided for 20,000 Inhabitants by Hungary.

Russian prisoners in Hungary occupy a prison city especially built for them, with a Greek church, and canteens where they may make purchases, and altogether enjoy considerable comfort, if not liberty, according to Geza von Sebes, a Hungarian mining engineer, who has arrived at the Claridge.

"Just before I left home," said Mr. von Sebes yesterday, "I was invited by some friends to visit them at Esztergoom, which is twenty miles from Budapest, the capital, and they took me out driving one afternoon to show me what they call their 'Prison City.'

"Immediately outside the town limits forty barracks have been built of wood, each building having accommodations for 500 Russians. These live much the same as ordinary soldiers, except that they have no firearms, swords, or bayonets. Inside this prison city they may roam about freely, but the walls are strictly patrolled, and the prisoners are given to understand that an attempt to leave the reservation means instant death.

"Esztergoom is the residence of the Primate of Hungary, the head of the Roman Catholic Church in the country, and its population is composed almost entirely of people of that faith. The prisoners, of course, for the most part, are of the Greek Catholic faith, and for their worship a church has actually been built—a plain wooden building, of course, but still a church. At the time of my visit there were 20,000 prisoners in the reservation, while the town of Esztergoom has a population of only 17,000."

HOW BARONESS HID HUSBAND ON VESSEL

Exploit of Former Miss Humphreys of New York, Wife of Baron von Wolf.

LATTER IS IN RESERVES

British Searched Ship Three Times—Baron Was in Wife's Cabin After Apparently Landing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The story of how Baroness Hans Heinrich von Wolf, who was Miss Humphreys, well known in New York society, smuggled her husband into Germany after the beginning of the war past a British cruiser and two sets of British shipping inspectors so that he could fight for the Fatherland is revealed in news received here giving details as to the bestowal upon the Baron of the Iron Cross of the First Class.

Baron von Wolf and his wife, who is the daughter of a wealthy patent medicine manufacturer and whose stepfather is Consul General St. John Gaffney, at Munich, were on their plantation in German Southwest Africa when the Kaiser ordered the mobilization. Being a reserve officer, the Baron started homeward on board a German steamship on July 29, and, fortunately for him, the Baroness accompanied him.

On receipt of wireless information that war had been declared, their ship promptly put into Rio Janeiro toward the middle of August, and it was two weeks later before the Wolfs found a neutral vessel headed for Holland.

In South American waters they were halted by a British cruiser, but although there were many German reservists among the passengers, the cruiser was so full of Germans already that she could not carry any more, so they were permitted to proceed.

Baron von Wolf left the ship "officially" at Vigo, Spain, his wife waving a tearful farewell to his imaginary figure on the tender. He was really secreted, through the connivance of a generously bribed steward, in a tiny closet, where he remained twenty-four hours. Finally he was spirited into his wife's stateroom, and during the rest of the voyage spent most of his time lying under her berth. All his meals, drinks, and cigarettes were brought in by the steward, who was in the plot, and, as the Baroness remarked laughingly to friends afterward, "I gained a frightful reputation as a heavy drinker and smoker, and one Mrs. Grundy even spread the scandalous report that I had a man in my room."

British warships compelled the Dutch vessel to enter Falmouth, where the authorities searched her for contraband and reservists. Knowing that the Baroness was a German officer's wife, naval officials called upon her several times in the course of the two weeks during which the ship was forced to remain at Falmouth, but each time they found her either doing her hair, whereupon they retreated hastily with apologies for the intrusion, or lying in her bunk, feigning illness. The ship manifest, of course, showed that Capt. von Wolf had disembarked at Vigo, and the Captain of the vessel, ignorant of the truth, swore that he had seen Capt. von Wolf on board the tender, waving to his wife on deck.

There was a further search at Dover, but von Wolf's hiding place was never discovered.

The Kaiser awarded the Iron Cross to von Wolf for capturing seven English soldiers single-handed near Ypres and for carrying dispatches in an automobile under a fire so hot that his chauffeur and two officers in a car following were killed.

As far as his neutrality will permit, Consul General Gaffney in whose Munich residence the Baroness is living during the war, has indicated to friends his delight over the valor of his stepson-in-law.

LIFE IN NORTH SEA FLEET

Monotonous, Says British Sailor—Men Keen to Fight.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 24.—The hospital ship China, chartered by the British Admiralty, put into Liverpool yesterday with about 200 sick sailors, collected from various warships in the North Sea. Some had to be carried on stretchers to the ambulances, but most of the men were able to walk. From one of the convalescents some idea of their life in the North Sea was gathered. He said:

"We are getting on all right in the North Sea. It is beastly cold out there, but we don't mind. At times life is a bit monotonous, but we bear it all nicely.

"Some of our vessels had a look more than once at the German ships, and if they would only come out we could settle the whole lot quickly with our big guns. The Germans do not touch our big ships, but only the smaller ones. We give chase to their submarines when seen, and make them clear off—though mishaps will occur. There are not so many German submarines about as people think. We have plenty of sleep, good food, and hard watching and cruising.

"Some of us have had a glimpse of Helgoland, but the atmosphere was misty and the place lies low. Some of our destroyers looked in to see what was going on, but, owing to the torpedo, nets, they could not go far enough to do damage."

STEAMER CHARCAS SUNK.

British Freighter Destroyed by German Transport in Pacific.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Dec. 7.—The British steamer Charcas, from New York Oct. 1 by way of the Panama Canal for ports on the Pacific Coast of South America, has been sunk at sea by the German transport Prinz Eitel Friedrich. This occurred off Port Corral, Chile. The crew of the Charcas has been landed at Papudo, forty-five miles north of Valparaiso.

The Charcas was in the service of the New York and Pacific Steamship Company. W. R. Grace & Co., local agents of the line, said yesterday that the ship carried no passengers, and that she probably had discharged the greater part of her cargo before meeting the Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

The Charcas was built in Newcastle, England, in 1906. She was 450 feet long, and had a beam of 52 feet. Her gross register was 5,067 tons.

STEAMER NYGAARD LOST.

Norwegian Vessel Driven Ashore on the Danish Coast.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The Norwegian steamer Nygaard, previously reported ashore off Esbjerg, Denmark, has been driven a mile nearer the coast line and has gone to the bottom.

The Nygaard, from Port Arthur and Pensacola for Esbjerg, was reported ashore Nov. 26 with fifteen feet of water in her hold. On the same day her crew were landed safely at Esbjerg.

THE WAR SITUATION.

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.
(An Associate Editor of The Army and Navy Journal.)

The most noteworthy fact at the present stage of the great war in Europe is the success of the Germans in holding their lines in France in spite of the great effort they are making in Poland. The bombardment of Oost Dunkerke, two miles west of Nieuport, shows that the Germans still maintain their hold upon the lower Yser.

At Dixmude the French are endeavoring to dislodge the Germans from their positions on the west bank of the river in order to safeguard the advanced position that the British have gained east of Ypres. This advance has carried the British five miles east of Ypres and has gained for them a good base for a further aggressive move against the Germans' right flank.

West of Lens the French recapture of Rutoire shows that they lost more than three miles in the early German attacks in this district. A similar reverse is shown at Rouvroy and Parvillers, five miles southwest of Chaulnes. This shows that the recent German attacks in this district carried the French lines back for two miles.

In Alsace, close to the Swiss border, the Germans have attempted a flanking expedition to cut off the French invading forces from their base at Belfort. This expedition pushed forward to Pfetterhausen, on the French border, ten miles southwest of Altkirch. The French seem to have withdrawn from the latter town, as the recent fighting is reported southwest of Altkirch. The French claims of successes in last night's dispatches are in reality belated acknowledgments of the reverses that they suffered three weeks ago. Apparently the Germans made an especially strong effort in the west just before they sent their last reinforcements to the Russian campaign. The small reverses suffered by the Allies at various points made them give special attention to strengthening their forces all along the line, and thus secured for the Germans some respite from counter attacks during the first days of the Russian campaign.

The armies of the Allies have now apparently been strengthened and are regaining the lost ground at many points. The more frequent mention of heavy artillery on the part of the French forces is especially significant, as a deficiency in this arm, has been one of their greatest weaknesses. With ample numbers of men and with artillery of sufficient power to cope with that of the Germans, the French should have little to gain by a further delay in adopting an aggressive campaign.

The first stage of the great battle in Western Poland has carried the Germans to Lowicz and Lodz, in spite of the confidence of the Russian commanders that they would hold back the Germans with the force already concentrated for this purpose. This advance carries the Germans forward ten miles to the scene of the stubborn fighting during the battle of Nov. 23.

While the above success shows an unexpected weakness in the fighting strength of the Russian Army, it by no means places Warsaw in danger. Between the Polish capital and the present battle line these are strong defensive positions along the Rawka and the Utrata Rivers, while the line of forts surrounding Warsaw would furnish a strong defense against the type of guns to which the armies operating in Western Poland are limited by the rough roads.

One result of the German advance to Lodz will probably be a retreat of the Russians from Lask and Szszercow. By withdrawing to Piotrkow they would keep their forces better in hand and would consequently be able to oppose a stronger resistance of the German attacks.

The campaign against Cracow is but little influenced as yet by the operations at Lodz. The Russian forces in this district have a clear line of retreat, if such should be necessary. They are hardly needed as yet for strengthening the Russian resistance at Warsaw, as troops from Central Russia could be moved to that threatened district by the available railroads much more quickly than the armies from Cracow could march overland. The Russian armies in the vicinity of Cracow can best assist in the defense of Warsaw by energetically pressing their attack so as to keep busy in this field as large an Austro-German force as possible.

The immediate object of the German advance on Lodz is not believed to be the capture of Warsaw. An advance in this direction would be largely a waste of energy, as the troops would be brought to a halt before the line of permanent forts. The most important immediate interest for the Germans is to relieve the pressure upon the Austrians in Galicia. To do this they must push forward in such a way as to threaten the flank or rear of the Russian armies that are now closing in on the north and east sides of Cracow. Such an object would call for an advance from Lodz southeastward toward Kielce, similar to the strategic move that in September so quickly cleared Western Galicia of the Russian invaders.

The fighting strength of the Servian Nation is shown by the energy with which it is resisting the Austrian invasion. The Servians' familiarity with the mountain trails gives them a great advantage in the fighting in the country east of the Kolubara River. They are enabled to mass their strength at unexpected points and to deliver attacks that break down the local resistance. By the time that the Austrians have called in their reserves to the threatened point the Servians have slipped away, to repeat the same tactics at another point. It is this type of fighting that enables the Servians to hold their own against a superior number of opponents. While the actual fighting strength of the Servian Army is by now not much more than 250,000 men, the Austrians will need more than 400,000 men to muster the necessary strength along the battle line and at the same time to furnish garrisons for the conquered territory.

The landing of French troops in Montenegro has only a local objective. It would be impossible for them to carry on any extensive campaign in this district. A part of the Austrian fleet is shut up in the Harbor of Cattaro, where the fleet of the Allies cannot reach it from the sea, while the Montenegrin Army is unable to make progress against the land forts. The situation is similar to that of the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera, which was shut up in Santiago by the American fleet during the Spanish war. The object of the French land expedition is to make an attack upon the forts of Cattaro, and by reducing them to bring to bear upon the naval vessels a bombardment that will force them to surrender or to sally forth in the face of the superior strength of the fleet of the Allies.

MAHAN FEARED GERMAN OFFENSE IF SHE WON

Wrote English Friend She Might Be "Nasty" to America—Unworried Over Submarines.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Dec. 8.—R. B. Marston, who enjoyed the friendship of Admiral Mahan for nearly a quarter of a century, and was especially close to him, in connection with the publication of the Adimarl's works, sends to The Times a copy of the last letter he received from Mahan, dated Oct. 14. The letter reads:

"Since you wrote, the misfortune to the three A. C.'s (armored cruisers), Cressy, Hogue, and Aboukir, has occurred, and I saw yesterday that the Russians had also lost the Pallada.

"I have been surprised myself that such attempts have not been more frequent, and doubtless if full return of all the submarine prowlings were obtainable we should find many failures against each success.

"I have not shared Sir Percy Scott's dismal forebodings, believing that the question of the submarine would reduce itself to one of scouting and lookout. Yet I have not ventured so positive an adverse opinion as sometimes I see attributed to me.

"As regards the inactivity of the German fleet, it is to be remembered that it is numerically much inferior. In an article written for one of our weeklies early in the war I gave the opinion that the Germans would first reduce the margin against them by torpedo attacks and possibly by airships, and I have been accordingly surprised that no more has been attempted in the two months intervening.

"As regards the general course of the war today's news is superficially discouraging and I am disappointed that the Allies should make so little impression on the lines of the Germans in France, while these were able to spare men enough to reduce Antwerp. Nevertheless numbers and money will eventually tell, as in our civil war, if Allies persist to the end. In any case the British fleet hold the decision in its hands, as in the days of Napoleon.

"I do not permit myself anxiety, though it is hard to avoid it when so interested. Besides I am sure that if Germany wins by a big margin, she is likely to be nasty to us.

"Lord Roberts has a fine for 'I told you so' as regards the need of your army for greater numbers, if he wished to be disagreeable.

"I, myself, and family are very well, though my seventy-four years, now complete, make themselves felt more and more. I have lost perceptibly in physical vigor during the Summer.

"This Winter we are to spend in Washington, instead of New York, I having been asked to do some research work there.

"With my most earnest interest in your nation's present and future and my personal regards to yourself. Yours sincerely, A. T. MAHAN."

Mr. Marston adds:

"The last time Admiral Mahan was in London he expressed to me his astonishment that our country seemed to be so unaware of or so indifferent to the menacing attitude of Germany, and so deaf to the call of our King to wake up."

SURE OF PEACE BY APRIL.

North German Lloyd Patron Books a Passage on the Kronprinzessin.

The agents of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company at 9 Broadway were surprised yesterday afternoon by a call made by one of their regular travelers, a well-known Wall Street lawyer, who booked a room with bath on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie for Bremen on the first sailing from New York after the war.

Chief Clerk Muehlenbrock explained that the sailing was very uncertain, but the lawyer replied that he felt confident the European war would terminate in April and the Kronprinzessin Cecilie would sail early in May. Suite 137, on the upper promenade deck, was allotted him, and he paid the customary deposit of $50 to reserve it.

PORTUGAL SENDS MORE MEN.

Royalist Officers Are Accused of Being Pro-German.

LISBON, Nov. 20, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The Government is preparing to send 4,000 more troops to Angola, Portuguese West Africa. Two thousand men were sent in September, 500 marines in October, and 500 more marines are being fitted out for departure this month.

It appears that Germany has armed great numbers of Portuguese African natives, who are commanded by German officers and provided with artillery. The prevailing view here appears to be that the most useful part which Portugal can take in the great war is in the Portuguese African colonies, and in aiding the British to carry the war into the German colonies which are contiguous to the Portuguese.

The question has got into politics here. The Royalists are accused of being pro-German, and of intriguing to prevent Portugal from taking an energetic part in the war. Officers with Royalist sympathies say they do not desire to commit the country to participation in the war on the Continent of Europe unless Great Britain formally asks that a contingent of Portuguese troops be sent.

One of the German steamers lying here tried to slip out of the bay recently, but it was caught and brought back by a Portuguese warship.

TWO SWEDISH SHIPS SUNK.

Luna and Everilda Hit Mines—Everilda's Crew Lost.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A dispatch from Stockholm to Reuter's Telegram Company says the Swedish steamers Luna and Everilda struck mines off the Finnish coat and both were sunk.

The crew of the Luna was saved, but all seamen aboard the Everilda, except one man, were lost.

BRITISH TRADE DECLINE.

November Returns Show Big Decreases in Imports and Exports.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The Board of Trade figures continue to show a natural effect of the war.

The imports in November decreased $62,400,000 and the exports decreased $100,770,000.

While the imports of food showed an increase of $25,000,000, there was a decrease in the importation of cotton from America to the amount of $32,500,000 and a decrease in the Egyptian product of $10,000,000. All other raw materials also declined.

The principal shrinkages in exports were $35,000,000 in cotton and yarns and $10,000,000 in coal.

HOLLAND LENDS WHEAT TO BELGIUM

Offers 10,000 Tons to the American Commission Without Formalities.

IT WILL LAST TWO WEEKS

Then the Need Will Be as Urgent as Ever—Dutch Unselfishness Highly Praised.

ROTTERDAM, (via London,) Dec. 7.—At a meeting held here today of the Netherlands Cabinet, attended by Chargé d'Affaires Langhorne and Capt. T. F. Lucey of the Belgian Relief Commission, the Government consented to loan and to deliver immediately 10,000 tons of wheat, valued at $1,000,000, to be used at once in Belgium at points where the danger of starvation was most acute.

The commission has been faced with a desperate situation. It is impossible for sufficient food to come in from America to prevent actual starvation in many places in Belgium. The action of Holland in loaning this wheat has brought from the American commission expressions of the deepest gratitude, particularly since it is recognized that Holland herself is in great need of grain, bread having been placed on a war basis throughout the country.

When the question was raised as to the time and manner of repaying this loaned wheat, the Netherlands Government waived all formality and declared it was prepared to deliver the wheat immediately on Capt. Lucey's personal receipt.

Representatives of the commission said today that this loan would enable them to feed the Belgians for a fortnight, but that the need at the end of that time would be as urgent as ever.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Although the American Commission for Relief in Belgium made no appeal for subscriptions in Great Britain, more than $95,000 has been received from British newspaper readers. With this sum the relief commission has purchased 1,600 tons of food supplies and has chartered the steamship Borgny, which will sail for Rotterdam in a few days.

DEFENDS BELGIAN HONOR.

Havenith Appeals from the Justice of Germany to That of God.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—M. Havenith, the Belgian Minister to the United States, acting on instructions from his Government, issued a formal statement tonight challenging the allegation of the German Government that it possessed proofs of a military arrangement between Great Britain and Belgium for the violation of Belgian neutrality.

"The Belgian Minister," he says, "whose country in the hour of her great affliction has received such precious help from the American people, begs that the following statement may be made known to them.

"In a recent speech made by the German Chancellor to the representatives of the German people, he lays the blame for the invasion of Belgium, with all its terrible consequences, on Belgium herself. And as a proof of this astonishing accusation he claims that documents have been found in Brussels establishing that Belgium had surrendered her neutrality to England.

"The Belgian Government has requested that these alleged documents should be published in full, thus proving the falsity of such a charge. Three months have elapsed since this alleged discovery, but nothing has appeared.

"It would indeed be humorous, should the matter not be too serious for such a term, that the German Government should call a breach of neutrality this alleged plan which, if it existed, had for its object to fortify Belgium's neutrality against a possible aggressor. Events have shown too clearly, alas! how much such a precaution against Germany's projects would have been timely.

"It seems nearly incredible that Germany, having shown to all the world what contempt she has for her solemn engagements, blames today the country which she has invaded, in spite of her pledged word, for having attempted to take alleged dispositions in view of preventing such an unwarranted attack. This is a new proof of Germany's faith and sincerity; having violated Belgium's neutrality, she accuses Belgium of a breach of neutrality because Belgium tried to take all possible measures to prevent such an attack.

"The mind ponders over the ruins of Louvain, the ashes of Termonde, Aerschot, Dinant, Malines, and of so many towns wantonly destroyed; over the bodies of men slain by thousands while protecting their homes, their wives, and children against that brutal aggression which no explaining, however elaborate, can justify. These martyrs may sleep peacefully their everlasting sleep; the Imperial Chancellor has promised that the wrong Germany has committed against them she will make good after her military goal has been reached.

"Happily for Belgium and the world, a power exists, which is still above Germany, her idea of justice and her culture. It is called the Justice of God: it is to this judgment that the Belgian nation appeals."

BELGIUM'S PHIL SHERIDAN.

Gen. Bertrand Rallies His Retreating Troops with a Jest.

HAVRE, Nov. 25, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—A quick command from Gen. Bertrand at Haecht turned a retreat of the Belgian forces into an attack in much the same manner as that in which Gen. Sheridan rallied the Union forces at the battle of Winchester in the civil war. The story is printed in the Currier des Armes, the official Belgian soldiers' paper.

Gen. Bertrand, who succeeded Gen. Leman in command of the division which withstood the Germans at Liége, suddenly found his troops in retreat.

"Friends," he shouted, "you've mistaken the road! The enemy is in the other direction!"

Electrified by their leader's words, the soldiers wheeled about and charged the German troops with renewed vigor.

On another occasion the General is declared to have stopped an attack of two Belgian companies upon each other by rushing between their lines and singing a popular ditty. Until they heard the General's voice the soldiers did not realize that they were firing on their own countrymen.

The General is 57 years old. He was a Second Lieutenant at 20 years, and became a Major General last March.

BIG AUSTRIAN ARMY ON ITALIAN BORDER

Rushed There in Reply to Premier's Speech—100,000 Men Sent to Pola.

MILAN, Dec. 7.—Advices received from the Austrian frontier and published yesterday in Il Secolo are to the effect that the statement of Premier Salandra in the Italian Parliament last Thursday had an immediate echo in Austrian military circles.

On Friday night, the correspondent says, the railway lines poured troops all along the Italian border and also into Pola, the Austrian arsenal on the Peninsula of Istria.

It is estimated that 200,000 men were stationed along the Italian border and 100 000 at Pola.

"At the same time," the correspondent continues, "anti-Italian manifestations took place at various points.

"At Pragerhoff Hungarian soldiers spat in the face of Italian workmen. Officers who witnessed these attacks did not interfere. At Steinbruck other soldiers ill-treated disabled Italian workmen who were making their headquarters in the station."

A B C NEUTRALITY PLAN.

May Be Developed from Today's Pan-American Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Diplomatic representatives of all the republics of North and South America except Mexico will meet tomorrow at the Pan-American Union Building to discuss measures looking to negotiations with the European belligerents for the withdrawal of their warships from the waters of this hemisphere.

Secretary Bryan talked informally to-da ywith the Argentine Ambassador and the Peruvian Minister about some of the suggestions to be taken under consideration. Mr. Bryan has pointed out that while the Secretary of State of the United States is the presiding officer at meetings of the Governing Board of the Pan-American Union, none of the proposals which have been made to the Washington Government contemplating a betterment of trade conditions will be laid before the Council in an official way While the Governing Board's action will be of an advisory character, it is hoped by the diplomats chiefly interested to bring about a concord of opinion, so that all the nations of the two Americas may act in unison in approaching the belligerents of Europe.

It is generally expected that after expressions of opinion about the best methods of dealing with the present situation have been brought out, a commission will be appointed to prepare suggestions for a solution of the difficulties.

Irrespective of tomorrow's discussion, the United States will soon make formal answer to the various notes containing suggestions for the creation of a neutral zone, for amending The Hague rules to permit belligerent ships to obtain only a sufficient amount of coal to reach the port of a neighboring country instead of home ports, and other kindred proposals designed to free American waters from European warships.

Should the United States fail to participate finally in any of the steps suggested, it is considered not unlikely that Argentina, Brazil, and Chile will take joint action, asking the European belligerents to remove their warships from South American waters. Serious controversies have already arisen between the European countries and South American States, the most menacing resulting from charges of the Chilean Government that German ships have violated Chilean neutrality.

SCHWAB HEEDS PRESIDENT.

Will Not Build Submarines for Any Nation While at War.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Charles M. Schwab has decided that his firm shall not build submarines for any belligerent country for delivery during the war in Europe. Definite announcement to this effect, coupled with the statement that Mr. Schwab had "submitted to the President's views of the subject," was issued at the State Department late this afternoon by Secretary Bryan. Previous reports had been that the submarines were to be delivered to a European belligerent in parts and not complete.

The importance of th' statement lies in the fact that it means the formation of a definite policy, the taking of a definite stand, by President Wilson, that the construction for belligerents of submarines or other war vessels in this country would violate the spirit of strict neutrality.

The formal statement issued by Secretary Bryan read:

When information reached the State Department that the Fore River Company was planning to build a number of submarines for one of the Allies, inquiry was made to ascertain the facts.

As a result of this inquiry, Mr. Schwab called at the State Department last week with his attorney and laid before the department what his company had planned to do, stating that before undertaking the work he had secured the opinion of a number of international lawyers and was keeping within the requirements of neutrality as outlined by them.

I stated to him that the President, basing his opinion upon information already obtained, regarded the work as contemplated a violation of the spirit of neutrality, but told him I would lay his statement before the President and then give him a final answer.

On Friday I had a conference with the President, and he instructed me to inform Mr. Schwab that his statement only confirmed him in the opinion previously formed that the submarines should not be built. Within a few minutes after my return from the White House, Mr. Schwab called me by long-distance telephone and told me that he submitted to the President's views of the subject and that I could announce that his firm would not build submarines for any belligerent country for delivery during the war.

This closes the submarine incident.

After issuing this announcement Mr. Bryan was asked a number of questions intended to glean the facts as to the submarine work planned by Mr. Schwab for his country. Mr. Bryan declined to amplify his statement except to admit that the submarines were not to be delivered in complete form.

NO EXCHANGE CONFERENCE.

Delay Due to the Absence of Mr. Lloyd George from London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The conferences for arranging exchange, for which purpose H. P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co. and James Brown of Brown Brothers, are in London, representing New York financial circles, have not yet begun.

This delay is said to be due to the absence from London of Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lloyd George.

Sir George Paish lunched today with the bankers in the city, and spent the rest of the day at the Treasury and the office of The Statist, which he edits.

Owing to the number of persons who must at one time or another approve any arrangement reached, it is anticipated that some days at least will elapse before any announcement is made by the Treasury in regard to a final agreement.

URGES LAW TO STOP SHIPMENT OF ARMS

Senate Calls for Data from Department of Commerce—Fine of $100,000 Is Proposed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—A radical extension of the neutrality laws of the United States is proposed in a bill introduced today by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, a leading Democratic member of the Foreign Relations Committee. It forbids the shipment from the United States of arms and ammunitions to be used against countries with which the United States is at peace. At the same time Mr. Hitchcock presented a resolution, which the Senate passed without objection, calling on the Department of Commerce for information as to shipments of arms and ammunition to Europe since the war began, the countries for which the shipments were destined, and the amount of the ordinary trade in arms in times of peace.

The bill introduced by Mr. Hitchcock today is closely related to one which he introduced in the closing days of the last session to forbid the lending of money by American bankers to belligerent powers. Both these bills come very near embodying the view taken by the Administration early in the war of this country's duties as a neutral. In the first weeks of the war the State Department strongly discouraged certain New York banks from floating a loan for France.

Since that time the Administration has modified its policy in important particulars, although the inference has been drawn that this change was due as much to learning that there was no warrant of law for the restrictions at first suggested as to any loss of sympathy for measures preventing assistance passing from the United States to the belligerent powers. There have, however, been evidences that in the face of the general financial stringency resulting in the United States from the European war the President felt that no additional burdens should be placed upon American commerce, and he, therefore, was willing to have it known that the Administration did not discountenance shipments of contraband, if made at the shipper's risk.

By the accident of war and Great Britain's naval supremacy the loosening of restrictions on the exportation of contraband has resulted inevitably to the advantage of the Allies. Germany, Austria, and Turkey, while enjoying theoretically the full right of purchase in the United States actually are unable to transport supplies across the ocean to their harbors.

In explaining his bill this afternoon Mr. Hitchcock said that undoubtedly it would be of particular interest to Germans domiciled in the United States, but he added that he would regard his bill as embodying the only consistent attitude for the United States, even if war material could be sent to both of the contending European groups.

"My bill," said Mr. Hitchcock, "proposes to prohibit people in this country from exporting arms, artillery, or ammunition to any country engaged in war against a country with which the United States is at peace. If passed, it would enlarge the scope of neutrality laws of the United States. Already these laws prohibit people in the United States from fitting out ships of war and sending them to help any belligerent.

"Our nation stands for peace, and it seems to me outrageous that we should be running our powder factories and our gun works night and day to furnish means for carrying on the present war. Those who are making money out of this traffic will, of course, object to this bill, but no one else ought to. Two years ago we authorized the President to prohibit the exportation of arms and ammunition to Mexico because we did not feel that this country should help to continue the war there.

"As a matter of fact, our Government owns at the present time more than 300,000 Krag-Jorgensen rifles, better than some of the arms now possessed by European nations. We have discarded them because the army has a better weapon. Several of the European nations would like to buy them, and undoubtedly Uncle Sam could get a handsome figure for them and the Treasury of the United States would be very much benefited, but no one would propose such an outrageous breach of the laws of neutrality for the benefit of the whole people of the United States. My bill proposes to carry this law of neutrality a little further and to forbid to individuals that which is already unlawful for the Government."

Mr. Hitchcock's bill relates exclusively to "arms, ammunition, artillery and explosives," without any reference to contraband in general. The measure would impose a fine of not exceeding $100,000 and imprisonment for not more than three years upon violators of its provisions.

The bill was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. Senator O'Gorman of New York, a member of the committee on the Democratic side, this afternoon expressed approval of the principle of Mr. Hitchcock's bill.

SAYS WEEK'S HALT WOULD END THE WAR

Mrs. Schwimmer, Peace Advocate, Says Only U. S. Can Bring About an Armistice.

MEN ARE READY TO STOP

Thousand of Women Suicides in Warring Countries, She Tells Reform Rabbis.

Asserting that the women of Europe never wanted war, and that the men would gladly lay down their arms if they could, Mrs. Rosika Schwimmer of Hungary appealed yesterday at a meeting in Temple Emanu-El for prompt action by the United States to bring about an end of the European war. Mrs. Schwimmer, who is Secretary of the International Equal Suffrage Council, has been sent here by the women of fifteen European countries to obtain aid for the war sufferers, and plead the cause of peace through American intercession. Yesterday she spoke at a joint meeting of the Eastern Council of Reform Rabbis and the New York Council of Jewish Women.

"The war can and should be stopped now," she said. "Both sides are in a state of equilibrium. They realize that they have been equally clever in warlike preparations, and it is now that they should be brought to their senses before it is too late. Their armies have been at it for five months without a let-up. They have had no time to think since they rushed to the first call to arms. Give them a week, only a week, to get sober and they would stop fighting."

Mrs. Schwimmer contended that such a condition could only be brought about by this country. An armistice of one week, if brought about by us, would put an end to the whole war, she argued. If the women of Europe had had their way there would have been no war, according to Mrs. Schimmer.

"We women of the Old World are united to resist the command to fight," she went on. "We will not be belligerents. We are united by the motherhood instinct and by the knowledge that the terrible waste of life is unnecessary. Yet we are all guilty, for we women knew that armaments meant war."

Mrs. Schwimmer explained that letters which had escaped the censor by being brought to her by friends from the other side revealed terrible conditions among the women and children of the warring countries. Thousands of children were dying, she asserted, the death rate being greater than ever before in history, and thousands of women were committing suicide or going insane because of the loss of their homes and their families. The stories of cheerful scenes brought back by travelers from such cities as Berlin and Budapest were based on superficial appearances, she said.

Letters Tell Real Conditions.

From friends in Hungary, Mrs. Schwimmer said she had received letters which showed what the real conditions were in that country. One of these begged her to send American newspapers, as the people were getting only news of victories. A woman school teacher wrote that all the schools and universities in Hungary had been turned into hospitals and that a cholera plague had spread through the country.

"Meanwhile we women are obliged to do the productive work of Europe," she went on. "We are doing the work that was dropped by the men when they went to war. When we asked for the right to vote, we were told that the men were our guardians, that they would protect the home. What are they doing today? Not protecting their homes, but destroying other people's homes. It is the women who are protecting the home."

Mrs. Schwimmer said that hosts of Galician refugees were pouring into Hungary and that their suffering was far greater than anything yet described in Belgium.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, who spoke on "Judaism Versus War," declared that the present conflict proved Christianity to be a failure, as the churches had been unable either to prevent the war or to stop it after it had started.

"If Judaism were the dominating religion today," he said, "Judaism would have prevented the war. Christianity failed because it is a theological religion. Judaism is an ethical religion. The Jewish ideal of universal peace is the one thing lacking today among the rulers and Cabinets and Governments of Europe. What does Christianity mean when the firing line is reached? The cannon is more important than the Bible, a bullet more precious than a precept?"

London Criticises Religion.

The shortcomings of religion and the failure of its ministers to face the crisis in Europe were discussed by Meyer London, in a speech on "Socialism and Religion," before the Reform Rabbis, at their meeting in Temple Israel, Lenox Avenue and 120th Street, last night. The newly elected Socialist Congressman talked freely of the failure of all creeds to take a positive stand in opposing the war at the outset, and contrasted the attitude of the German church men with that of the foremost Socialist leaders in Germany, who had gone to jail for denouncing militarism.

"It is only too true that religion—that is the ministers of the Gospel—never once dared stand up and utter a word against militarism in Germany," said Mr. London. "They never dared say they would rather be killed than kill. If the ministers of Europe had said to the Kings and rulers of Europe, 'We want no war,' there would have been no war—but they never dared."

Mr. London said that religion followed its old policy in Germany of supporting the ruling class. He also denounced the church for taking a stand on the side of organized charity.

"Charity is religious hypocricy in its worst form," he said. "The very promulgation of charity recognizes two classes of society, one to give and the other to receive. Religion stood by chattel slavery in the South before the war and it has been found on the side of many another evil that had the indorsement of the governing forces of the community. Socialism is against religion when it is found in league with such forces."

The whole world is in the throes of a great social revolution today, Mr. London said, but nowhere was the revolution progressing so rapidly as in this country.

"Why," he remarked, "today we actually have an ex-President of the United States embodying in his platform the speeches which I made twenty years ago."

A resolution calling on the churches of America to unite in demanding that the United States act at once in the matter of an armistice was unanimously adopted, as was also another calling on the council to extend aid to Jewish sufferers in Europe.

French Realize It Was a Mistake to Give One Paper a Monopoly.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Dec. 8.—The Daily News says in an editorial article:

"It is evidently being realized in France that the concession to The London Times by the French Government of the sole rights of translation and reproduction in English of the important French "Yellow Book" was a quite serious mistake. The actual results of this manoeuvre are summed up with great precision in the Journal des Debats, under the heading 'Une Gaucherie.'

"It is pretty clear that this is the last State paper in which The Times or, for the matter of that, any single journal, we hope, is ever likely to obtain exclusive rights of publication."

JAPANESE DIET OPENS.

Mikado Urges Adoption of Government's War Budget.

TOKIO, Dec. 7.—The opening of the Diet today was a brilliant event. The Chamber was crowded. Emperor Yoshihito's address dealt in part with the war, and requested the Diet to pass the legislation recommended by the Government.

"I am happy to announce," the Emperor said, "that the friendship of the empire with treaty powers is growing in cordiality and that the alliance with Great Britain and the ententes with France and Russia have been cemented in the present critical stage by stronger bonds of amity. Our army and navy have crushed the enemy, in co-operation with our ally, and peace in the Orient is gradually being restored. But the great war is not yet ended. We rely on the loyalty and bravery of our subjects. We wish to attain the final object as quickly as possible."

The Emperor, in concluding, requested the Diet to co-operate harmoniously with the programme of the administration and pass its financial budgets and necessary political measures.

KING PETER LEADS HIS ARMY.

Checks Austrian Advance in Servia, Inflicting Heavy Loss.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—King Peter of Servia, who had been ill for many months, has assumed command of the Servian Army, and has, according to a Nish report, checked the advance of the Austrians, inflicting heavy losses on them. The Austrian reply to this is that "the occupation of Belgrade necessitates the regrouping of our troops."

PARIS, Dec. 7.—A dispatch from Nish, Servia, to the Havas Agency reports that the Servians, since Dec. 3, have resumed a vigorous offensive. The Servian troops on Friday, the dispatch says, pursued the enemy's right wing as far as the Kolubara River, and it was there that the Austrians abandoned four of their batteries.

'SEND MORE RELIEF,' BEGS BELGIAN QUEEN

King's Sister Also Pleads in Name of Suffering Women and Children.

JERUSALEM IN GREAT NEED

Ambassador Morgenthau Forwards Appeal—Starvation in Galicia and Poland.

Two messages, one from Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, and the other from the Duchess of Vendome, sister of King Albert of Belgium, were made public by the American Commission for Relief in Belgium of 71 Broadway, last night. The letters were addressed to the Woman's Section of the commission, and expressed the appreciation of the Queen and the Duchess for the work being done for the relief of the Belgians. Both letters were written from the Belgian army headquarters in the field. The message from Queen Elizabeth reads:

> Headquarters Belgian Army,
> Nov. 29, 1914.
>
> It gives me great pleasure to accept the invitation which has been transmitted to me to become patroness of the Woman's Section of the American Commission for Relief in Belgium. I wish to extend to the women of America the deep gratitude of the women of Belgium for the work which they are doing for my people.
>
> The food which your country is daily providing to our women and children comes like a ray of sunlight in the darkest hour of Belgium's history. The Belgian women have fought a brave fight and are still fighting for the common cause of human liberty so dear to every American woman's heart.
>
> ELIZABETH.

This is the message from King Albert's sister:

> Chairman Woman's Section for Relief in Belgium, New York:
>
> I gladly accept your invitation to become patroness of the Woman's Section of the American Commission for Relief in Belgium. I know that I speak for every Belgian woman and every Belgian child when I say that we thank God for what you are doing. Now that the extremity of our distress is becoming known, we feel sure the tender hearts of the women of America will respond to our cry.
>
> Food is terribly needed by millions of my brave brother's unhappy subjects, who still remain in their native land. Before Winter is over the need will become still more desperate. In the name of the suffering women and little children of Belgium, I ask the women of America to help us.
>
> HENRIETTE.

Thomas J. O'Brien of Grand Rapids, Mich., former Ambassador to Japan and now Chairman of the Grand Rapids Belgian Relief Committee, who arrived in New York yesterday, said the Grand Rapids Committee would ship fifteen carloads of canned goods, beans, and clothing within a few days. In a later shipment he said there would be thousands of pounds of potatoes.

Pleas to the Red Cross.

Constant appeals are being received by the Red Cross from countries affected by the war. The State Department has forwarded a cablegram from Henry Morgenthau, Ambassador at Constantinople, quoting a telegram to him from the American Consul in Jerusalem. The Consul's message cabled by Mr. Morgenthau reads:

> Nov. 24—Need of provisions very pressing, many will suffer therefrom. Is it possible to ask help from America to send ship full of all sorts of provisions direct to Jaffa for distribution among needy people, without distincton of religion or nationality?

Mr. Morgenthau adds in his cable this:

> Inform Red Cross. Am convinced from additional information that needs in Palestine are very great.

Appeals have been received by the Red Cross from Albania. The report says that 300,000 persons are facing famine and that 30,000 have already died of starvation. Innumerable villages have been destroyed in Galicia and in Poland and great numbers of refugees are facing Winter with little or nothing.

Ernest D. Bicknell, National Director of the Red Cross, has been lent to the Rockefeller Foundation to plan relief measures in these districts. Any persons desiring to contribute for such relief may do so knowing that such contributions will be used for these people.

The Irvington and Ardsley Red Cross branches have sent to New York 10,000,000 cigarettes to be sent to soldiers from the Pierre Lorillard Company.

Yesterday's contributions to the Red Cross were $336.88, bringing the total to $394,683.09. Subscriptions should be sent to Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer, 130 East Twenty-second Street, or 52 William Street. Yesterday's contributions of $10 or more follow:

Dollar Christmas Fund, $26,782.

Henry Clews, Treasurer of the Dollar Christmas Fund, announces a total of $26,782, of which $1,507 was received yesterday. A cablegram to Mr. Clews from the London Shilling Fund, which has collected nearly $400,000 and with which the Dollar Fund is co-operating to avert famine among Belgians, was received yesterday announcing "Belgian conditions are appalling. Everybody's help is wanted." The message also said that a large part of the money already subscribed had been spent and more is urgently needed. Mr. Clews asks that contributions to avert starvation be addressed to him at Broad Street, New York. Yesterday's donations included:

Comforts for Fighting Men.

The British-American War Relief Committee has received from Lord Kitchener a cable saying:

> First consignment of gifts from women of America for British on active service received, with much appreciation and gratitude. Letter follows. KITCHENER,
> Secretary of State for War.

The committee has also received several appreciative messages from H. R. H. Princess Victoria.

The office of the committee is on the sixth floor, at 200 Fifth Avenue, and the work is carried on under the patronage of St. Andrew's Society, St. George's Society, St. David's Society, and The Canadian Society.

The object is to collect warm clothing and other comforts for the soldiers and sailors in active service, and to send clothing, bandages, and supplies of all kinds, to hospitals in England and France. No money is sent abroad as all donations are spent in this country for the purchase of the articles required. Contributions of all sorts may be sent to the office at 200 Fifth Avenue, which is open from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M. and on Saturday from 10 A. M. to 1 P. M. It is requested that checks be made to the order of Henry Whitehouse, Treasurer.

The following list of articles have already been forwarded to England: 4,402 pairs socks, 1,000 mufflers, 503 abdominal bands, 100 suits pajamas, 700 pairs wristlets, 68 pairs gloves, 1,030 jerseys, 1,824 pairs under garments, 20 pairs blankets, 15 wrappers, 15 comfort bags, 35 chest protectors, 27 dozen handerchiefs, 103 helmets, 20 large cases of hospital supplies.

German Bazaar Receipts $98,000.

The sum raised by the Charity Bazaar at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory at Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street for the benefit of widows and orphans of German and Austro-Hungarian soldiers was $98,000 at 8 o'clock last night, which was the third night of the bazaar. It was estimated that the receipts later brought the total to $113,000.

There were 20,000 persons in the building last night when Mayor Mitchel visited the bazaar. He gave a talk, praising the Germans for their love of their Fatherland, and saying that a man could be a model American and yet love the land in which he or his fathers were bred.

Last night was artists' night. The Arion Society of Brooklyn, under Conductor Klee, furnished the music, and a number of well-known singers, musicians, actors, and actresses took part in the programme. Patriotic songs of Germany, Austria, Hungary, and the United States were sung. Many members of the Metropolitan Opera Company were present, but as they were not allowed to sing they became sellers of dolls, paintings, jewelry, and other things donated to the bazaar.

ART SALE FOR DESTITUTE.

Proceeds Will Go to Needy Women and Children Here and Abroad.

Many eminent artists have donated paintings or other works of art, which will be auctioned Thursday afternoon, between 3 and 6 o'clock, at Mrs. H. P. Whitney's Studio, 8 West Eighth Street, for the benefit of destitute women and children here and abroad.

Those who have contributed and the works of art to be auctioned include:

> Mrs. H. P. Whitney, "Head of a Spanish Peasant," bronze; Miss Janet Scudder, "Little Lady of the Sea," bronze; Miss Cecilia Beaux, "The Shawl Costume," painting; Miss Malvina Hoffman, "Dancing Girl," bronze; Howard Cushing, painting of flowers; Robert Chanler, painting of cockatoo; John Alexander, "Alice," painting; Gutzon Borglum, bronze statuette of Ruskin; Prince Paul Troubetskoy, "Lady Constance, Dancing," bronze; J. Alden Weir, "Country Church," painting; Ernest Lawson, landscape painting; J. E. Fraser, "Awakening," bronze; Robert Henri, "La Montera"; donated by a lady, small painting by Sorolla; Daniel Chester French, "Abraham Lincoln," bronze.

The paintings are now on exhibition at 8 West Eighth Street every afternoon between 2 and 6 o'clock.

Sent to The Times.

The following contributions have been received by THE NEW YORK TIMES: For the Dollar Christmas Fund, $5 from "Three Army Children"; for the Belgian Relief Fund, $2 sent by "No-Smoke," who mentions in his letter that "the amount is small, but when it means to obtain it I have abstained from buying cigarettes for a period of three weeks I am making such statement not for my glorification but that it might act as an example for others"; for a little girl in need of an operation in response to the Charity Organization Society's appeal, $1 from "Anonymous."

Canadians Give to Relief Fund.

The Canadian Society held an informal meeting at the Biltmore last night. There were no speeches, and sums of $1 or more for the relief fund of the society were collected from the several hundred members who attended.

MR. BECK'S WAR CASE.

Sunday Times Article, Reproduced in London, in Great Demand.

"The Case of the Double Alliance vs. the Triple Entente in the Supreme Court of Civilization," the article in THE NEW YORK SUNDAY TIMES of Oct. 25, in which James M. Beck, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States, summed up the evidence as to the cause of the present European war, placing the responsibility at the doors of Germany and Austria, has been reprinted in pamphlet form in England by The London Times and by two other publishing concerns, one of which is selling its pamphlet at 6d., (12 cents.)

News from London in yesterday's mail showed that 25,000 copies of The London Times pamphlet had been disposed of in a single issue, and the pamphlet was still in demand. One of the largest of the British Chambers of Commerce wants to have the article translated into German and French, for circulation in those countries, and has even suggested that the Chamber may pay for its distribution if this is done.

Silver Tea Caddies

About Prices of Solid Silver

Fix this point in your mind, that prices on sterling silver can't vary much from one store to another, because the margin of profit is narrow. The best satisfaction always comes from buying where you have the widest range of choice.

In New York, Paris, London, Berlin, very few stocks (perhaps none) can even equal ours for size, for freshness, for beauty, for practical usefulness to both large and small incomes.

$8.75 Solid Silver Tea Caddies that joy the heart of the hostess every time she sees them. Hand-engraved, $10.50. Plain, $8.75.

WILD RACE IN PARK STOPS GEM ROBBERY

Police, Shooting from Steps of Touring Car, Halt Swaying Taxicab.

CHASE CLEARS WEST DRIVE

Plotters Had Stolen Auto and Were Going to Smash Jeweler's Window.

The few automobiles in the West Drive of Central Park shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon pulled to the roadsides to give room to a flying taxicab, on the driving seat of which a negro and a white man were seated and which swayed and skidded and threatened each moment to upset.

Behind it, swerving as crazily, came a touring car, on the running boards of which stood several policemen, revolvers ready in their hands. Now and then one sent a bullet over the car ahead, but the fugitives on the taxicab seat only put on speed.

From 104th Street to Sixty-fifth the chase continued with the speed of cup racers, checking at last only when the touring car ran alongside and a policeman, leaning far out, waved his revolver and shouted:

"Pull up or I'll shoot to hit."

Then the white man who was at the taxi wheel shut off power and the two cars stopped side by side. The policemen grabbed the negro and the white man before either could run. Then with a policeman beside him the white man was forced to drive the taxicab first to the Arsenal Police Station and then to the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau in Harlem.

There the men were questioned separately. The negro, who was recorded as Benjamin Smith of 440 West Forty-fifth Street, said that he and his white companion, whom he knew as Frank Coles of 211 West 121st Street, had planned ten days ago to rob the jewelry store of H. Nockin at 2,342 Broadway, near Eighty-fifth Street, by tying the door on the outside, then smashing the window and grabbing the jewelry on display.

Smith said they had bought some wire and a glass cutter at a store in Seventh Avenue, near Twenty-ninth Street, five days ago, and there the police found this, along with a brick wrapped in paper, tucked under the seat of the taxicab. Smith said he was to fasten the door and Coles was to cut or smash the windows, as circumstances directed, and then grab what he could and make off in the taxicab, just as the robbers some months ago got several thousand dollars' worth of stock from a jeweler in Broadway, near Thirty-eighth Street.

Coles at first denied this plot, but confessed at last, the detectives say, and admitted that his right name was Melvin Myres and that he came from Syracuse about two years ago. He had run out of money, he said, and decided on this way to get it, as he had noticed that Nockin had a valuable Christmas display in his window.

He and Smith hired Peter Zaun's taxicab at Park Avenue and 125th Street about 2:30 yesterday afternoon, and, telling Zaun to drive them to Forty-second Street and Broadway, asked him to go through the park. In a lonely spot near 104th Street, where there are lots of bushes, they called to Zaun to stop the cab, and when he did so Smith leaped out and thrust into his face what Zaun thought was a revolver. Later it proved to have been one of those blue glass affairs which resemble a real weapon even when closely examined.

"Get out of that cab," ordered Smith, and Zaun obeyed. Then he was forced to back into the bushes, and as soon as he was out of reach Myres jumped behind the wheel of the cab and started it southward. Zaun's yells were heard by Policeman Fees, who commandeered a passing touring car and started the chase, picking up other policemen on the way as he passed them.

Smith and Myres were locked up, and will be arraigned in the Harlem Court this morning.

COMPLIMENTS MRS. NATHAN.

President Says Consumers' League Sets an Example to Men.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—President Wilson today paid a pretty compliment to Mrs. Frederick Nathan of New York City, who called at the White House heading a delegation of members of the Consumers' League of that city. Mrs. Nathan is President of the New York City Consumers' League and First Vice President of the National Consumers' League.

The President's compliment was his statement to Mrs. Nathan and her associates that he wished all the men's organizations visiting him in conference might so ably present their cause as had Mrs. Nathan and her officers. The purpose of the visit was to invite the President to be the guest of honor of the Consumers' League at their twenty-fifth dinner at the Hotel Astor on Jan. 12.

The members of the committee came to Washington this morning from New York City in a private car, were received by the President at noon, and spent half an hour giving a résumé of the league's work during the past quarter of a century. The President was keenly interested, and complimented the service of the league in New York and its eighty-nine branches throughout the country. It is believed that as a result of the visit the President will in some way give personal recognition to the anniversary dinner.

After inviting Secretary Garrison to attend the dinner, and receiving his promise that he would if he could, the committee left Washington at 3 o'clock by the same special car for New York City.

The committee included Mrs. Elmer Black of New York, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the league in charge of arranging for the dinner; Mrs. Nathan, Mrs. Perry Jackson, Mrs. Benjamin Nicholl, Mrs. Morris Kellogg, Mrs. Bruce Crane, Mrs. Amos Pinchot, and Mrs. Barrett Andrews.

BILL FOR FEDERAL PHONES.

Representative Lewis Hopeful It Will Pass This Session.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Representative David J. Lewis of Maryland, father of the Parcel Post law, announced today that he was about to revive the long simmering "but previously unhopeful" fight for a postal telegraph and telephone system to be owned and operated by the Federal Government. Men in touch with Mr. Lewis say he will make the fight "mighty interesting for the telephone monopoly," despite the fact that this is a short session of Congress. Mr. Lewis has been studying the transportation problem—and he regards the telephone and telegraph as phases of it—for twenty-four years. During the Summer he has been in close touch with officials of the Post Office Department who have also been making a study of the subject for the Postmaster General.

Lodge is similar to that already offered in the House by Representative Gardner, who is Mr. Lodge's son-in-law. A resolution offered by Senator Lewis, the Democratic whip, provides for an inquiry into the matter of preparedness by the Naval and Military Committees of the Senate. The Lewis resolution has a partisan tinge, in that it intimates that Republican Administrations have spent hundreds of millions of dollars for national defense without bringing about a state of preparedness for war. Under the terms of the Lewis measure the Military and Naval Committees of the two houses of Congress are to make an investigation to ascertain what has been done with the vast sums appropriated for military purposes, how and by whom they were spent, and for what purpose, with a view to showing why the alleged condition of unpreparedness exists.

In the preamble to his resolution Senator Lewis said that many hundreds of millions of dollars had been appropriated for the army and the navy between the ending of the last Democratic Administration and the beginning of the Wilson Administration. The resolution suggests that bureau officers of the War and Navy Departments show what has been done with these appropriated amounts by Republican Administrations in spite of which "the Democratic Administration finds itself, upon entering into power, unprepared in its army and navy." Mr. Lewis said that $50,000,000 had been appropriated to make up deficiencies in the military establishment under Republican Administrations, and that the appropriations had totaled $1,200,000,000. There have been hints that if the Republicans made an issue of the matter of military unpreparedness, the Democrats would come back with the charge that the fault was that of the Republican Party which had been in power for sixteen years and had had ample opportunity to remedy military defects. Mr. Lewis's resolution indicates that these hints had some foundation.

Representative Vare of Pennsylvania today introduced two bills, one appropriating $5,000,000 to buy big guns, siege howitzers, field artillery, dirigibles, aeroplanes, and armored motor cars for the army and $2,000,000 to buy aeroplanes, dirigibles, submarines, and hydroaeroplanes for the navy.

The discussion of the question of military unpreparedness has not been crystallized sufficiently to show whether an issue will be made of it by the Republicans in Congress. Already some Republicans have expressed their opposition to the Garder proposal. Senators Cummins and Norris showed that they were not in sympathy with the general proposition in statements made today. Vice President Marshall also declared himself against it.

Ex-Congressman Perry Belmont of New York made a statement tonight favoring the amalgamation of the Navy League, the Army League, and similar organizations into a National Defense Federation to obtain the improvement of the military and naval establishments.

FOR TWO NEW BATTLESHIPS.

Eight or More Submarines Also Included in Naval Building Programme

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The nation's military and naval expenses during the next fiscal year, not including certain fixed expenses, would amount to $256,421,357, compared with $251,284,167 during the current year, under plans of the Administration as embodied in estimates submitted to Congress today.

This amount provides for the regular army, the military academy, the militia, so far as its cost to the Federal Government is concerned; fortifications, arsenals, military posts, and the naval establishment, including the proposed naval building programme and the increase in the navy heretofore authorized.

The tentative Administration naval building programme for the next fiscal year, as indicated in the estimates, is for two battleships, six torpedo boat destroyers, "eight or more submarines," one oiler, and one gunboat, one of the submarines to be of the seagoing type and seven or more to be of the coast defense type. The hulls and outfits of these vessels alone would cost during the coming year almost $10,000,000 and their arms and armament $9,425,000.

Democratic Leader Underwood, some of the members of the Naval Committee and others in Congress, having in mind the European war's lessons, favor an increase in submarines rather than in the larger type of naval craft. This sentiment is expected to be injected into debates during the present session. Tentative estimates for the naval programme are all "on the assumption that new vessels to be authorized at this session will be built by contract." The final programme will be outlined by Secretary Daniels just before the Naval bill is reported to the House.

Provision is made in the estimates for submarine mines, an important factor in the European conflict. For purchase of mines and necessary appliances to operate them "for closing the channels leading to our principal seaports and for continuing torpedo experiments," an appropriation of $191,350 is asked. There is also proposed $68,000 for maintenance of submarine mine material and for torpedo depot administration in continental United States.

Congressional approval of the transfer of four 12-inch mortars and their carriages, valued at $110,000, from fortifications in the United States to the insular possessions, is asked, together with an estimate of $50,000 for purchase of submarine mines for closing channels to insular seaports, and $10,000 for maintenance of submarine mine material there; $17,000 for mining casemates and torpedo storehouses for Philippine defense, and several small appropriations for defense of Hawaii.

In the general scheme of fortifications, aggregating almost $6,000,000, numerous increases are asked. For construction of gun and mortar carriages last year's appropriation is more than doubled in the estimate of $585,000 for fortifying Cape Henry, Va., together with $100,000 to modernize older emplacements. For purchase, manufacture, and test of ammunition for mountain, field, and siege cannon, $1,600,000 is asked, an increase of $400,000; and various items, ranging from $100,000 to $450,000, for sea coast cannon, purchase of ammunition and sub-calibre guns, and alteration of three-inch batteries to rapid-fire field batteries are asked. For purchase of searchlights for defense of the more important harbors, $150,000 is asked, an increase of $50,000; preparation of fortification plans doubled to $10,000; maintenance of the mobile artillery, $55,000.

For fortifications in the insular possessions $446,000 is asked, an increase of $90,000. The Panama Canal fortifications aggregate $1,942,228, an increase of $717,673, including $25,000 for torpedo buildings and $763,000 for purchase, manufacture, and test of ammunition for seacoast and land defense cannon and machinery necessary for its manufacture at the arsenal and for maintenance of seacoast artillery. The Secretary of War also would receive discretionary authority to spend $50,000 of this amount to erect a building for manufacturing projectiles.

The estimates also call for an appropriation of $568,580 for construction of barracks for the mobile army and Coast Artillery in the Canal Zone, for which $700,000 was appropriated last year, and increase the appropriation of $50,000 for fire control stations at Panama to $383,301.

KANSAS ESCAPES, ANCHORS IN STORM

Buffeted Battleship, Catching Her Breath, Ocean City Thought Was Ashore.

NOW SAFE AT BREAKWATER

Fought Gale Up the Coast with Propellers Out of Water and Engines in Peril.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—Reports received today from Capt. H. F. Bryan of the United States battleship Kansas made it clear that it was the Kansas which observers last night thought was ashore at Ocean City, Md. Capt. Bryan sent a dispatch to the navy yard today saying that the big warship was at anchor inside the Delaware Breakwater. He reported moreover that before reaching the protection of the breakwater he was obliged to anchor off Ocean City yesterday to protect his vessel from the storm. No other vessel was in that neighborhood so far as he knew.

The ship's propellers were lifted out of the water by the heavy seas, Capt. Bryan said, and were in danger of breaking or throwing the engines out of line. He reported that the Kansas was uninjured, except for slight damage to several lifeboats and the superstructure. The Kansas left her anchorage early today and proceeded to the Delaware Breakwater.

The Kansas, which is returning from a six months' cruise in Mexican waters, was in the thick of the storm all the way up the coast, and when it became necessary to anchor the vessel five miles below Ocean City, life-savers and observers from the shore believed the vessel had gone aground. Because of the thick fog the ship was hardly visible. Capt. Bryan said that several times in the night he endeavored to exchange torch signals with the life saving crew, but it was impossible to do so.

The Kansas belongs to the North Division of the Atlantic fleet and has a crew of 800 officers and men. Capt. Bryan reported tonight that he would remain at anchor inside the Delaware Breakwater until the weather moderates, when the vessel will start for the navy yard here. The Kansas is a vessel of 16,000 tons and is 450 feet long.

When a Man Marries

A WEDDING ring seems but a trifle, after all, for anything whose significance is so very great.

And it is because of what it means that it should be made more carefully than any other.

At Lambert Brothers we specialize in wedding rings. Our rings are perfect and seamless.

Our artisans use every care to make each wedding ring they produce as fine as such a plain, simple thing can be made. Perhaps that is why our reputation as sellers of wedding rings has grown to such considerable proportions. Indeed, one man told us not long ago that he would not have felt properly married without a Lambert ring.

Men's Evening Dress
Assured of Its Place in the World

That is, in the social world, where the lorgnettes of criticism are apt to be leveled at a man's dress about as quickly as at his manners.

These GIMBEL Evening Dress Clothes are criticism-proof in conforming to modern fashions for men.

They reflect our expert judgment as to what is correct style, and are made for us by tailors who specialize in men's dress clothes.

They are thoroughbreds of their kind—and will last the distance when it comes to service. But they are just as moderately priced as the clumsy kinds to whom style is a total stranger.

Prices run from $25 to $55, with special emphasis on these two groups:

Evening Dress or Dinner Coat Suits, at $35

Material is soft, unfinished black worsted. The dress coat is tightly fitted at waist, and leaves about half an inch of the waistcoat showing in front. The coat tails hug the figure closely, and reach to the bend of the knee. Soft, rolling front, faced with dull-finished satin. Coat and trousers braided or plain, as desired.

The Dinner Coat follows the same general lines.

Evening Dress or Dinner Coat Suits, at $25

A distinct achievement in dress clothes at this popular price, as to style, material and hand-tailoring. Black unfinished worsted, trimmed with new silk braid—or plain, if preferred.

Black Satin or Silk Dress Waistcoats Are Correct

The best specialists make GIMBEL waistcoats, and we have a fine collection.

15 different styles in plain black satin, plain and moire silk, and plaited silk, with or without collar, or with soft rolling fronts. Also plain white silk or satin.

At $6.50, $7.50, $8.50, $10, $12.50
In white pique, at $3.50, $5 and $6.

Special—Men's $6 to $12 Dress Waistcoats, $3.65

ESTIMATES PARED AS RESULT OF WAR

Total Is $1,090,775,134, or $3,392,962 Under the Current Appropriations.

ARMY AND NAVY INCREASES

Militia Manoeuvres Cut $1,000,000 to $250,000—For Rivers and Harbors Only $53,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Estimates presented to Congress today by the Secretary of the Treasury put the cost of conducting the Government during the fiscal year 1916, which begins on July 1 next, at $1,090,775,134. This sum is $3,392,962 less than the Congressional appropriations for the current fiscal year, ending June 30 next, and $17,006,643 less than the estimates for the current year.

Without salary increases of any note, with no estimates whatever for new public buildings, and with all items reduced by order of President Wilson to what department heads consider the minimum, the estimates represent the Administration's effort to keep the Governmental expenditures within its income, which has been decreased by the European war.

By grand divisions the estimates follow: Legislative establishment, $7,641,049; Executive, $31,845,889; Judicial, $1,240,580; Department of Agriculture, $20,706,013; Postal Service, $297,355,164; foreign intercourse, $4,607,182; military establishment, $105,866,849; naval establishment, $142,619,003; Indian Affairs, $9,533,463; pensions, $166,100,000; Panama Canal, $18,931,865; public works, $79,917,541; miscellaneous, $82,843,325; permanent annual appropriations, $121,567,207.

With the expectation that the Postal Service will continue to be self-sustaining, the postal item of $297,355,164 will be deducted as it is returned to the Treasury from postal earnings, leaving the actual total of expenditures at $793,419,970.

The army and navy establishments alone show increases of any note. The army estimate is increased to $105,866,850, as against a current appropriation of $101,977,802; the naval estimate is $142,619,033, against a current appropriation of $141,393,217.

Income Tax Collection.

The expense of collecting the income tax is estimated at $1,220,000, a decrease of $280,000.

In the Department of Commerce a new item is one of $3,000,000 for an agricultural census, $1,493,500 is asked for lighthouses, beacons, and fog signals, $75,000 is estimated for investigating costs of production, and $100,000 is estimated for promoting commerce in South and Central America. This latter item is double the amount appropriated last year.

In the Department of Labor the estimate for the work of Commissioners of Conciliation on Labor Disputes would be raised from $50,000 to $75,000. For a study of the extent of industrial unemployment in the United States $10,000 is estimated.

In the Department of Agriculture the principal items are $600,000 for quarantine work to fight the foot-and-mouth disease; $398,000 to fight the cattle tick in the South; $645,000 to enforce the pure food law; $1,000,000 for co-operative farm demonstration work; $60,000 for live stock experiments in Southern counties where sugar cane has been the principal product; $87,000 for dairy experiments in the semi-arid and irrigated regions of the West, and $240,000 to encourage improved farm management methods. For free distribution of seeds $252,540 is asked. The total estimate for the Forest Service is $5,548,256. For the enforcement of the new law to regulate dealings in cotton futures and to carry on the investigation of marketing and distribution of food products $376,595 is asked.

In the army estimates $200,000 is provided for the new aviation corps, $700,000 for buildings and grounds of the Military Academy at West Point, and $150,000 for automatic machine rifles. The sum for militia manoeuvres is reduced a million dollars and left at $250,000; $400,000 is asked for barracks and quarters in the Philippines; $825,000 for small arms target practice; $250,000 for the manufacture of arms.

For public works in the War Department $62,000,000 is estimated, of which $53,000,000 is for rivers and harbors, an increase of $27,000,000 over last year's estimate. For fortifications and other works of defense, $5,800,000, a slight increase over last year, is estimated.

In the navy $23,800,000 is asked for increases heretofore authorized and $19,000,000 is estimated for the 1916 building programme. The amount estimated for the New York Navy Yard is $135,000. The estimate for arming the Naval Militia is doubled, making it $250,000.

Pensions Drop $3,000,000.

In the Interior Department pensions are estimated at $166,000,000, a three-million-dollar drop since last year. An estimate of $9,000,000 for the Reclamation Service appears in the estimates for the first time. Congress at the last session passed a law requiring reclamation outlays to be made by appropriation.

For fortifying the Panama Canal a total of $1,942,228 is estimated, an increase of $817,703 over last year's appropriation. In this estimate is included $80,000 for searchlights and $100,000 for reserve equipment.

The Interstate Commerce Commission estimate is reduced $1,900,000, because it does not include provision for the physical valuation work, for which an estimate will be furnished later.

The Department of Justice estimates include $300,000 for enforcing the anti-trust laws.

The Department of Labor estimates include $346,000 for the Ellis Island Immigration Station and $25,000 for a new immigrant station at Galveston, Texas. The Public Health Service wants $500,000 for preventing the spread of epidemic diseases. For a memorial amphitheatre at Arlington National Cemetery $500,000 is asked. For the new Federal Trade Commission soon to be organized, $530,000 is estimated.

The total of $1,493,500 for lighthouses, beacons, fog signals, and other aids to navigation, includes a light station at Goose Island Flats, N. J., $120,000; Hudson River light, $100,000.

Rivers and Harbors.

For rivers and harbors the Mississippi River estimate is $10,500,000, the Ohio $9,884,000, the Hudson $3,670,000, the Tennessee more than $3,000,000, the Columbia and the Missouri $2,500,000 each, and the Delaware $1,500,000.

Estimates of harbors and smaller waterways include:

Connecticut—New Haven, $10,000; Connecticut River, below Hartford, $30,000; Housatonic River, $6,000; Thames River, $14,500.

New York—Gowanus Bay Channel, $150,000; Great Sodus Bay Harbor, $9,000; New York Hudson River Channel, $250,000; Port Chester, $20,000; Mattituck, $10,000; Huntington, $5,000; Port Jefferson, $10,000; Mamaroneck, $14,800; Rondout and Peekskill, $5,000; Sheepshead Bay, $3,000; Tarrytown, $9,000; Bronx River, $200,000; Brown's Creek, $5,000; East Chester Creek, $10,000; Harlem River, $150,000; Newtown Creek, $30,000; Arthur Kill, $505,000.

New Jersey—Absecon Inlet, $45,000; Keyport Harbor, Raritan and Elizabeth Rivers, $25,000; Raritan Bay, $20,000; Cooper River $5,000; Maurice River, $10,000; Passaic River, $155,000; Raccoon Creek, $8,000; Salem River, $5,000; Shrewsbury River, $10,000; Tuckerton Creek, $5,000.

The budget goes light on the score of public buildings, simply asking that the inexpended balances of previous appropriations be reappropriated for the various buildings under construction. The estimate of funds necessary for sites and extensions is $216,000.

WILSON CALLS IN LEADERS.

Kern and Underwood Discuss Session's Legislation with President.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Senator Kern and Representative Underwood, the majority floor leaders conferred with the President at the White House this evening. Mr. Wilson sent for them late in the day and met them separately, reading to each of them the message which he will deliver tomorrow, and discussing the legislation which he desires should be considered in addition to the appropriation measures.

"There is nothing which the President has in mind," said Representative Underwood after leaving the White House, "with which I am not in accord, and I see no reason why the programme of legislation which he will suggest should not be carried out before adjournment. If there is one thing that every Democratic member of the House—and I believe it applies to the Senate as well—has his mind set against, it is an extra session next year. I do not believe there will be any."

Discussing the legislative programme, Mr. Underwood declared that there surely would be a vote on the Hobson resolution for submission to the States of a Constitutional amendment for national prohibition. He said a rule to pave the way for a vote on it would be brought out in the House.

According to both majority leaders the appropriation bills will have the right of way and will be rushed as rapidly as possible. Conservation legislation, the Ship Purchase bill, and the House bill to pave the way for ultimate Philippine independence are first on the programme of general legislation.

Senator Kern asserted after his talk with the President that there would be time for some general legislation, to which there would not be much opposition. In this class he mentioned the Porto Rican citizenship measure.

OVATION TO CLARK AS CONGRESS MEETS

Rousing Cheers from Members as Speaker Ascends Rostrum—Similar Honor for Mann.

WILSON'S ADDRESS TODAY

President Will Appear in Person Before Joint Session at 12:30—Sober Fun in Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The Sixty-third Congress reconvened at noon today for its last and shortest session. While interest in the opening was suspended in anticipation of the President's address to Congress in the Hall of the House tomorrow, the galleries of both Senate and House were well filled for the simple ceremonies of today, while even the Supreme Court of the United States had a larger attendance than usual.

The feature of the meeting of the House was the rousing ovation given to Speaker Clark when he mounted the rostrum. The Speaker had been ill within the last week and his face showed the effects of the attack, but he wielded the heavy mallet of the presiding officer with his old-time vigor in an effort to restore order among the cheering Congressmen who rose to greet him. There was an ovation also for Representative Mann, the Republican leader. Following its more dignified practices the Senate disposed of its routine business without any demonstration.

The great interest which Representative Gardner of Massachusetts has aroused by his campaign for an investigation on the preparedness of the United States for war was indicated by the introduction today of three bills on the subject of the national defense and two resolutions along similar lines. One of these bills—to create a Council of National Defense—was introduced by Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, the Democratic Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, while one of the resolutions was presented by Senator Lewis of Illinois, the Democratic Whip.

American neutrality in the European war was brought to the attention of the Senate in a bill presented by Mr. Hitchcock of Nebraska, a prominent Democrat of the Committee on Foreign Relations, prohibiting the shipment of arms and ammunition from the United States to any country at war with a country with which the United States is at peace.

Another measure of general interest was embodied in a joint resolution sponsored by Senator Pomerene of Ohio, a Democratic member of the Committee of the Judiciary, giving thirty days' grace to persons failing to pay war taxes due on Dec. 1 through inability to obtain the necessary internal revenue stamps. Mr. Pomerene's measure would legalize a liberal ruling already made by the Treasury Department practically suspending penalties in cases where the taxpayers had been unable to get stamps.

A score of measures were dropped into the basket of the House, while a far greater number of bills, mostly of a local and personal character, were presented in the Senate.

Vice President Marshall called the Senate to order after prayer by the Rev. Mr. Prettyman, the Senate's Chaplain, and seventy-six Senators answered to their names. An order was made fixing noon as the daily meeting hour of the Senate. A resolution was adopted informing the House of the Senate's readiness for business, and a committee of two—Mr. Kern of Indiana, the Democratic leader, and Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire, the Republican leader—was named to join a similar committee from the House to inform the President of the convening of Congress and invite his communications. The Senate thereupon took a recess till 3 o'clock, when the committee reported that the President would communicate with Congress in person tomorrow in the hall of the House at 12:30 P. M.

There was a little sober fun in the Senate when Mr. Robinson of Arkansas, one of the younger Democrats, introduced a resolution directing the Committee on Foreign Relations to investigate a report printed this morning in a local newspaper to the effect that the books of the Mexican Treasury showed that $75,000 had been paid to two American Senators to obtain their influence for the removal of the American troops from Vera Cruz. The report said that the money had been telegraphed to R. Zubaran Capmany, the local representative of Gen. Carranza. Mr. Robinson proposed that Mr. Zubaran be haled before the committee to explain his part, if any, in the affair.

Other Senators were plainly amused by the serious view Mr. Robinson took of the publication. Mr. Gallinger objected to any reference of the resolution on the ground that the resolution would give to an irresponsible and scurrilous rumor an importance it would not otherwise have. Mr. Stone, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, begged to have his committee excused from the proposed investigation. His committee had some important business before it, he said, and should not be worried with matters of this sort.

"Mr. President," said Mr. Penrose of Pennsylvania, solemnly, "I ask that, as the Committee on Foreign Relations is overcrowded with business, this resolution be referred to the Committee on Additional Accommodations for the Library, of which I am Chairman. This committee never gets a bill or resolution of any kind and has had no meeting during the present Congress. If things of this sort are to be investigated, Congress will be overwhelmed and the work can only be done by a committee otherwise free."

But Mr. Smoot of Utah objected and the resolution went over until tomorrow.

The proceedings in the House were brief. The House named Representatives Underwood, Fitzgerald, and Mann to wait upon the President with Senators Gallinger and Kern, and then a resolution was adopted fixing 12:30 P. M. tomorrow as the time of the joint session with the Senate to hear President Wilson read his annual address. Then, after resolutions of sympathy on the death of Representative E. A. Merritt of New York had been adopted, the House adjourned at 1:09 P. M. until noon tomorrow.

HANAN SHOES
for Style, Fit and Wear

Why not figure the wear of shoes on a mileage basis, as you do for automobile tires?

If you do, nothing will ever induce you to buy another pair of "cheap" shoes. There is no such thing as a "cheap" shoe.

You can buy cheap leather—and it will wear like cardboard. You can buy cheap cotton stitching—and it will pull out like basting thread. But these things don't make a cheap shoe. They make a recklessly extravagant shoe.

Buy a pair of Hanan shoes and keep careful track of how they wear. We think that you will soon subscribe to the Hanan slogan—

Good shoes are an economy

The Difference

Your coat, hat and gloves need only appear well—your shoe, however, must be comfortable and "foot-healthful" as well. It therefore requires more experience, deeper knowledge and keener judgment to satisfy you as a shoe purchaser than as a buyer of any other wearable. Thus you must discriminate more finely in selecting your shoe shop.

The Martin and Martin organization knows thoroughly the science of shoe-selling.

HELLENSTEIN TO QUIT TODAY, SAYS REPORT

Coroner Not Accessible to Verify Rumor—Wife and Attorney Plead Ignorance.

WALLSTEIN NON-COMMITTAL

Medical Societies Co-operating in Inquiry—Insurance Records Said to be Here.

There was a persistent report yesterday that Coroner Herman Hellenstein, who has been the principal witness at the inquiry which Commissioner of Accounts Wallstein is conducting of the Coroner's office, would resign before he was again called to the stand. There was no public session yesterday and the Coroner did not appear at his office. When reporters called at his home, 275 East Seventh Street, they were told that he was out making calls. When a final attempt was made to reach him last night, Mrs. Hellenstein said he had gone out of town and would not be back until early this morning.

"I haven't heard anything about Dr. Hellenstein resigning," she said. "He won't have a thing to say to the newspapers. You had better ask his attorney, Frank Moss."

Mr. Moss said he had not seen Dr. Hellenstein all day. The Coroner, he said, had not talked to him at any time about resigning.

Commissioner Wallstein would not discuss the subject of resignations. He spent the day preparing for the sessions which are to come, and at which, he said, much illuminating information concerning cases which have gone through the Coroner's office will be brought out. A subpoena was sent to Coroner Hellenstein's home yesterday calling for his appearance as a witness this morning, and service was accepted by Mrs. Hellenstein, who said her husband would be on hand ready to continue his testimony. Whether Dr. Hellenstein will be questioned at length again today was not determined. Mr. Wallstein has also asked Coroners Frank Senior and Edward Wagner of Brooklyn to appear.

It was learned yesterday that the New York County Medical Society and the Academy of Medicine were co-operating with the Commissioner in his inquiry and were keeping an eye on the proceedings.

It is understood that the records withheld by the Travelers' Insurance Company of Hartford until Mr. Wallstein appealed to Superintendent of Insurance Frank Hasbrouck for aid in obtaining them, have been sent to New York and would be produced today. Mr. Wallstein hopes to obtain information concerning charges that in two cases a Coroner's physician demanded money from the company in return for information to which the company was entitled without payment.

DIVIDE ON MARKET PLAN.

Controller Opposes Free Stands While Marks Upholds Them.

The question of the right of the city to establish free markets was discussed yesterday at a public hearing before the Committee on Markets of the Aldermen in the Aldermanic chamber at the City Hall. The room was crowded with those in favor and those opposed to the proposal. Controller Prendergast spoke vigorously against the establishment of free markets, while Borough President Marks led the forces favorable to them. The partisans were about equally divided, and the speakers were either roundly cheered or hissed.

Among the large number of women present in favor of free markets were Mrs. A. M. Palmer, President of the Rainy Day Club; Mrs. Charles Hirst, President of the Daily Food Alliance; Miss Millie Thorne of the Stage Children's Club; Mrs. Richard M. Meade, Mrs. Marion Gold Lewis, representing the Democratic Women's Club; Mrs. J. F. Yawger of the West Side Markets Commission; Mrs. C. H. Suffern, Vice President of the Woman Suffrage Party; Miss Anne Rhodes, Mrs. Marcus M. Marks, Mrs. Frances Higgins Cabot, Mrs. Hobart Porter, Mrs. Guy Wilkinson, and Mrs. Florence Spiegelberg.

Dr. Flower Gets Two Years.

Dr. Richard C. Flower, who was arrested in Toronto on Oct. 21, after he had been a fugitive from justice for eleven years, was sentenced to the penitentiary for two years yesterday by Justice Davis in the Criminal Term of the Supreme Court on two grand larceny indictments.

Not Guilty, Sullivan Plea.

David A. Sullivan was brought to Brooklyn from Sing Sing yesterday, and pleaded not guilty before County Judge Hylan, to three new indictments, found last week, charging grand larceny in thefts of funds from the Union Bank of Brooklyn.

the stack with giant derricks. They hope they won't have to tear the house away from it.

HIGHEST TIDES SINCE 1903.

Great Damage Along Sound—Telegraph Wires Down.

Traffic along the waterfront, on the North and East Rivers, and at many places in the greater city and the suburbs, was severely affected for several hours yesterday when the full force of the northeast storm, driven by winds, reached a maximum violence and brought with it the heaviest flood here since 1903. The river tides were lifted close to the high-water record, piers and ferry stages on the Jersey side were submerged, hundreds of basements in business places on South and West Streets were flooded and thousands of subway diggers were driven out by the waters in the Lexington Avenue, Broadway, and Seventh Avenue lines.

At Far Rockaway, Coney Island, Arverne, and Sea Gate severe property damage was done. Houses and sections of piers were swept away by the pounding of terrific seas. At noon the first note of misfortune came from Arverne to the Department of Docks at Pier A, North River, when Edward Margolies, a property owner there, telephoned this message:

"My restaurant building and pavilion has just been carried away. I lost my theatre here last January in the same way."

Thirty feet of the Dreamland Pier at Coney Island was pounded to broken timbers. A foot of water over the tracks of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit shuttle line between Brighton and Coney Island shut off the service in the afternoon.

Last night waves were beating against the walls of the Brighton Beach and Oriental Hotels, but it was believed that both buildings would withstand the storm. Some fear was expressed for the safety of the municipal baths at Coney Island.

Breakers undermined the $20,000 cottage of the estate of A. M. Meyer at Sea Gate, and then the flood floated it seaward across the sands, where the heavy bombardment of the giant waves threatened to destroy it completely.

Herbert E. Jones and his family, living in their cottage adjoining the ground of the Meyer estate, became alarmed for their safety last night and moved with their personal effects to the home of a neighbor. Though water reached the cottage it had not been damaged, but the bulkhead on the beach side was broken for forty feet. Mr. Jones and other property owners had a force of 100 men at work trying to repair the break with bags.

The high boardwalk at Rockaway Beach was covered with water and its resistance threatened. The flood at the Jamaica Bay trestle tied up operation of the electric trains for more than an hour. The first floors of houses at Far Rockaway were invaded by the water that made the ocean front streets impassable. Sections of the shore front were cut out at Edgemere and some damage was done to the Hotel Lorraine, while the bulkhead of the Edgemere Club, which replaced the damage on Jan. 6, stood the strain triumphantly. Fifty feet of the boardwalk was carried away at Stern Avenue at Arverne.

In Manhattan, Brooklyn, and the Bronx the traffic delay was widely felt. From 11 to 1 o'clock the ferries of the Erie Railroad at Jersey City had to be closed because of the flooded landing stages. Water flooded the plaza leading to the train sheds, and extended a quarter of a mile along Pavonia Avenue. Traffic was shifted to the Hudson tunnels, which were not affected except where water poured into the entrances and exits and had to be bailed out. Portions of the tunnel roof and walls of the station at Hoboken were soaked by seepage from the streets.

At the Lackawanna Station at Hoboken the slips were submerged and passengers were transferred from the boats on the deck-landing stages. All team and automobile traffic was excluded from the Erie and Lackawanna ferries until the tide dropped in the afternoon.

Local business was also handicapped by trouble with telegraph wires. The Western Union Telegraph Company issued this notice last night:

> Owing to the severe storm business will be subject to delay for all points east of New York, including Boston and Providence. Business will be subject to delay for Buffalo, N. Y., and all points west, including Chicago; also for all points in Pennsylvania, except Philadelphia, and for all points west of Philadelphia.

Boston was completely cut off by wire with both the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies. Poles and wires were down in so many sections of territory that it was impossible to announce when the full service would be restored. Messages were sent via southern wires to Buffalo.

At 10 P. M. last night there were no wires connecting with Toronto, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Boston, and Chicago.

At the Department of Docks the tide registers showed more than 8 feet 7 inches above normal low water and more than 3 feet 6 inches above the normal high tide. This is a record since Oct. 10, 1903.

STORM CHURNS UP HARBOR.

Liners' Sailing Postponed—Incoming Ships Delayed.

The northeast storm caused great delay yesterday to incoming and outgoing shipping. It had been blowing for thirty-six hours and a very heavy sea had been kicked up. The Italian liners Duca degli Abruzzi and Europe, which were to have sailed during the day for Naples filled with Italians going home for the holidays, remained at their piers and will probably leave early today. The Cunarder Orduna, the White Star liner Megantic, both from Liverpool, and the French Line steamship Rochambeau, from Havre, with Ambassador Herrick on board, were delayed by the storm, but are expected to arrive today.

The greatest velocity of the wind in the harbor yesterday was fort-eight miles in the forenoon. It was then blowing sixty-five miles off Sandy Hook, where the sea was so rough outside that incoming ships could not pick up their pilots, and the few outgoing vessels that left port had to carry them on.

At Staten Island the waves broke with such force against the St. George Municipal Ferry docks that the old fireboat David A. Boody, once the boast of New York Harbor, was smashed against a pier and sank in eighteen feet of water. The watchman was on board in his cabin at the time the Boody was swung from her moorings and was thrown off his feet when the return wave dashed her against the pier. While the fireboat was pounding her sides in he managed to jump ashore.

The David A. Boody was built in 1892 and remained in active service for the Fire Department until the new boats replaced her.

Several incoming steamships sent out wireless messages stating that they could not make headway against the gale and had been compelled to anchor. The Russian-American Line steamship Dwinsk, from Newcastle, England, via Halifax, anchored outside the Ambrose Channel Lightship and the steamship Texas from Claymont, Del., to Bayonne, N. J., reported that she had been anchored sixty miles east of the Scotland Lightship in the storm since noon on Sunday.

The Captain of the Savannah Line steamship City of St. Louis reported early in the morning that his vessel was making only four knots headway against the storm. She docked early in the afternoon.

ATLANTIC CITY BATTERED.

Highest Tides in 25 Years—Families Abandon Homes.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 7.—Buffeted by winds which reached more than sixty miles in velocity and washed by waves which, climbing the Boardwalk swept 100 yards up the avenues, this resort tonight was battered and bruised to a worse extent than at any previous time in its history. Rivers of sea water which cut channels for themselves through the sand and along paved thoroughfares have made islands of the Margate and Longport sections and in the latter the Widener Memorial Home is isolated, completely surrounded by the ocean.

Scores of families in these two sections and in Ventnor abandoned their homes, leaving behind them everything but the clothes they could carry. Hundreds of cottages and hotels along the waterfront have been inundated. The high tides have smashed all records for a quarter of a century.

SEABRIGHT UNDER WATER.

Town at Point of Surrender—Damage Already Near $200,000.

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Dec. 7.—This town, which withstood the terrific storms of last January, is at the point of surrender tonight to a storm which has lasted already for forty-eight hours and which continues with seemingly slightly lessened vigor. Streets are two feet deep in water, piers and bulkheads are masses of twisted iron, and splintered wood wehe anything at all remains to mark the spots they occupied. Houses are undermined, and some have sunk into the sea.

Tonight Seabright is practically isolated except for wire communication with the outer world. The railroad tracks are submerged, and traffic had to be abandoned early today. Half a mile of tracks and sleepers were washed out of place, swept along on the giant waves, and deposited on the boulevard.

Already many residents of the town have given up the battle. Some have moved to the Borough of Rumson, while others have gone to Red Bank and Long Branch. Many have had to abandon their belongings, for there is no way of moving them. Unless the storm abates and the waves subside the damage will be tremendous. Already it is close to $200,000.

The last safeguard of the town—the bulkhead raised by popular subscription—has fallen at last and the waves, whipped forward by the gale, are sweeping into the streets in torrents. The Octagon bathhouses, which withstood the two storms a year ago, are rocking like a cradle now and are liable to fall at any moment.

Clerks in the First National Bank did business today arrayed in rubber boots, in which they stood in two inches of water, but unless the storm ceases there is no surety that business can be continued even under these conditions. The entire west end has been devastated. Nothing remains there but a few cottages. The Peninsula bathhouse, which stood on a long pier, was smashed to splinters.

ENGLISH FIRE HOLDERS, $330

Highest Price of Day at Dearden Sale—Total to Date, $51,503.

Miss Jean Webster, author of "Daddy Long-Legs," was one of the purchasers at the sale of the Dearden collection at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon. A pair of old English fire holders, big brass cylinders, setting in a circular frame, formed of turned rungs, and bound with brass, brought the highest price of the day, $330. A beautiful and unusual cut steel fender of the eighteenth century, went to W. James for $100, and an Oriental metal temple hanging with five pendants ending with bells went to William Hall for $95.

A pair of seventeenth century crane candlesticks brought $85; a seventeentht century fire set, four pieces, sold for $77.50. A big Italian sixteenth century plaque went to William Hall for $77.50, and two other plaques and a deep dish, Italian, sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, went to the same buyer for $135. Charles A. Cass paid $50 for a pair of eighteenth century brass candlesticks.

An interesting pair of old English tinder-box candlesticks, 4¾ inches high, went to Seaman, agent, for $60, and a pair of English door scrapers, in the shape of lyres of brass, went to W. James for $60.

The returns for the day were $5,493, making the total to date $51,503. The sale will be concluded this afternoon, when many more interesting old metals will be sold.

HORSE SHOW OPENS WHILE STORM RAGES

Few People Turn Out for Bugle Call, but Attendance Increases in Evening.

SOLDIERS RIDE TO GARDEN

Mounted Men Wet and Muddy as They Enter Ring After Ten-Mile Ride from Van Cortlandt Park.

That it was essentially a horse show was the one thing that forced itself on attendants at the Charity Horse Show, which opened at Madison Square Garden yesterday. No one could charge it with being a "clothes show." The rain made that an impossibility, and only the bravest among the women faced such unfavorable conditions to see the horses shown in the ring. But in spite of the rain and wind the rail about the ring was crowded at night by a ring two or three deep of men and women who were there to see the horses, and hardly gave a glance at the fringe of humanity in the boxes. Nineteen classes were judged in the three sessions, and all of them called out good-sized classes and types of horses that were far above the average, as the day was devoted to what were practically the novices.

While the Garden was less elaborately decorated than it has been in some years past at such events, there was a sufficient covering of the bareness of the walls and the skeleton roof with the red and white bunting of the American Horse Show Association and a well-ordered assembling of lights to make it warm and cheerful. Incidentally, too, the colors told the story of the purpose of the show, which is to raise funds for the work of the Red and White Cross Societies among the sufferers through the war in Europe. Neatly gowned young women walked about the wide promenade and sold candies to add to the funds, which under the discouraging conditions of the opening William T. Koch, the Treasurer, said he expected the advance sale of tickets would reach somewhere between $10,000 and $12,000, this being based on an estimated taking for admissions during the week of $20,000.

There was a disappointment to the management at the opening of the afternoon session, when the advertised reproduction of the famous Rosa Bonheur painting, "The Horse Fair," had to be postponed because the firm of horse dealers which had agreed to furnish the 200 horses for the staging of the painting refused to send their horses to the Garden on the ground that to send them out into the storm would so endanger them that they declined to take the risk. So that feature had to be abandoned. But as there was but a handful of people present at the hour at which the picture was to be produced the disappointment was confined mainly to the management.

Fine Lot of Saddlers.

There was no disappointment to the lovers of the horse who braved the storm, however, for the saddle classes in particular were as fine a lot of novice horses as ever showed in a ring anywhere, and the quality of the heavy harness classes was little, if any, behind that of the saddlers. The removal of the platform from the centre of the ring gave the horses a freedom of action such as never has been had before, as movement could be had through and across the centre of the ring. That fully recompensed the loss of the glamour of high hats, white shirt fronts, and white waistcoats which has always been so prominent at previous shows. The use of a gong to notify judges that the hour for decision in the classes in the ring had arrived, served to so keep them up to schedule that only in one class, that for ladies' saddle horses in the evening, was there a lapse over the scheduled time, and that reached only ten minutes. There was excuse for this in the fact that the class was so very evenly matched that the judges were hesitant as to which one of the many clever horses shown was entitled to the ribbon, and it was only after the closest examination that the blue went to John A. Hartford's bay mare Gossip, ridden by Miss Louise Beaver-Webb.

Of the evening classes the one that seemed to excite the most interest was that for tandems, in which ten teams of exceptional excellence competed. The lights and music made some of the horses fret when they first came to the ring, but once the leaders found their places and the wheelers their places the procession, as the splendidly groomed, correctly harnessed, and sleek animals moved about the ring, was a sight that delighted the eyes of the horsemen and recalled the days in the early history of the horse shows, when Burton Mansfield, Charley Bates, Freddy Gebhard, Berry Wall, and T. Suffern Tailer drove their teams about the ring or in the annual tandem parade through Central Park. It was far the best showing of horses and turn-outs of this type seen for years, and elicited about the liveliest applause of any of the displays, for he whose taste runs to horses always has had a liking for this way of hitching and driving.

Military Ride of Ten Miles.

What was to have been the spectacular event of the opening day was marred by the weather. This was the endurance race for the Army Challenge Cup, which started at the stables of Squadron A, Van Cortlandt Park, and finished in the ring in the Garden.

In the teeth of a forty-mile gale from the northeast and with the rain coming down at about its worst for the day, six of the eight men entered for the race got the word from Major Charles E. Benton at the old Colonial residence in the park at 2 o'clock. They set out on their ten-mile journey, which took them from the park across the dirt road by the Aqueduct over to the Concourse, which was followed as far as 164th Street. Thus far the riders went in a compact bunch with Corporal A. S. Blodgett of Squadron A and Lieut. T. Harry Shanton of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G., N. Y., setting the pace for the party. At that point there was a split, some of the riders going down Jerome Avenue and thence on to the Harlem River, while others took the Lenox Avenue route to Central Park, the routes being optional with the riders.

Entering Central Park for the run down the east drive to Fifth Avenue and thence down to the Garden, Corporal Blodgett led the way, rider and horse being bedraggled and weather-beaten objects as they made their way down that centre of fashionable driving. Before reaching the park the single regular army officer who undertook the trip, Capt. J. M. Burroughs of the Second Cavalry, who had never been over the route, lost his bearings in the pouring rain and got so far off the route eventually that he gave it up and cantered to the Garden as best he could from indefinite directions given by such stray people as he could discover out in the storm.

All of the riders escaped falls on the asphalt pavements, though one of the riders went to his knees a couple of times and fetched up in the ring with his horse so lame that he was hardly able to stumble to his place in the judges' ring at the Garden.

When the first of the riders, Corporal Blodgett, reached the Garden the ring was occupied by the members of Troop I of the Second Cavalry, then engaged in giving a sabre drill. Blodgett had made the trip in fifty-five minutes. Two minutes later Lieut. Shanton appeared. Then after an interval of five minutes First Sergeant Arthur Hofmann and Sergt. George Swan, both members of Battery D, First Field Artillery, put in an appearance, followed five minutes later by Private Buckley of the same command. These five were the only ones to finish in the time limit of an hour and a half. The horses of the first two had a chance to get a breathing spell before they were admitted to the ring, where Gen. A. L. Mills, U. S. A., awarded the cup to Corporal Blodgett, who finished first, though Lieut. Shanton, who was second to finish, did no better than get fourth place in the awards. Condition of horse and rider at the end of the run was that on which the award was based, elapsed time of the run being but an incident to the award. Horses owned by the Golden Pansy Farms Company, of which M. A. Mosle, a former Squadron A member, is manager, were placed second and third.

Mounted on bay horses with black points, all clipped and beautifully groomed, thirty-two members of Troop I, Second Cavalry, under command of Lieut. George H. Brett, all of the troop that could ride abreast in the Garden ring, gave a fine exhibition of how horses may be ridden in unison to the music of the members of their regimental band.

IN RING WITH JUDGES.

Fair-Sized Fields Mark First Day of Show at Garden.

When a khaki-attired bugler took up his stand in the centre of the ring, and as the echo of "Boots and Saddles" died away five mares suitable for breeding polo ponies entered the arena, and the Charity Horse Show had started. It was a fairly representative class, and included two or three likely-looking matrons. After being put through their paces under the watchful eye of Francis M. Ware, the judge, the honor of annexing the first "blue" of the show fell to Samuel Russell, Jr., who exhibited the black mare Ebonite.

A well-balanced field was shown in the class suitable to become hunters. The entries were not compelled to take the jumps, but were judged entirely on their possibilities as hunters. S. Bryce Wing, the importer of the Irish jumper Alarm, now the property of E. B. McLean, who has a number of entries in different classes, carried off the palm with the strapping big bay gelding Jed Stuart, who has all the earmarks of a useful and efficient middleweight hunter. The runner-up and a strong contender for the honors was Ragtime, shown and hunted by A. Henry Higginson, M. F. H. of the Middlesex Hounds.

There were seven pairs of novices in the opening harness class, a particularly showy event. The Bushnell pair, The Governor and The General, carried off first honors. Emil Selig, although not getting the blue, managed to garner the lion's share of the ribbons by taking second and third with Nightingale and Meadowlark and Flashlight and Gray Bird in the order named.

Paul Moore, son of Judge Moore, carried off his first blue ribbon in the class for novice harness horses, which attracted sixteen entries. Mr. Moore drove the chestnut mare Jessica, and although opposed by many professional drivers, he had no difficulty in impressing the judges and spectators with the superiority of his entry.

A fine lot of harness ponies was shown in the class assigned to ponies above 13.2 hands, and not exceeding 14.2 hands. The blue went to Walter H. Hawley's Bit o' Fashion, a really stylish little mare, with lots of action and plenty of speed. Two women riders carried off the first and second prizes in the saddle class for horses suitable to carrying up to 160 pounds. The blue went to Powelton Farm's Kilkee, ridden by Miss Tompkins, while Miss Helen Preece took the red with Sceptre, a typical show horse that has won many ribbons at previous exhibitions.

The first of the ladies' saddle events was held in the evening. This was for horses over 15.2 hands, up to carrying 160 pounds. There were nineteen entries, with seventeen showing. Women were riding who have gained laurels in the ring at Olympic and on the Continent.

The judges put them through their paces in fast time. After a weeding-out process, which left six from which to select the winners, and considerable deliberation, the officials gave the blue to the Kentucky-bred mare Gossip, ridden by Miss Louise Webb. Miss Belle Beach, on The Minx, owned by Miss Clemence Crafts, secured the red, making the second prize of the day for this gelding, which is a handsome animal and an ideal saddle horse for a lady.

The surprise of the day came in the tandem class, which had ten entries and eight to show, the largest number of pairs in this division to enter the ring at the Garden in the last six years, and when the blue went to a comparatively unknown competitor the astonishment was increased.

It was the finest display of teams seen in the arena for many shows. The judges went carefully over every pair of entrants before they finally awarded the blue ribbon to A. W. Atkinson of Camden, N. J., who showed Watton Treasure and Supreme Polonius. This team beat F. M. Warburg's noted blacks, Woodlands Emperor and Woodlands Countess, the victors at many previous shows. While surprising, the victory of the New Jersey owner was a popular one. The awards:

Pony Brood Mares, Suitable for Breeding Polo Ponies.—Won by Samuel Russell, Jr.'s, Ebonite; Miss Constance Sala Regan's Primrose, second; Thomas J. Regan's Judith, third; Paradise Farm's Queen Anne, fourth.

Shetland Pony Stallions.—Won by Broadlawn Farm's Angus; Broadlawn Farm's Alert, second; John G. Voight's Hans V., third; John J. Dixon, Jr.'s, Piedmont, fourth.

Jumpers, up to Carrying 140 Pounds.—Won by Homewood Stables' David Gray, Hobart D. Betts's Highbinder, second; Homewood Stables' Nancy Pansy, third; Edward B. McLean's Alarm, fourth.

Harness Ponies.—Won by Walter H. Hawley's Bit o' Fashion; Broadlawn Farm's Bantam King, second; Bushnell Farm's Irvington Nelly, third; Broadlawn Farm's Sequel, fourth.

Saddle Horses up to carrying 160 pounds.—Won by Powelton Farm's Kilkee; Miss Helen Preece's Sceptre, second; Powelton Farm's Bella, third; Walter H. Hawley's Glittering Glory, fourth.

Pairs of Harness Horses over 14.2 and not exceeding 15.1 hands.—Won by Emil Seelig's Eve and Sauve; Bushnell Farm's Gipsy Girl and Gipsy Queen, second; Broadlawn Farm's Pandora and Adnora, third; Emil Seelig's Kathleen F. and Polonius of Maplewood, fourth.

Ladies' Saddle Horses up to carrying 160 pounds.—Won by John A. Hartford's Gossip; Miss Clemence Craft's The Monk, second; Miss Marion du Pont's Twenty-four Karat, third; W. A. McGibbon's Radiant, fourth.

Tandems; horses not exceeding 15.1 hands.—Won by A. W. Atkinson's Walton Treasure and Supreme Polonius; Broadlawn Farm's The Whip and Mate, second; F. M. Warburg's Woodlands Emperor and Woodlands Countess, third; Bushnell Farm's The Governor and The General, fourth.

Hunters—thoroughbred, green and qualified.—Won by Miss Vira Cornell's Rock Cress, (Dick Donnelly up;) Arthur A. Fowler's Gold Pitcher, second; George Chipchase's Sapolio, third; P. A. Clark's Flying Machine, fourth.

KNITTING AT HORSE SHOW.

Ladies Make Socks and Mufflers While Classes Are Being Judged.

What social interest there was gave an impetus to the first day of the Charity Horse Show, although the storm and the opera kept some of the boxholders away last night.

A novel feature of the afternoon show was the spectacle of women knitting socks and mufflers for the European soldiers, both in the arena seats and in the boxes. While the classes were shown needles flashed under the electric glare of a thousand bulbs.

Last night the Golden Box, which is for distinguished guests, and which takes its name from the gilt chairs, was occupied by a party from Governors Island and Gen. Leonard Wood had planned to be present, but left earlier in the day for Oklahoma on a tour of inspection. The party consisted of Col. W. A. Simpson, Col. W. E. Horton, Capt. Chauncey B. Humphrey, Lieut. McAlpin, Capt. G. H. Scott, Major Gen. and Mrs. James E. Normoyle, Miss Normoyle, Lieut. and Mrs. Goodwin, and Lieut. G. W. Simpson, U. S. N., and Mrs. Simpson.

Mrs. G. Jason Waters, wife of the Chairman of the Executive Committee, had Mrs. Frank Ware of Boston as her guest last night; Miss Eleonor Sears was a visitor last night, coming with Mrs. Paul Moore of Morristown, N. J. Former Police Commissioner William McAdoo and Mrs. McAdoo were among the spectators, also Arthur Scott Burden, Joseph Widener, Foxhall Keene, Frederic Sturgis, Mrs. Ralph H. Thomas, who is a boxholder; Mr. and Mrs. William du Pont, Charles Montagu Ward, Miss Frances M. Ward, Miss Caroline Cox, and Miss Caryl Hackstaff.

Mrs. Paul D. Cravath and her daughter, Miss Vera Cravath, were in attendance during the afternoon session, also Mr. and Mrs. William Ziegler, Jr., who entertained a party in Box 20; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Renwick, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Haight, Miss Beatrice Burrill, and Mrs. Bernard M. Baruch, who had Miss Sophie M. Pond, who is an exhibitor, with her.

Among the boxholders for the week are William T. Koch, John L. Bushnell, T. B. Van Every, J. J. Olmstead, Harry D. Holloway, Alfred G. Vanderbilt, W. R. Cole, John McE. Bowman, David D. Dick, Robert J. Morse, M. M. Stettson, T. M. Sherman, Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, T. B. Hollingsworth, Mrs. Allen D. Loney, Mrs. Walter Lewisohn, Major A. P. Palmer, Walter H. Hanley, Conrad T. Van Antwerp, Dr. Thomas G. Ashton, A. A. Du Bouque, Henry G. Slocum, J. H. Black, Mrs. A. W. Atkinson, Mrs. Frederick Lewisohn, Mrs. W. Watts Sherman, Mrs. T. Torry Johnson, F. F. Cummings, Mrs. A. G. Van Liew, John Gerken, Mrs. W. A. McGibbon, and H. H. Allen.

10:50 P. M.—Twenty-two hunters or jumpers, five-foot jump; class 121.

McVEA BOXES LIGHTWEIGHT.

Big Negro Shows Speed in Practice Bout with Lewis.

"After looking at some of these husky negro fighters like Jack Johnson Sam Langford, Jim Johnson, Sam McVea, it doesn't seem as though the so-called white hope movement will make any progress until the big negroes are all out of the way." So spoke a man well up on matters of sport who was one of a party that paid a visit yesterday to the training quarters of Sam McVea, who is matched with Jim Johnson at the Fairmont A. C. on Thursday.

"These big blacks are all such enormously powerful fellows that the average white fighter like Al Reich, Gunboat Smith, Colin Bell, and Bombardier Wells compare so poorly physically with them that it takes most of the interest away right at the start, even though a match is made. True, Willard is matched, or supposed to be, with Jack Johnson, and Willard is one of our biggest white fighters since Jeffries, but the only chance Willard has is the ten years' difference in their ages. Willard is 27.

"Then we have had promising big fellows like Carl Morris, Luther McCarty, and Tom Kennedy. While they were all 200-pounders, stand them up alongside of Jim Johnson, Jack Johnson, and Sam McVea and see how bulkier and brawnier the negroes look. There is something about the heft of the negro which is more impressive. Stand the two Johnsons and McVea in a row and they will look like a train of cars."

Of the lot McVea is the shiftier on his feet. He has been whipped a number of times by Sam Langford, but the way he skipped around Dal Hawkins's gymnasium yesterday with the English lightweight, Kid Lewis, showed that he had improved a lot since he boxed here last, nearly eight years ago. Of course he didn't try to hit Lewis. On the other hand, Lewis rained blows on his face and nineteen-inch neck, but they were like the falling of dewdrops on the buttercups and daisies.

McVea yesterday gave Willard and his manager something to think over when he offered to post $10,000 that he can whip the big white hope in a twenty-round battle, to be staged wherever they permit contests of this length. "Tom Jones is always talking big figures," said McVea, "and here is a chance for him to get a lot of money. I suppose when Willard and his manager see the real currency that I will post they will draw the color line.

"Do you know," he said, while being rubbed down, "that I would feel more confident if I was to box Langford or Jeannette instead of Battling Jim. He is a strong fellow and a terrific hitter, and I hear that Wolcott and Armstrong are getting him in great shape. I figure that this is going to be the hardest bout I have ever been in. But I will be well prepared, and if he does beat me, I will have no alibi. If Johnson will keep his engagement with me for next April in Cuba, that $10,000 I am going to post can go as a side bet, if he wants to wager money on his chances."

Boxers' Forfeits Posted.

The appearance money for the Gunboat Smith-Jim Coffey match, which takes place at the Garden on Dec. 15, was posted yesterday by the managers of the fighters, each depositing a $250 forfeit with the club as per agreement. The conditioning of the principals is under full sway, Smith putting in a hard day's work at his Sheepshead Bay camp, while Coffey spent most of the afternoon at the Polo Club's gymnasium. Manager Gibson changed his mind about sending Coffey to Rye Beach on account of the severe weather.

BASEBALL MEN HERE FOR MEETING

While They Are Assembling Charles Dooin Announces He Will Jump to Federals.

Charles Dooin, the deposed manager of the Philadelphia National Club, caused a mild sensation at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday, where the National League club owners are assembling for their meeting today, by announcing to President William F. Baker that, after serving his ten-day notice, he would declare himself a free agent. Mr. Baker received the ultimatum without alarm, and said that Dooin was still the property of the Philadelphia Club, which would take the proper means to protect its assets.

Dooin had a long conference with a representative of the Federals. He denied, however, that he had talked business with the independent organization. Dooin is very much chagrined over the treatment he has received from the Philadelphia management. He asked for his unconditional release, which was refused. Dooin is the oldest catcher in the league in point of service, and believes that his faithful service deserves much consideration. Dooin claims that if he were a free agent he could place himself much better than if he was used in a trade by the Phillies. He refuses to be traded.

It is stated that the Phillies' new manager, Pat Moran, planned to use Dooin in a trade either with Boston or New York. Moran had a long conference with President Baker at the Waldorf yesterday, but they refused to say anything about Dooin's action. Both also denied that they had any trade in view which would bring Hans Lobert to the Giants.

Roger Bresnahan, recently appointed manager of the Cubs, circulated among the baseball men with President Thomas of the Chicago Club. Bresnahan emphatically spiked the rumor that Heinie Zimmerman, the Cubs' third baseman, would be used in any trade with the Giants. Bresnahan stated very forcibly that Zimmerman would stay with the Chicago Club. The new Cub manager did an unusual amount of whispering with several of the club owners, including President Baker of the Phillies and Barney Dreyfuss of the Pirates. It was stated that Bresnahan was trying to make a big trade with the Phillies.

Edward Trowbridge Collins of the Athletics was on hand, but he said his visit was simply a social affair. Collins said that if he was a candidate to manage the Yankees he did not know it.

George Stallings, the Miracle Man of the Boston Braves, breezed into town, completely recovered from the recent attack the stage made on him. It is not generally known, but during the week that Stallings played here in vaudeville he lost twenty pounds. During his visit to his Georgia plantation he got the twenty pounds back and some more. He had been taking a twenty-five-mile ride every day on his favorite charger.

Stallings says that this is the first year he has had a really fine cotton crop, and it's just his luck, he says, that there is no market for it. The Boston manager said that he had no trades in mind, but was completing arrangements for the Spring training camp, which will be at Macon. George Stallings says that there is a great demand for exhibition games with the world's champions throughout the South, and it will be impossible for the team to play in every city where they were wanted.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyns, was on hand and talked over the training plans of the Superbas with President Ebbets. A dozen or more Southern cities, from Florida to Texas, want to entertain the Dodgers next Spring. The most flattering offer comes from Daytona, Fla., where a Brooklyn business man has offered the club a new baseball park if they will train there. Robinson is anxious to take the Dodgers to Texas, where he has spent so many seasons training the Giants. "Robby" favors Texas above all other States for training purposes. Brooklyn has an option on the baseball park at Augusta, but it is not probable that Brooklyn will train there again, as they were greeted with snow and rain storms during their visit last Spring.

President H. N. Hempstead of the Giants last night gave a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria for the club Presidents of the National League. President John K. Tener presided.

Dick Rudolph of the Boston Braves met Manager Stallings yesterday and said:

"'Lo, Chief; how was your vaudeville act?"

"Awful," answered the Chief; "how was yours?"

"Same; shake."

MARQUARD AFFIDAVIT FILED.

It Affirms That "He Is Under No Binding Contract" with Giants.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—An affidavit in which R. W. (Rube) Marquard declares he is under no binding contract with any team other than the Brooklyn Federals, was received in the office of President Gilmore today, attached to the document in which the New York pitcher agrees to play for the Wards. The affidavit was made out in the office of John M. Barber, a notary of Westchester County, New York. Gilmore displayed the affidavit as an answer to charges that Marquard was under contract with the New York Nationals, hence could not legally join the Brooklyn team.

The Federal President also displayed a contract in which Ed Konetchy of the Pittsburgh Nationals agrees to play for the Pittsburgh Federals.

Irish-American Hockey Victory.

Jimmy Cree, the Indian hockey player on the Irish-American A. C. team, lived up to his reputation as a star player yesterday, when he made his first appearance of the season in a game at the Committee of Mercy benefit at the St. Nicholas Rink. The Indian played centre on the Winged Fist team against a combination picked from the several clubs in the Amateur Hockey League. The Irish-American team won the exhibition game by a score of 5 to 0, and had things all its own way from the start. Shea, one of Coach O'Brien's stars, also made a good showing, but the Irish-American coach was especially pleased with the work done by Cree.

Columbia Plays Poly Tonight.

Columbia will take on the Polytechnic Institute basket ball five tonight in the Morningside Heights gymnasium in the second home game of the series prior to the opening of the intercollegiate schedule. The Poly Institute lads trimmed the Brooklyn College team last week and expect to give the Blue and White quintet a hard game. Eckhard Calder, the new Columbia forward, is expected to play again tonight, and if he becomes as accurate at caging the ball as he is in passing he will bid fair to come out of the league the heaviest scorer of the association.

Harvard Athlete Under Knife.

BOSTON, Dec. 7.—Thomas Enright, Captain of the Harvard freshman football eleven, was successfully operated upon for appendicitis at a hospital here last night. Enright, whose home is in Fall River, is a prominent candidate for next year's Harvard 'Varsity team. Before entering Harvard Enright won fame as an athlete at Worcester and Phillips-Exeter Academies.

Richmond Hill Motor Cycle Club.

The Richmond Hill Motor Cycle Club held its first meeting on Friday, when it elected the following officers: Thomas Smith, Jr., President; James Adams, Treasurer; W. E. Bentzig, Secretary. There were thirty-seven members present. New headquarters will be announced in a short time, when the club will be ready to compete with all amateur motor cycle and bicycle riders.

SYRACUSE WANTS CLUB.

But High Terms Asked May Block Deal with Jersey City.

Spirited internal strife arose in the annual meeting of the International League at the Hotel Imperial yesterday over a proposed change in the organization's circuit, involving the transfer of the Jersey City and Baltimore clubs to other cities. On account of the deep inroads which the Federal League has made on the league's patronage, an important change is necessary. Both Baltimore and Jersey City were heavy losers last season.

William S. Devery, the former Chief of Police, and also a stockholder in the Yankees, controls the Jersey City club, and Thomas Fogarty is the President. It is stated that the owners are asking a price for the club which is considered too high. Devery and Fogarty are willing to sell or transfer their club, but they want their price and threaten to stick to it.

The Jersey City owners have received an offer for the club from promoters in Syracuse, and the Chamber of Commerce in that city has become interested and would like to land an International League club there. At yesterday's meeting were Nicholas Valentine and James D. Meehan, representing the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce. If they consent to meet Devery's terms the Jersey City club will go to Syracuse. The promoters have already obtained an option on a ball park there and have drawn up plans for a grand stand which will seat 25,000 people. The proposed grand stand is something unique in baseball, as the main grand stand has no posts to interfere with the spectator's view. Plans and sketches of the cantilever grand stand were shown at the league meeting, and the innovation was generally commended. The club owners talked over the proposed change for more than four hours yesterday, but Devery and Fogarty held fast to their part of the proposition and no definite agreement was reached.

W. S. Bradley, owner of the Richmond Club of the Virginia League, was also at the meeting and wants the Baltimore franchise transferred to Richmond. It is believed that if Bradley is able to get rid of the Richmond club and have it transferred to some other Southern city, the Baltimore club will be transferred to him. Mr. Bradley has the backing of promoters in his city, and there is a big demand there for Class A A baseball. Jack Dunn has had enough of baseball in Baltimore and is willing to move as soon as possible.

Another scheme of transfer which was discussed was to place the Jersey City club at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn, while still another was to shift the Baltimore club to Brooklyn in exchange for the Newark club, which is owned by Charles H. Ebbets and the McKeever brothers. According to this plan Jack Dunn was to manage the Newark club.

Neither of these two schemes was received with much favor, as the club owners did not believe that a minor league club would draw in Brooklyn. Charles H. Ebbets is very anxious to get out of the International League and says that one baseball club is enough to occupy his attention. Mr. Ebbets is anxious to sell out his interest in the Newark club, which amounts to more than 50 per cent. of the stock, and he is sorry now that he did not sell last year when he had the chance. Mr. Ebbets stated that he has had several offers for the club. One is said to be from Arthur Irwin of the Yankees, who represents a number of Newark promoters. One thing is quite certain, Brooklyn will not have an International League club next season.

When the club owners could come to no agreement on the transfer of the Baltimore and Jersey City clubs it was decided to place the matter in the hands of a committee made up of President Barrow, J. J. Lannin, Charles H. Ebbets, C. T. Chapin, and Jack Dunn. The committee will strive to make some disposition of the muddle during the present week, although President Barrow stated that he would not be surprised if it was not decided for several weeks.

The International League is making a strong effort to curtail its expenses and will operate next season at a much lower cost than last year. The matter of a salary limit was discussed. It is now $6,000 a month, but it is stated that it will be much lower next year. It is also proposed to reduce the player limit to seventeen men and also shorten the season from 154 to 140 games. The season, under this new arrangement, would open later and will close earlier.

Those present at the meeting were: President Edward G. Barrow, J. J. McCaffery, Toronto; Sam Lictenhein Montreal; J. J. Stein, Buffalo; C. T. Chapin, Rochester; Jack Dunn and C. H. Knapp, Baltimore; J. J. Lannin, Bill Donovan, and Steve Flanagan, Providence; C. H. Ebbets and Henry Medicus, Newark, and Thomas Fogarty and William S. Devery, Jersey City.

It was rumored that on account of the war baseball would not thrive next Summer in the two Canadian cities, Toronto and Montreal, but McCaffery and Lictenhein both stated that this was not true and that they have not even considered a plan to transfer their clubs on account of the war.

Before the league meeting yesterday the Board of Directors met and awarded the pennant to Providence. The league will meet again today at 10 o'clock.

BASEBALL PEACE DISCUSSED.

Herrmann Tells Other Owners What the "Feds" Offered as Compromise.

Following the dinner given to the National League club owners at the Waldorf-Astoria last night by President Hempstead of the Giants, a discussion of the Federal League took place which lasted several hours. August Herrmann of Cincinnati, who conducted the so-called peace negotiations with Charles Weeghman in Chicago, told the other club owners for the first time just what propositions for peace the Federals had to offer.

Although all of the club owners were very secretive about what transpired at this conference, it was stated that two or three different propositions for peace which the Federals offered in Chicago were revealed. It was understood that all of these so-called plans for peace demanded so much of Organized Baseball that they will not even be considered. The demands of the "Feds" were exorbitant.

The National Commission will hold a meeting today which will be of much importance, for it is believed that the commission realizes that the time has come when something radical will have to be done to stave off the high-handed raids of the Federals on players who are under contract. The situation looms up very seriously, and the "Feds," by taking the players they have in the last week, have given Organized Ball a scare which will surely spur them into some important action.

Braves Withdraw Conspiracy Suit.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 7.—The Boston National League Baseball Club withdrew its suit for conspiracy in the case of Pitcher Jack Quinn in the United States District Court here today. The suit was for $25,000 and was instituted against the Federal League, the Baltimore Federal League Club, James A. Gilmore, Edward Hanlon, Otto Knabe, and John Picus, which is the real name of Quinn. Counsel for the plaintiff stated in court that the Boston Club realized it would be difficult to collect damages for the loss of Quinn, inasmuch as without him the team had won the greatest possible honors in the baseball world.

Oldtimers in the Ring.

Danny Morgan, manager of Knockout Brown and Martin Julian, manager of Harry Ferns, met yesterday and agreed upon Patsy Haley, the club referee, as third man in the ring when their boys box Thursday night at the Pioneer Sporting Club on Forty-fourth Street. Ferns now weighs 137 pounds, which is within two pounds of the ringside weight agreed upon by both lightweights. Ferns says that he will have no difficulty making the stipulated poundage, and that he could make the 133-pound notch if necessary.

SPECTATORS HISS JUDGES.

Decision in Amateur Boxing Bouts at Newark Causes Uproar.

Spectators became disorderly at the National Turn Verein Hall at Newark last night at the amateur boxing tournament when they disagreed with the judges' decision in the second bout of the semi-final round of the 130-pound class. So pronounced did the manifestations of disapproval become that it was necessary to stop the tournament for nearly fifteen minutes. Hisses, hooting, and catcalls greeted the decision of the judges, and the disturbance was continued in spite of the efforts of the officials to stop it.

The uproar followed the bout between Benjamin Cohen, a student of the University of Pennsylvania, and John Jareki, Bay Beach A. C., of Jersey City, the New Jersey State 130-pound champion. Cohen outboxed and outfought his opponent in all of the three rounds, but the judges decided that the aggressiveness of the Jersey champion entitled him to the decision. After the men reached their dressing rooms Jareki admitted that he was beaten by the Quaker student.

New York boxers made an excellent showing in each of the three classes. A. Friedman, Educational Alliance, qualified for the finals in the 110-pound class, and Bernard Levine, unattached, of New York was returned the winner in the first bout of the 130-pound class. In the final rounds three New York boxers came through successfully. A. Friedman won from Joseph Genfey by default. The latter injured his hand in the semi-finals. The judges were unable to agree in the Levine-Jareki contest and the referee decided in favor of the New York amateur. The 140-pound final, which was left over from Saturday, was won by Walker Lawratt, West Side A. C., who defeated William Minardi of Jersey City. The referee stopped the contest in the second round to save Minardi from being knocked out. The summary:

110-Pound Class.—Semi-final Round—JoeGenfey, Newark, defeated William Harrison, unattached, New York, three rounds; A. Friedman, Educational Alliance, defeated John McDuff, Pennant A. C., New York City, three rounds.

130-Pound Class.—Semi-final Round—Bernard Levine, unattached, New York City, defeated William Newman, Bronx Church House, three rounds; John Jareki, Bay Beach A. C., Jersey City, defeated Benjamin Cohn, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, three rounds.

FINALS.

120-Pound Class.—Albert Thoma, National Turn Verein, defeated Elmer Wortman, National Turn Verein, three rounds.

110-Pound Class.—A. Friedman, Educational Alliance, defeated Joseph Genfey, Newark, by default. Genfey injured his hand.

130-Pound Class.—Bernard Levine, unattached, New York City, defeated John Jareki, Bay Head A. C., Jersey City, three rounds. Judges disagreed; referee's decision.

140-Pound Class.—Walter Lawratt, West Side A. C., New York City, defeated William Minardi, Happy Bunch Club, Jersey City, two rounds. Referee stopped bout.

TAYLOR DEFEATS PAGE.

Long-Drawn-Out Match in National Squash Tennis Tournament.

The first two rounds of the national squash tennis handicap tournament were completed yesterday in the courts of the Columbia University Club at Gramercy Park. In addition to the completion of the early rounds, four matches have been decided in the round before the semi-final. The match between J. Taylor, Princeton, and F. S. Page, Heights Casino, developed into one of the best contests of the tournament. Ninety-five games, covering three hard-fought sets, were required before the Princeton player was returned the winner by the score of 15—12, 17—18, 18—15.

From the start the players appeared evenly matched, and no long runs were made during the three sets. Taylor was rated at one hand, while Page received one hand five points handicap. The latter played a strong game from the back and side walls and kept his shots low, but Taylor's aggressiveness and general all-around play were successful in the end. The last two sets were carried to deuce.

K. C. Stern, Princeton, continued his good playing, and advanced a round at the expense of A. Dana, Harvard, in a two-set match. Stern was aided by a liberal handicap, while E. du Pont Irving, another Crimson player, easily won from A. Scott, Columbia. The summary:

National Squash Tennis Handicap.—Second Round—J. Taylor, Princeton, (1 hand,) defeated F. S. Page, Heights Casino, (1 hand plus 5,) 15—12, 17—18, 18—15; K. C. Stern, Princeton, (2 hands plus 5,) defeated A. Dana, Harvard, (1 hand,) 18—17, 15—11.

Third Round—E. du Pont Irving, Harvard, (scratch,) defeated A. Scott, Columbia, (1 hand plus 5,) 18—17, 15—7.

PENN'S SOCCER TITLE.

Quakers Clinched Championship When They Defeated Princeton.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Dec. 7.—Although the association football season of the Intercollegiate League will not close until Dec. 19, Pennsylvania clinched the championship Saturday when the Red and Blue team defeated Princeton and Yale won from Columbia. Second place will be decided when Harvard plays Columbia next Saturday at Cambridge. The Crimson needs only a draw with the New Yorkers to get the place, having won two games, lost one, and tied two, while Columbia has won two, lost two, and tied one. Under the rules of the league, a victory counts two points while a draw counts one.

Pennsylvania will play Haverford here on Dec. 12, while Yale meets Haverford in the final game of the season on Dec. 19. Cornell and Princeton have played all their scheduled games. The league standing to date is:

	Won.	Lost.	Drawn.	Pts.
Pennsylvania	4	0	1	9
Harvard	2	1	2	6
Columbia	2	2	1	5
Cornell	1	1	4	6
Princeton	1	2	3	5
Yale	1	2	2	4
Haverford	0	3	1	1

Syracuse Wants Olympic Games.

Of the many cities which have entered the field for the promotion of the 1916 Olympic Games, which may have to be shifted from Berlin, Syracuse, N. Y., is the latest. Nicholas Valentine, representing the Chamber of Commerce of Syracuse, will make a bid for the games, through the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union. Mr. Valentine will see Frederick W. Rubien, President of the Metropolitan Association, probably this afternoon to extol the merits of Syracuse as the place for holding the international games. That the upstate city is in a position to stage the games Mr. Valentine does not doubt, for the University of Syracuse, where the games would take place, has an up-to-date athletic stadium that can accommodate 40,000 spectators, as well as possessing every modern athletic convenience. It has a quarter-mile cinderpath that compares favorably with any in the country.

COLUMBIA CUEIST WINS DECISIVELY

Appleby So Extraordinary in Class C Tournament That It Occasions Talk of Protest.

Edgar T. Appleby, the Columbia University billiardist, yesterday afternoon, in the opening game of the Class C 18.2 billiard championship at Doyle's Academy, scored so easily against his opponent, Julian Rice, also a Columbia man, that many of the other aspirants for the title, who saw the game, were not only discouraged but seemed to feel that they had been almost duped. Appleby made the creditable average of 7 4-28, and as that is almost Class A billiards, the prediction was freely made that he would run out winner without any material opposition. There was also talk of protesting the Columbia student, but this did not carry any weight, for the Executive Committee had accepted his entry as being within the jurisdiction of Class C, and protests now will be ignored. The supposed ground for a protest was that in the tournament last season during the preliminary round Appleby established a grand average which is just a fraction over 5, but as this was not made in the actual championship event the committee considered him eligible for play. Appleby defeated his college mate by the one-sided score of 200 to 87.

The winner showed himself a masterful cueist. He opened the game with a blank, but immediately came back with a run of 31, and assumed a lead which was never wrested from him. This first run gave a taste of the kind of billiards to be expected. His stroke was working smoothly, and he clicked off the count by rapid play, in which his position was at all times excellent. He played what might be termed a dashing game. He knew his opponent, and realized that Rice was not his equal in any department. With no fear of defeat to harass him, he ran out the match in twenty-eight innings. There was not the usual recourse to safety which marks so many of the amateur games, and which brings them down to the point of being monotonous.

Whether the Columbia student will have as easy a time in the future games is something of a question. He is not as strong a tournament player as his brother, Francis Appleby, who tied for first place in last year's event. Undoubtedly the fact of having the game well in hand gave him a confidence which might be wholly lacking when he is pitted against an opponent who can put forth a strong game in the early innings. It will be the lack of tournament experience that will count against him, for Maurice Daly rates him, as far as playing and knowledge of the game is concerned, practically the equal of his brother, and yesterday he described Appleby as one of the most promising young players that has ever come under his notice.

In the afternoon match he made his high run of the game in the fourteenth inning, when he gathered a cluster of 43. It was a wonderful exhibition of billiard technique, and he almost repeated during the next inning with a run of 39.

In the evening game C. P. Mathews scored a victory over M. J. Doyle by a score of 200 to 117. Both men seemed to be a trifle nervous, but if anything it was more marked in the case of Doyle. He adopted the purely amateur method of trying to pull the ivories so that they would complete the carrom by swinging his body or by using his cue for a baton. It was of no use. As a matter of fact, it seemed to be his too careful study of position play that upset his stroke. During the earlier innings Doyle actually led his opponent, but he could not maintain the advantage for long. Neither man made an average that would compare with Appleby's in the afternoon, but the one by Mathews of 4 24-44 was highly creditable for a Class C tournament.

The present tournament will run for about three weeks. Some late entries were added yesterday, and in all there are now eleven players competing. These have been divided so that there will be six in one preliminary tournament and five in the other. Three will qualify from the first and two from the second, these to compete in the championship event. Beginning Wednesday there will be two afternoon games and one evening.

The scores:

AFTERNOON GAME.

Other Winners with the Cue.

Mrs. Bertha King, holder of the women's championship pool title, last night began a series of practice matches at Daly's in preparation for her coming championship match with Miss Clearwater, the sister of Billy Clearwater. She played J. Smith, and after ten innings Mrs. King was returned the winner by the score of 75 to 50. Mrs. King scored a high run of 12 points.

Play began last night in the round robin of the amateur Class C 18.2 balk-line billiard tournament for the championship of Harlem at the Morningside Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, with five players as contestants. In the first match William Peyser defeated A. Curtis by the score of 100 to 87. The other three contestants are William Irvine, M. Mason, and A. Schlater.

Claude R. Lewis had an easy time last night defeating Louis A. Servatius in the amateur Class C 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at Keeney's in Brooklyn, 200 to 144, in fifty-four innings.

In the English billiard tournament at Doyle's A. Latham last night defeated W. Mantle by the score of 250 to 139.

War Raises Cost of Billiards.

At a meeting of the Billiard Room Keepers' Association held last night at Doyle's Academy it was decided to raise the cost of playing billiards or pool 5 cents an hour, so that this might in some part offset the war tax which the rooms are required to pay. At present the billiard room keepers are paying a tax of $8 per table to the city, this being a continuation of the old Spanish War tax, the city having levied this as soon as it was discontinued by the Federal Government. Now there is an additional war tax of $2 which, combined with the old, makes the billiard rooms subject to $5 per table in addition to the war tax on liquor and cigars. One of the members of the association said last night that this additional tax would mean a difference to the billiard room proprietors of from $300 to $400 a year.

WOMEN'S SWIMMING CLUB.

Twenty-five Form New Organization to Promote the Sport.

The recent action of the Amateur Athletic Union in granting the privilege of registration to women swimmers seems destined to influence materially water sports for the sex. Already there is evidence of increased activity. Last week twenty-five women formed the Women's Swimming Club of New York, the first organization of its kind in this city, and a number of applications for membership have since been received.

At the head of the new club are Mrs. Lillian Howard, President; Mrs. Clara Hurst Bouton, Vice President and Treasurer, and Miss Josephine Bartlett, Secretary. All three are well known in the competitive field. Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Bouton are among the leading long-distance swimmers of America, and have defeated expert men swimmers in "Marathon" races. Miss Bartlett holds the fancy diving championship of the National Women's Life Saving League.

While the chief object of the club is to provide coaching and training facilities for girls who wish to follow the racing game, free instruction in swimming and life saving is also offered to all members.

Headquarters have been established at the Savage Natatorium, where James J. Kennedy, the crack all-around waterman of the American Life Saving Society, will be in charge, but arrangements have also been made to have women teachers on hand at the Sixtieth and Twenty-third Street municipal baths twice a week to instruct in all branches of watermanship.

Some of the best performers in the district are on the club squad and a strong team should soon be developed. As the Women's Life Saving League already boasts of first-class material, keen rivalry and interesting competition is promised between the two groups of fair natators.

ATHLETIC TANGLE IN RELAY RACE

Registration Committee to Decide Protest of Event Won by the I.-A. A. C.

Much stress has been placed by athletic followers upon the action taken by John Connolly, a member of the Metropolitan Association Registration Committee, in ordering held up the prizes won by the Irish-American A. C. team in a relay race at the Fourteenth Regiment A. A. games on Saturday. Connolly's action apparently was taken over the ruling of Brigadier Gen. A. L. Kline, retired, formerly Mayor of New York City, who refereed the games. The situation has become most important question of authority, which some think is not adequately covered by the Amateur Athletic Union regulations.

The status of the case, which is somewhat complicated, is this: With the first heat of the 1,200-yard handicap relay well in hand, Jack Eller, anchor man of the Irish-American A. C., pulled up near the finish and was beaten by, perhaps, two teams. Three qualified for the final. The finish was extremely close, but after some deliberation it was announced that the Winged Fistites had been placed, shutting out the Millrose A. A. from the deciding heat. This decision was accepted by all until just before the final heat was to be run, when Mel Sheppard, on behalf of the Millrose A. A., lodged a protest with Referee Kline against the judges' decision.

Mr. Kline consulted with the judges, and was informed that Sheppard's protest was correct and that the Irish team had been picked third, because of a mistake in the competitive numbers. Lawson Robertson, coach of the Irish team, then wrangled over this late verdict, and in order to satisfy all Mr. Kline decided to let both the Irish and Millrose squads start in the final. Robertson's men were returned easy winners, practically from scratch. Pete Water's Loughlin Lyceum team finished fourth and thereupon protested the race, and consulted John Connolly, who officiated at the games as assistant scorer. Pete Waters is coach of the Second Naval Battalion athletes, and Connolly is President of the Naval Athletic Association. Connolly then decided that all prizes should be held, pending a decision of the Registration Committee at its next meeting, which is scheduled for tomorrow night. The prizes were not awarded, notwithstanding the fact that the Fourteenth Regiment authoriies refused to accept Connolly's decision, which seemingly overruled Referee Kline.

The clauses in the athletic rules of the A. A. U. which cover this controversy are these, the first pertaining to the referee's duties:

"The referee shall decide all questions relating to the actual conduct of the meeting whose final settlement is not otherwise covered by these rules.

"Rule V., relating to the judges, reads: 'Two judges shall stand at one end of the tape and two at the other. One shall take the winner, another the second man, another the third, and the other the fourth man. In case of dispute, the majority shall decide. Their decision, as to the order in which the men finished, shall be final and without appeal.'"

Nothing is said of the authority of the Registration Committee, but Connolly is sure he acted within his bounds, and he has invited Lawson Robertson to attend the next meeting of his board, in order to prove to the Irish club coach that his contention is right.

A. A. U. SENIOR RUN NEXT.

Only Four Teams Expected to Compete in Cross-Country Race.

Indications point to another small but select field for the national senior cross-country championship run at Van Cortlandt Park next Saturday. Entries will close tomorrow and it is expected that teams from the Irish-American A. C., New York A. C., Bronx Church House, which won the junior national team title last Saturday, and the Mohawk A. C. will compete. No other team entries are expected. Tht Irish-American A. C. will start its championship senior metropolitan squad in the run. Hannes Kolehmainen, Tom Barden, Arthur Fogel, I. Messer, J. Gaffney, Pat Flynn, Frank Zuna, and one other will comprise this strong aggregation of Winged Fistites. Willie Kyronen, winner of the Scandinavian-American Athletic League cross-country title on Sunday, and Nick Gianacopulos, the junior national title holder, will undoubtedly be among the individual entrants in Saturday's event.

None of the colleges which were invited by the A. A. U. to send teams here have accepted the invitation, and none probably will, although Yale may be represented by one or two men. John W. Overton, the Blue harrier, who gave such a creditable performance on Saturday against the best young hill-and-dale men here, finishing third after losing his way on the course, asserted after Saturday's race that he would come here for the senior race if he can possibly get away from New Haven.

Cornell Cross-Country Captain.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Daniel Frederick Potter, Jr., a junior of Buffalo, was yesterday elected Captain of the Cornell 'Varsity cross-country team for 1915. Potter has been a member of the team for two years, and in the intercollegiate last month won the title of individual intercollegiate cross-country champion.

Anchor Club Practice Run.

Owing to the inclement weather of last Sunday the Anchor Athletic Club's four-mile invitation road race was postponed, and will take place on next Sunday. It will serve as a try-out for the road run of the Trinity Club a week later.

TO CURB BRANCH SCHOOLS.

N. Y. U. Downtown Athletes to be Under Faculty Council Control.

All the schools of New York University will hereafter have athletic representation as a result of the appointment by Chancellor Elmer E. Brown of Faculty representatives from each school to form a University Athletic Council. The council will have absolute control and the final word in everything of an athletic nature. The new move is another attempt to weld the widely separated schools of the university into a more homogeneous whole, and to cause a greater co-operation between the schools at University Heights and those at Washington Square. Although the best of athletic material has existed in the downtown schools, the distance to the athletic field at University Heights and the lack of representation has caused the Washington Square students to do less than they are able.

Although athletics at University Heights has always been under the control of the Athletic Association, in which any member of any school is eligible to membership, the teams representing the downtown schools have not been under the association, and the result has been that teams representing some of these schools have sometimes been believed by outsiders to be 'Varsity representatives, with consequent friction later. The same thing occurred in the wearing of letters.

As no association had the awarding of letters to participants on these teams they have often made up their own monograms, which have also often been taken for those of the 'Varsity.

One of the first acts of the council is to forbid any team to use the name New York University in extramural sport without the sanction of the council. The second was to forbid any student to wear letters, class numerals, or insignia without the sanction of the same body. As the council is made up of Faculty representatives, failure to comply with these rules may bring punishment. These rulings will also stop the arrangement of schedules by school teams without the council's sanction, another cause of trouble, as in some instances other college teams have been under the impression that they were to meet the 'Varsity when they were, in fact, playing only a school team.

In addition to these changes, it is recommended that each school have a student representative in the Athletic Council at University Heights. In the past this has been in the sole charge of students elected by students at University Heights, but in the future all schools will probably be represented with added representatives from the alumni and Faculty.

SHIFT ATHLETIC MANAGER.

Dodin Takes McLaughlin's Place in Handling Football.

A shift in the Fordham athletic managerial staff took place yesterday following the announcement that Robert J. McLaughlin had resigned from the managership of next year's football team. McLaughlin has acted as assistant manager during the past two months and his action yesterday came as a surprise. Lester Patterson, President of the Executive Board of the Athletic Association, called a special meeting in the afternoon, and following it it was announced that Joseph E. Dodin, assistant manager of basket ball, had been shifted to McLaughlin's vacancy at the helm of the football department. Besides holding the gridiron office, Dodin is Captain of the Fordham tennis team, which position he has held for two years. As a result of yesterday's action the position of basket ball assistant manager is now open and an interesting campaign was started almost immediately yesterday by the juniors in their choice of candidates for the position.

Another surprise was sprung yesterday when it was announced that Mark Kearns had been chosen to succeed T. Amabile as manager of the "Prep" track team. Amabile found it impossible to give the proper attention to his duties, and Kearns has been doing most of the work lately.

Princeton Interscholastic Meet.

The annual interscholastic athletic meet under the auspices of the Princeton Club of New York will be held in the Seventh Regiment Armory on March 26. About forty-five public and private schools will be invited to participate, and entry blanks will be sent to them within a few weeks. The Princeton Club provides the prizes and officials for the meet. Last year there were about 700 entries. The Stuyvesant and Manual High Schools will each hold indoor meets on the same night. The Xavier High School meet will be held in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory on Jan. 9, and on the same evening in the Fourteenth Regiment Armory the indoor games of the Sunday School Athletic League of Brooklyn will be held.

Three-Cornered Roller Race.

Arthur Chappelle, the motor cycle king, will ride exhibitions on the banked track at Madison Square Garden as part of the roller skate racing programme that will be featured Dec. 16, 17 and 18. The speed king will also pace Roland Cioni and Willie Blackburn in time trials over the one-mile route on his mount. One of the most spectacular events of the sprint programme announced today for the 16th, preceding the twenty-four-hour grind, promises to grow out of the challenge of Freddie Martin of Milwaukee to meet Roland Cioni and Willie Blackburn in a three-cornered match race for the American open title. Martin writes the management that he is willing to back himself up to $1,000, and the Western contingent's money will probably "ride" on him. He holds the world's individual twenty-four-hour record, winning the last race held in this country at the Riverview Rink, Milwaukee, in 1913.

Dr. Stillman to Referee Match.

Dr. Alfred Stillman, 2d, of the Harvard Club will referee the squash tennis match for the world's professional championship, between Stephen Feron, Harvard Club, holder, and Walter Kinsella, Squash Club. The first half of the match will be played in the Harvard Club court, Dec. 16, and the second in the Squash Club court one week later. In the event of a tie the third series will be played at the Princeton Club on a date to be agreed upon by the contestants. Details for the match were arranged by George Whitney, Harvard Club, for Feron and D. R. Noyes, Squash Club, for Kinsella. It was announced yesterday that all the seats for the match have been sold.

TO DEFINE AN AMATEUR.

P. S. A. L. to Make a Ruling in Case of Boughton of Newark.

The question of whether a high school athlete can work in a playground during the Summer and receive remuneration for his services and still retain his amateur standing will be decided at a meeting of the High School Games Committee of the Public Schools Athletic League to be held next Tuesday.

The issue has been forced by the request of Carl G. Anderson, physical director of Central High School, Newark, N. J., made yesterday, that a decisive ruling be made on the standing of Charles Boughton, a crack athlete of Central High School, who worked in a playground last Summer.

This same playground question has come up several times in the past, and no definite rule has ever been formulated, and in the case of Boughton two sets of games officials rule differently within the last few weeks. At the Columbia interscholastic cross-country run held on Nov. 14 the Boughton case was placed before Gustavus T. Kirby, referee and starter at the games, and he disqualified the high school athlete. On Thanksgiving Day Boughton competed in the American scholastic cross-country championships, under the University of Pennsylvania's auspices, and these officials, on hearing a statement of the facts in the Boughton case, permitted him to enter. These two rulings are similar to those made in the past in the playground cases, and a difference of opinion exists as to whether an amateur loses his standing by working in playgrounds. The case of Boughton as presented by Mr. Anderson is that the young man during the past Summer was employed in the Essex County Park System as play leader, but was not employed as an athletic coach, as his duties did not require him to train or coach athletes. Mr. Anderson in his request for a ruling says that the amateur rules state that he lost his standing "for rendering personal service of any kind to any athletic organization, if playgrounds are considered athletic organizations." Mr. Anderson further stated that Boughton was following in the footsteps of many prominent A. A. U. and intercollegiate athletes, who still retain their athletic standing as amateurs.

Boughton admits that he received money for his services at the playground, but denies that he was paid as an athletic coach, and on this ground the claim is made that he has not lost his standing. The protest against Boughton taking part in any high school athletic contests was made by Harry Coates, coach at the Bloomfield, N. J., High School.

Chicagoans Win Archery Trophies.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—H. W. Bishop, Chicago, won the men's medal, and Miss Mary Carter Williams, Chicago, the women's prize in the Thanksgiving Day archery tournament held throughout the country, and results of which were announced by President Walker of the National Archery Association. The handicap was based on the contestants' previous highest scores made in 1914, and Bishop exceeded his mark by 52 points. The leading scores:

Men—Bishop, 508-560; James Duff, Jersey City, 514-548; R. P. Elmer, Wayne, Penn., (national champion,) 608-618; B. P. Gray, Boston, 534-528; G. P. Bryant, Boston, 618-526; J. S. Jiles, Pittsburgh, 630-518; Holmes, Pittsburgh, 668-596; Sorber, Pittsburgh, 668-550.

Women—Miss Williams, 432-456; Miss Wesson, Bryn Mawr, Penn., 588-590; Mrs. B. P. Gray, Boston, (national woman champion,) 630-518.

For Bad Weather Driving:

Only the hardiest of us care for or can withstand motor car exposure in bad weather.

And the ordinary extension top with side curtains is at best but a makeshift protection.

Rain drips in; the wind finds all the crevices, flaps the curtains and makes drafts that are really worse than its direct beat.

The new Hupmobile Sedan top wipes out the bad weather problem by providing a snugly-cozy closed car that, in the Spring, can easily be converted into an open car again.

Furthermore, the Hup Sedan top lacks the unpleasant characteristics of the usual detachable Winter top.

It is designed and built to conform perfectly to the beautiful lines of the Hupmobile; and its spacious, well-finished interior conveys more than a mere impression of true limousine luxury.

Finally, one of the best features is that you get the practical effect and utility of two cars at very little more than the price of one.

Please step in to inspect the car and the Sedan top.

CONGRESS.

The Democrats of the House and the Senate will have to impose unusual restraints upon themselves in the concluding short session of the Sixty-third Congress which began yesterday if they would avoid marring the record made in the earlier session. They will be under great temptations, especially the temptation to extravagance. Just at this time, when new taxes have been imposed and are beginning to be felt, the country will be watchful and it will not be in a condoning mood. The estimates presented yesterday call for more than a billion dollars to be appropriated during the short session. Credit is taken because this is $3,000,000 less than the appropriations of the current fiscal year, nearly $18,000,000 less than the estimates a year ago. Although no provision is made for public buildings, there is an estimate of $53,000,000 for improvement of rivers and harbors. It is especially in respect to this bill, which will obviously be the "pork barrel" of the session, that the majority Members and Senators will have to practice self-denial, and self-denial is the right word, for it is notorious that the political needs of members eager to secure the spending of public money in their districts are the basis of river and harbor extravagance.

The Democratic majority has invited, has received and has deserved applause for the achievements of the Sixty-third Congress. For the revised tariff and the Banking act the Democrats have had full credit. It will be easy to spoil the good record, to do great harm to the party and to the Administration. It will be a hurried session. Acts of waste and folly may easily be perpetrated through haste and a natural impatience to get through with the work of the session. But the Democrats should approach their task in a chastened spirit. In the November elections the party was rebuked, severely rebuked. The Democrats may ignore their chastening, they may foolishly persuade themselves that they won a victory, that the country gave them a vote of full confidence. It was not so, and only by much prudence and great wisdom can they change the temper in which the voters went to the polls on Nov. 3. It is not a time for loose legislation, for radicalism, for experimental ventures—quite the contrary.

THE DISAPPEARING GOLD DOLLAR.

California newspapers are remarking the disappearance of the gold dollar. For fifty years it held its own against the national bank note, but is succumbing to the Federal Reserve note. The reason is that the Federal Reserve Bank accepts worn gold only for its weight, but accepts the new banknote at its face. The only safe place for gold is in bank vaults. There it will not wear away, and may be the basis for several times as much paper money which will buy just as much as the gold. It is a case of survival of the fittest. There was nothing the matter with the individual national bank note. No holder of one ever lost a dollar. Yet it was left for the Federal Reserve note to displace the gold. What is the explanation?

It is simplicity itself. When the Government issued a national bank note it took its equivalent from the people. It required a thousand-dollar bond to get a thousand dollars in currency, using round numbers. The volume of circulation was limited to the volume of bonds, and a dollar was withdrawn in payment for the bonds before the dollar note could be got. That is the currency principle of issue, dollar for dollar, in bonds in this country and in gold in England. It has succumbed to the banking principle of issue, whereby all that is taken from the people's circulation before issue is enough to assure the redemption of the note.

The result is a currency which is both cheaper and better. The cheaper money is driving out the dearer, not because the cheaper currency has depreciated, as in previous unhappy experiences, but because it is for all purposes except melting better than gold. Several perfectly good paper dollars can be supplied for hand-to-hand use for less than a dollar, and the dollar itself can be got when wanted. The cost of printing is less than the loss and cost of coining, and the basis of issue need be only in part gold. The currency is not limited to the bonds, dollar for dollar, but is limited only by the gold reserve and the volume of commercial assets which reinforces the gold. That is to say, there is no limit to our future supply of currency except the sky, since it is impossible to exhaust both the stock of gold and commercial assets.

It has been the practice of California banks to keep full weight gold and to pay light gold. That triumph of experience over carelessness has died a natural death, succumbing to dollars of equal value for all. Uncle Sam will save the loss by wear and tear which he has accepted up to $250 for each year for each million, and little schemes for making him accept larger loss will come to an end with the disuse of gold. Nobody will lose anything on the Federal Reserve notes, any more than they ever have on national bank notes, but everybody will profit by the better and more convenient money.

VILLA AND HIS OPPONENTS.

The opponents of VILLA in Mexico who are endeavoring to win American sympathy by maligning the man who has kept on top, thus far, in the national overturn, are acting with very poor judgment. Gen. VILLA has no reputation to lose in this country for humanity or prudence or respect for law. Gen. OBREGON, his fellow-revolutionist and the sharer for many months of his fortunes, now asserts that VILLA killed BENTON. That has long been believed by many persons hereabout and even asserted, though without evidence; Gen. OBREGON does not produce the evidence. If he can produce it, if he really knows that VILLA shot or stabbed an English citizen to death, and how and where, he must know that he will be regarded as an accessory to murder after the fact.

Both the United States and the British Governments instituted inquiries into the killing of BENTON, which were choked off by the action of Gen. OBREGON's friend and chief, CARRANZA. A statement was published that another Mexican had killed BENTON, and that he had been killed in his turn. By and large, there has been a great deal of man-killing in Mexico of late, but the question now uppermost is not which prominent Mexican is handiest with pistol and machete, but which of them is most likely to restore a semblance of peace in the republic.

The signs now point to VILLA as the most competent to restore law and order. Since 1910 there has been continual warfare. The prosperity of Mexico cannot be restored until peace is restored. VILLA has fought in the name of the people, and in their name he has taken possession of the capital and placed a Provisional President in the National Palace. The people of the United States are emboldened to hope that VILLA will retain his command of the situation, for, although he is known as a dangerous and violent man, it is obvious that he has more skill, larger power over his followers, and a clearer idea of the needs of the country than Gen. OBREGON or Gen. CARRANZA.

THIS IS NOT MILITARISM.

The danger of war is not more prominently in the thoughts of the citizens of all the States who are urging the need of an authoritative inquiry into the conditions of our national defenses than it always is in the minds of practical men. There are certain dangers to which all nations are continually exposed, and war is one of them; but the promoters of the investigation of our army and navy are not the men who have been foolishly predicting trouble with Mexico and Japan or some other country. On the contrary, they are sober-minded citizens, many of them peace advocates, though not of the extravagant kind, merchants, financiers, professional men of all shades of political opinion, and they are not, by any means, affiliated with any one body or league. The Civic Federation and the Army and Navy Leagues have taken up this cause without consultation with the newly formed National Security League, of the membership of which Dr. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER has permitted himself to say, or to be quoted as saying, that "a little detective work "would reveal a substantial reason "back of the presence on the com-"mittee of most of those who are en-"deavoring to force a Congressional "inquiry."

We fancy that Dr. BUTLER will on reflection regret that he said this or permitted it to be said in his name. A "substantial reason" might be either a partisan interest in a movement to trouble the Administration or a pecuniary interest of some sort, in the sale of arms and ammunition, for instance. But who can believe that any such charge could affect WILLIAM C. CAMMANN, Col. W. C. CHURCH, FREDERIC R. COUDERT, JOHN D. CRIMMINS, HORACE E. DEMING, ROGER FOSTER, EDWIN GOULD, ALBERT BUSHNELL HART, CHARLES E. LYDECKER, GEORGE HAVEN PUTNAM, HERBERT L. SATTERLEE, FREDERICK A. STOKES, WILLIAM R. WILLCOX, or, so far as their contemporaries know, any other member of the Security League's General Committee?

Militarism has nothing to do with the case. The proposed inquiry is not to be the prelude to a demand for a large standing army. It is a question of simple and well-understood facts. The appropriations for the army and navy, forts and fortifications, and the Military Academy last year amounted to about $250,000,000, and this year's estimates amount to $6,000,000 more. That these large expenditures have not always been used to the best advantage is no secret. The investigation is needed to teach us what may be done to improve the personnel of the army and navy, to improve their equipment, to fill the regiments and man the ships, and to secure better training. When President TAFT ordered the mobilization of forces on the Mexican frontier, four years ago, he took the first step taken in many years toward developing the skill and discipline of our troops. At that time we had not a general officer in the service who had e commanded more than 5,000 men. The experience on the frontier was most beneficial to both officers and men, but if we are always to wait until there seems to be positive danger of war to give our troops needful training we shall always be badly prepared.

As for President WILSON's latest pronouncement in regard to the inquiry, that it would be "an unwise "way of handling a question which "might create very unfavorable inter-"national impressions," there is this answer to be made: That to take such measures as are needed to put our national defenses in good shape at this time would create no "international impression" at all. On the other hand, if we wait until some cause for hurried action arises, whatever we may then do will be subject to scrutiny and inquiry. Then the foreign diplomats would besiege the White House and the State and War Departments with many questions. It is obvious that now, and not later, is the time to build up our defenses, and that will hold true whether or not any special cause presents itself in course of time. All that is asked for is adequate defense, which every nation should possess at all times.

FRANK'S LAST APPEAL DENIED.

Without filing an opinion, but doubtless adopting the reasoning of Justice LAMAR, the Supreme Court at Washington has denied the motion made by the attorneys of LEO M. FRANK, convicted of murder in Atlanta, for a review of his case. The Supreme Court of Georgia had denied the motion for a new trial, it had said that counsel came too late with the plea that his constitutional right was withheld because of his absence from the courtroom when the verdict was rendered. By two of its Justices, and now by its full Bench, the Supreme Court of the United States declares that the acts of the Supreme Court of Georgia are final. There can be no further appeal.

This is the perfect work, not of justice, but of the forms of justice. The form denies the substance. FRANK had his trial in a city that was under terror of a mob. In advance of his trial reckless newspapers had fixed the guilt upon him, the rage of the community had been excited against him, the public clamored for his conviction and death. The trial court was terrorized. Is this denied? Then why was the militia held in readiness? Why did Judge and counsel agree that it would be unsafe to have the prisoner in court when the jury returned its verdict? Conviction was had solely on the testimony of a degenerate and criminal negro, given against a white man of previously unstained reputation. The presiding Judge at the trial said that the evidence did not convince him either of the guilt or innocence of FRANK. Justice HOLMES of the Supreme Court in denying the writ of error, said, "I "very seriously doubt if the peti-"tioner has had due process of law." On the motions and appeals no consideration has been given to this great, vital, controlling fact, that it was not a fair trial, that it was not due process. But the sacred forms have been observed, even though the very heart and soul of Justice have been plucked out of her unresisting carcass.

It is monstrous, it is shocking. But law and legal procedure afford no remedy, they deny it. The other day an ex-Secretary of State set up the now familiar plea that although THAW killed a human being, although acquitted on the ground of insanity and sentenced to confinement as a dangerous lunatic, and although he had escaped from Matteawan to another State, he could not be returned to New York on a writ of extradition because, forsooth, in securing the writ the State charged him with the crime of conspiring to escape while the laws of the State declare that a lunatic cannot commit a crime. On that plea, supported by money enough to secure the services of Secretary KNOX, THAW will go free if the plea be successful. He will go free to continue the homicidal work to which his insane delusions prompt him. That would be another triumph of the forms. So FRANK, innocent in the opinion of candid men who have most carefully examined all the evidence, but guilty in the judgment of the jury that would itself have been in peril if it had brought in a verdict of acquittal, his guilt not proved to the satisfaction of the presiding Judge, his trial one as to which a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States doubts whether it was due process of law, now, without further possibility of appeal, awaits his death sentence. Nothing can save him but the Executive pardon. That will spare his life, it will not give him the vindication a new and fair trial might secure, it will not remove from him the stigma of conviction and sentence, unjust though they were, and it will not blot out the record of shame which the City of Atlanta has made for itself in this case.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Most Fires Could Be Prevented.

Commissioner ADAMSON goes rather far, and perhaps too far, in deducing from his recent victory in the Appellate Division that hereafter people on whose premises fires occur as a result of negligence can be made to pay, not only the cost of putting the fires out, but also for any damage suffered by others as a result of such fires.

What the Appellate Justices decided was that a case in which the Commissioner had tried to establish that contention, and had been beaten in the lower court, should be tried again. That is a triumph for him, and not a small one. Its importance and significance, too, are increased because the Justices took pains to add that in the case under consideration "the defendants' failure to obey the Fire Commissioner's order [as to the installment of automatic sprinklers] was both culpable and negligent." As the City Charter distinctly provides severe penalties of just the sort the Commissioner is demanding for persons who allow preventable fires to occur, the way would seem to be open, or opening, for him to enforce the system of punishment and prevention which is so well supported by his arguments.

It is questionable, however, whether the public has yet been educated up to the point of seeing responsibility for fires as he does, and as it has long been seen in several parts of Europe. If it has not, juries are not likely to convict in these cases. To do it would require a complete reversal of our accustomed mental attitude, which is that of viewing all fires not deliberately set as misfortunes instead of as evidence of culpability.

The Commissioner's theory of preventable fires is, of course, a perfectly sound one, and when they follow neglect to obey department orders he now has a good chance to enforce the charter provisions, but in the other, vastly more numerous, instances, public sentiment is as yet hardly ready to support him. In time it will be and the effects of whatever he can do along these lines will be good. The same principle might and should be applied to those who, by failure to take due precautions, spread disease among their neighbors. The day for that, unfortunately, is still more remote, though proper care would save us from at least as many maladies as fires.

Matrimony and the Death Rate.

It seems to be true that the death rate of the unmarried, both women and men, is higher than that of the married. Indeed, recent statistics, gathered in Chicago, made the difference as high as 30 per cent. for bachelors and 40 per cent. for maids. It has been customary to interpret such figures as proving matrimony a prolonger of life and celibacy a shortener of it. That deduction is plausible enough, but American Medicine suggests, and gives good reason for suspecting, that this is another case in which wrong conclusions may have been drawn from correct data.

While admitting the beneficial effects that often follow the assumption of family responsibilities, the writer of the article calls attention to the fact that as regards women, who as a rule do not "sow wild oats," the result cannot be ascribed to the adoption of wiser or more regular habits after marriage, and yet the death rate among single women is greater than among single men. Therefore he looks deeper for the meaning of the statistical showing, and inclines toward the belief that it is to be found in the probability that there must be something physically wrong or weak in the celibates as a class, else would they have followed the normal course and married betimes.

In other words, the indications are that marriage does not cause, but goes with, a low death rate, while celibacy, in like manner, does not cause, but goes with, a high death rate. In still other words, the married were a selected group before they married—what would be called good risks by an insurance company—while the celibates were also selected for comparatively early death as well as for celibacy.

Thus are accepted notions again shaken, if not shattered, and the necessity for using great care in the interpretation of statistics is again very neatly illustrated. Figures don't lie, but often they do not speak plainly enough to be understood at first hearing, and sometimes their real meaning is the exact reverse of what they seem to say.

Further Details Desirable.

One of yesterday's dispatches from London announced on the authority of a Daily Mail correspondent in Northern France that in a fight between a Zeppelin and three British aeroplanes the big aerial battleship proved such a clumsy manoeuvrer that she could not bring either her offensive or defensive armament into effective action against her more active assailants. The result of the engagement was given with regrettable brevity—"bullets from the aeroplanes found the balloon's envelope, which crumpled up."

That may mean either that the Zeppelin was destroyed and brought down, or merely that it was defeated and driven away.

The uncertainty is irritating, for of all the war's unsettled problems, none is more interesting, though many are more important, than the relative efficiency of a dirigible as compared with one or several aeroplanes. A single encounter such as the one described would go far toward answering that question, and if one has occurred it is indeed a pity that we cannot promptly have all the details. Their absence throws doubt on this story, since every war correspondent knows with what eagerness both the professional and the amateur war critics are waiting to know whether or not the enormous claims as to the powers of Zeppelins were justified.

Those claims have evidently caused no end of nervous apprehension in England, and, mysterious as is the logic of military censors, it hardly seems conceivable that they would have suppressed or cut down a piece of news as likely as this one to calm the national fears.

A Proposal Seemingly Injudicious.

Until recently it had seemed that the division of the country into time zones, with the difference of an even hour between adjoining zones, was working to the satisfaction of everybody. While the result was that only a few towns ran their clocks by local or "true" time, the departure from it made no material difference to anybody, and there were real and appreciable [illegible] computed standards for the innumerable variations that had prevailed before the reform was instituted.

At last, however, there seems to be a determined movement in certain quarters, or rather in behalf of certain interests, to muddle up the zone system in order that the same important things may be done at the same time all over greater areas. The bankers, brokers, and grain dealers of Chicago would prefer to have their markets open and close synchronously with ours, and for the sake of this they are seeking to secure the adoption there of Eastern time. The railways, on the contrary, oppose the change, and to all minds at all scientific it would be distasteful.

There is nothing to prevent opening and closing the Chicago markets exactly when ours do, if their managers so desire. They can change the hours without changing their clocks, and so bring about just as well the harmony they want.

ENGLAND AND THE WAR.

Glad That America's Impartial Judgment Sustains Her.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES rendered an inestimable service, not only to its readers and the great American nation, but also to the people of this country, when you submitted the "White," the "Orange," and the "Gray" books to the impartial judgment of so eminent an authority as the former Assistant Attorney General of the United States. I have read nothing finer in the way of war literature than James M. Beck's balanced and acute examination of the German, Russian, and English case as presented to the world by their respective Governments. Alike in its lucidity, its impartiality, and its unanswerable logic, the article is in every way admirable. Allow me in the name of my countrymen to thank you, and through you to tender to Mr. Beck grateful acknowledgment for the great service rendered to my country and to the empire of which it forms a part.

Since the declaration of war against Germany we have never had a moment's doubt as to the essential righteousness of our cause; but it is none the less reassuring and gratifying to receive such a noble vindication from the pen of such an eminent representative of the mighty Republic of the West. The manifest determination of the American nation to sift the evidence, to master the facts, and to arrive at a true and impartial judgment of the real causes of the war has elicited the admiration of the people of Great Britain and Ireland. Sharing, as we do, in the language which Shakespeare and Milton spoke, sharing, too, in a common love of liberty, of international righteousness, in a belief in the inalienable rights of small nationalities, in the sacred obligations of international treaties, and in a form of government expressed in the apt words of Abraham Lincoln—"of the people, by the people, for the people"—we naturally value most highly the sympathy and good will of our kinsmen across the Atlantic in this supreme crisis in our national history.

But we would neither win nor hold them by unfair means. We simply ask that you will continue to sift all the evidence placed before you, and that through all plausible fictions you will not rest until you have penetrated to basal facts. We do not fear the issue of such a process. With clean hands, a good conscience, but with a sad heart, this nation has entered upon the greatest war in its long history in defense of national honor and the sacred obligations of that "scrap of paper," which has been so ruthlessly and wickedly violated by one of the signatories. As that treaty failed to preserve poor Belgium from the ravages, atrocities, and unspeakable inhumanities of those modern Huns, we felt that we were in honor bound to go to the rescue, and vindicate the law of nations so vilely besmirched by German perfidy. We are glad and grateful to be assured that the overwhelming majority of the American nation acknowledges the purity of our motives and the justice of our cause.

A GERMAN PATRIOT

Could Not Be Restrained from Going to Die for His Country.

This morning's TIMES contained an article, "Herbert Welsch Killed. New York Reservist Had Hard Time Reaching the Front to Die."

Last Summer Mr. Welsch and I lived and played together. He was a fine young man. Barely 24 years of age, possessing a fine character, strong, well-educated, cultured, and intelligent, he presented a fine specimen of manhood. He came of a prominent and wealthy family, an only son.

Mr. Welsch came from Germany to study American methods of business. He was a great admirer of the American business man and often told me what he was learning here would be invaluable to him on his return home. He studied the English language faithfully; never missed an opportunity to learn a new word.

Suddenly war broke out. Welsch immediately reported to the German Consul for enlistment, but was told no passage could be arranged for him. He made attempt after attempt to return, but failed. The ladies and even the men reasoned with him that he had done his duty, and that he could with clear conscience stay here. Welsch's only reply was: "I will return no matter what it costs me. My beloved Kaiser needs me." And return he did, but only at the expense of a large amount of money and hardship, which would well have daunted any brave man.

He is now dead. His friends weep for him. Whatever our opinion may be upon whose side the dreadful responsibility for this war may be, we must admire the sublime courage of Welsch, who, I am told, was a typical German soldier. No wonder, then, that the Germans are fighting so well and desperately.

German Conquests Since 1870.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you explain Dr. Dernburg's claim, as stated in THE TIMES, that Germany has gained no conquests by force since 1870? What about the Chinese territory, taken from China to revenge certain missionaries of the cross? And is it not quibbling to conceal the element of force involved in holding certain African colonies? Alsace and Lorraine are beyond the time limit, and the outrage of Schleswig-Holstein, and the slightly earlier capture of Hanover. Are we to interpret "Germany," as Dr. Dernburg uses the word, as expressing only the empire formed in 1870?

A Hermit's Real Estate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that all the New York papers have devoted columns to the wonderful career of the wonderful hermit who always bought, never sold and never improved some of the choicest real estate in Manhattan, I wish to make this humble observation:

What a wonderful old frog pond this town would be if the rest of its citizens had been as public spirited and progressive as he!

IN A POPPY GARDEN.

My garden must be sown with poppies—
yea,
Twice-sown, so that a hedge of gorgeous flowers
Shall hide from me the Road to Yesterday—
The passion and the heart-break of its hours!

Poppies pale pink, a dream-compelling host,
Weave spells 'gainst fears which would my soul possess;
Sleeping, I lose the thoughts which torture most,
Deep in cool waters of forgetfulness.

White poppies, frail and sweet, grow thick within
The garden's midst—a perfumed barrier set
Between me and the memory of a sin
So dear my traitor heart will not forget!

ADMITS LESLIE WILL.

Attorneys for Baroness de Bazus's Nephew Waive Right to Contest.

The will of Mrs. Frank Leslie (Baroness de Bazus), the publisher, who died on Sept. 18, leaving her residuary estate of more than $1,000,000 to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, and expressing the wish that Mrs. Catt would use the money for the furtherance of the Woman Suffrage cause, was admitted to probate by Surrogate Fowler late yesterday afternoon. Garvin & Young of 238 Broadway, attorneys for Maynard D. Follin of Detroit, a nephew who was not made a beneficiary, filed a waiver of a notice of settlement of decree, which acts as a bar to any contest in the Surrogates' Court on the part of Follin.

No one interested in the probating of the instrument would assign a reason for the abandonment of the threatened contest.

"I cannot discuss the matter in any way," was Mr. Garvin's answer to an inquiry as to whether Mr. Follin had received a settlement in lieu of his possible claim against the estate.

Mrs. Catt, President of the New York State Woman Suffrage Association, at her office, 303 Fifth Avenue, refused to assign a reason. She said:

"I will say, however, that arrangements are going forward for the settlement of the estate. As to how the money will be disposed, there are no plans at present. I have talked about the matter with persons who are interested. If the bequest amounts to what we have been led to expect, it may be used in establishing a Woman Suffrage Commission, and the funds applied for campaign purposes. When we have decided, an announcement will be made."

Mrs. Leslie left all her household and most of her personal effects to Mrs. Carie H. Wrenn of 62 Pierrepont Street, Brooklyn, who also gets $50,000 in trust and $10,000 in cash for each of her two children. The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, of which the testator's husband was one of the founders, gets $10,000, and certain relatives and friends get an aggregate sum of about $130,000.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS MEET.

1,000 New Members Join Monthly—Annual Election Held.

At the nineteenth annual meeting of the New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage at the residence of Mrs. Fritz Achelis, 9 East Fifty-seventh Street, the following officers were unanimously elected:

President—Miss Alice Hill Chittenden; Vice Presidents—Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, Mrs. Achelis, Miss Eleanor G. Hewitt, Mrs. George Douglas Miller; Treasurer—Mrs. John A. Church; Secretary—Mrs. M. E. Loomis; Executive Committee, class of 1917—Mrs. Arthur W. Francis, Mrs. Gustaf Stromberg, Mrs. K. B. Lapham, Mrs. Benjamin Nicholl.

Miss Elizabeth Gallaudet, Chairman of the Membership Committee, announced that enrollments were increasing at the rate of 1,000 new members a month. Two entertainments will be given by the association during the Winter.

Among those present were Mrs. Cadwalader Jones, Mrs. Gorham Bacon, Mrs. H. C. Backus, Mrs. Clarence E. Beebe, Mrs. James A. Scrymser, Miss Alice Ogden, Mrs. John J. Van Nostrand, and Mrs. Walter H. Chittenden.

Men to Work for Woman's Suffrage.

Herbert Parsons, Gilbert E. Roe, Amos E. R. Pinchot, Bertram Cruger, and Irving E. Burdick have joined in calling a meeting to organize a Men's Campaign Committee for woman's suffrage in New York State. The committee will try to promote the passage of a Constitutional amendment in 1915.

SEABURY ASKED TO SERVE.

Requested by Governor to Fill Vacancy on Court of Appeals Bench.

ALBANY, Dec. 7.—The members of the Court of Appeals and Gov. Glynn requested Judge Samuel Seabury today to serve with the court during the absence of Judge Werner, who is ill. Judge Seabury was elected to the court of appeals bench in November, his term to begin Jan. 1.

It is considered probable that Gov. Glynn will designate him as an associate judge to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge William B. Hornblower.

THE MONVEL PICTURES.

Robert Underwood Johnson Tells About the Artist and His Work.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am proud of having enjoyed the friendship of that rare spirit Maurice Boutet de Monvel, at whose studio at Nemours, near Fontainebleau, I saw him in 1911 painting on the series reproduced in THE TIMES. I wish he might have lived to see the remarkably faithful copies which you have made, the success of which is the more noteworthy because of the elusive delicacy of the drawing and the large variety of high tones.

You have mentioned that he was commissioned to paint a series of the same subjects for the Church of Domremy. One of these, of very large compass, was exhibited in this country during his first visit, and was criticised by some for the conjunction of these flat tones of many colors. I remember that he told me that the church was low and dark, and that his idea was to give the effect of a missal.

After painting one or two of the series, ill-health compelled him to relinquish the rest to another. I have many of his letters, which have both grace and wit. He was a veteran of 1870, and his sons, Roger and Bernard—the former a well-known author, the latter a painter of recognized merit on his own account—are now both with the colors. In the battle of the Marne, on Sept. 7 and 8, Bernard was twice slightly wounded, and out of 250 men in his command but 50 came through that battle unscathed. Both father and sons have thus shown the patriotism that goes with the ideality of art. The father will be long remembered for the large sweep of this charming and vigorous series and for the spirituality and sincerity of his embodiment of Jeanne d'Arc—a character that, in the hands of a man of less genuine character, might easily have been sentimentalized.

If I mistake not, Monvel was the founder of a whole school in France; certainly many foreign artists are much indebted to his influence. THE TIMES has again done a great service to art and to public taste.

Cole's New Engravings.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I have a few lines of your space to call public attention to the current exhibition at Hahlo's, 569 Fifth Avenue, of new woodcuts by Timothy Cole, the distinguished American engraver? Mr. Cole has of late been devoting himself to blocks of a larger size than those with which his graver has heretofore been busy. Among the subjects are the "Mona Lisa," Carriere's "Maternity," and masterpieces of Rembrandt and Frans Hals, proofs of which, by the way, he has contributed to the sale for the benefit of the families of the French and Belgian artists to be opened next week at Clarke's Galleries in Forty-fourth Street.

I think it is not too much to say that these larger engravings will add to the unique reputation of Mr. Cole, whose resources of technique seem inexhaustible. They are the culmination of a lifetime of the most conscientious and inspired rendering of the masterpieces of painting which has reflected honor upon America.

It is to be hoped that the interest of lovers of art in this veteran of the burin will justify him in continuing his experiment of offering proofs of the larger blocks.

ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION FUND NOW HAS A TOTAL OF $103,930,817

First Annual Statement of Finances Shows Appropriations of $6,500,000 Have Been Made.

The Rockefeller Foundation made public yesterday for the first time the list of stocks and bonds which make up the fund of $100,000,000 with which it was endowed by John D. Rockefeller following its incorporation in May, 1913. The income from the $100,000,000 has amounted to about $5,500,000, and appropriations approximating $6,500,000 have already been made. Yet the financial statement, which is printed in full below, shows that one week ago the fund had exceeded its original amount by more than $3,000,000.

It was also announced yesterday at the Rockefeller offices, 26 Broadway, that Jerome D. Greene, Secretary of the Rockefeller Foundation, had withdrawn, temporarily, from his activities as a member of John D. Rockefeller's personal staff, and that Ivy L. Lee, executive assistant to the President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, would shortly take up these duties.

Mr. Greene, it was said, had not resigned from the staff, but he found that, for the present at least, all of his time was required by the foundation because of the increase in the work which has been taken up. The Belgian relief work and the proposed investigation of the Colorado mine troubles were instrumental in bringing about the change. This statement was given out:

Jerome D. Greene, who, for a year or more past has divided his time between acting as a member of John D. Rockefeller's personal staff and as Secretary of the Rockefeller Foundation, has been obliged, on account of the increasing demands of the latter position, to suspend his activities as a member of Mr. Rockefeller's staff and will for the present devote his entire time to the executive work of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Ivy L. Lee, now Executive Assistant to the President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has accepted appointment as an additional member of Mr. Rockefeller's staff, the other members of which, beside Mr. Greene, are Messrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Starr J. Murphy.

Mr. Lee is a graduate of Princeton University. After several years of journalistic work he served for three years as general manager in Europe for Messrs. Harris, Winthrop & Co., bankers. He returned two years ago to become associated with the Pennsylvania Railroad.

John D. Rockefeller, having retired from active business fifteen or twenty years ago, his staff, of which Mr. Lee becomes a member, are his immediate advisers in matters both of business and philanthropy, and are his direct representatives in the various corporations in which he is financially interested and on the large philanthropic boards which he has created.

Mr. Lee, it was said, would take up his new duties within a few days. Mr. Greene resigned as Secretary to the Harvard College Corporation on May 25, 1910, to become business manager of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. In July, 1912, he gave up that position to become a member of Mr. Rockefeller's personal staff.

HOW ROCKEFELLER GIFT HAS GROWN.

Here is the Rockefeller Foundation's statement of its growth:

The Rockefeller Foundation, 26 Broadway, New York.

In the general summary of its work and plans given out yesterday, the Rockefeller Foundation announced that it was preparing for publication in advance of its annual report a complete statement of its finances.

The funds of the Foundation, all of which were contributed by John D. Rockefeller, consist of securities the market value of which at the time they were donated was $100,000,000. In making this gift Mr. Rockefeller expressly empowered the Directors of the Foundation in their discretion to utilize either the principal or the income or both for the chartered purposes of the Foundation, namely, "to promote the well-being of mankind throughout the world."

The Directors of the Foundation are Messrs. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University; Dr. Simon Flexner, Scientific Director of the Rockefeller Institute; Frederic T. Gates, Jerome D. Greene, A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chase National Bank; Charles O. Heydt, Harry Pratt Judson, President of the University of Chicago; Starr J. Murphy, John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Wickliffe Rose, Director General of the International Health Commission.

The income of the foundation to date has been approximately $5,500,000, its appropriations approximately $6,500,000.

The funds which Mr. Rockefeller has given to the foundation are as follows:

It was for many years the custom of Mr. Rockefeller in dealing with applications or suggestions concerning philanthropic objects to base his decision upon an expert investigation of the merits of each case. As time went on the task of deciding wisely upon an ever increasing mass of applications, and, what was even more important, of providing the constructive imagination necessary for intelligent philanthropy, became more and more onerous.

For these reasons Mr. Rockefeller felt the need of organizations or groups of counselors specially fitted to deal with such matters, and which should be independent of the life of any individual. He has accordingly for the past fifteen or twenty years delegated his activities in this direction more and more to the various organizations and institutions he has created. The more important of these, each with its separate and independent funds, are: The General Education Board, the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, and the Rockefeller Foundation.

NEW HERBERT WORK IS MILD DIVERSION

The Score of "The Debutante" Is Pleasant if Not Distinguished.

HAZEL DAWN IS STARRED

Whilom Pink Lady Sings and Plays the Violin in an Operetta at the Knickerbocker.

"The Débutante," an operetta in two acts, for which Victor Herbert has written the music, and which serves to introduce pretty Hazel Dawn to all the honors of capital letters, came to Broadway last evening after lurking for several weeks in neighboring towns and cities. In the long line of light musical diversions conceived for the entertainment of New York, this new piece at the Knickerbocker occupies a comfortable middle position between those that have been very, very good and those that have been simply dreary. "The Débutante" and Hazel Dawn provide a pleasant if not a memorable evening at the theatre.

It would be downright disloyalty to many most agreeable memories to say that Mr. Herbert had never done a better or more fetching work than this. It would be unfair to the cheery tunefulness of "The Only Girl." But there are several very attractive numbers in the rather long score of "The Débutante," and the sum total of the entertainment is, for example, an appreciable improvement over the preceding tenant of the same playhouse.

"The Love of the Lorelei," the waltz song to which Mr. Herbert reverts affectionately from time to time in the course of the evening, has pretty, sugar-sweet strains, "Peggy's a Creature of Moods" is a capital Irish melody, delightfully sung, there is one spirited sextette in the second act, and shortly before the piece draws to a close comes a gay, little song, "The Baker's Boy and the Chimney Sweep," where both the composer and the writer of the lyrics have done very well indeed.

"The Débutante" starts out with high promise, for the opening chorus is as spirited as any number on the programme, and it is followed forthwith by a lively, martial tune, during which something is roared forth melodiously about love and war and a great many tiny, natty middies skip about with much precision and vigor. After that the pace slackens somewhat, and it must be recorded that there are stretches in the score of somewhat characterless and tedious music. At these moments some comedian should rush to the rescue, but the book of "The Débutante," while rather better than harmless, is never convulsingly funny.

Miss Dawn looks very handsome, indeed. As she sings, speaks, and plays the violin, she is quite the same Hazel Dawn that trod the boards of the New Amsterdam for so many months during the long, prosperous run of "The Pink Lady."

Robert J. Pitkin, as a sunny Irish officer of the British Navy, brings a good voice and an infectious smile into the entertainment. It is a valuable contribution. Sylvia Jason, an exceptionally diminutive entertainer, has not much to do and does it very well. Stewart Baird is in good form and has one pleasing number, where he sings alone on a dusky stage and with the refrain pursues an incandescent and nimble will o' the wisp until she takes a mad leap through the French window.

And then at the end, just before Miss Dawn plays the Lorelei strains on her violin, Mr. Herbert has the time of his life in making fun of some modern music when a considerable section of the chorus becomes tensely operatic and the brasses out in the orchestra go into hysterics. This is capital, a bright spot in an entertainment that really needs brightening.

NAVY PAYMASTER WEDS.

J. A. B. Smith, Jr., Marries Mrs. Virginia H. Holland at the Gotham.

The wedding of Mrs. Virginia H. Holland, widow of Ralph H. Holland, and J. A. B. Smith, Jr., Paymaster in the United States Navy, stationed on the Connecticut, took place at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the myrtle room at the Hotel Gotham. The Rev. Dr. James M. Farrar of the Dutch Reformed Church, Brooklyn, officiated.

Miss Edwina McCabe of Boston was the bride's only attendant, and Archibald Bush was best man.

A small reception for the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends was held after the ceremony. Later Mr. Smith and his bride left on a short honeymoon.

Mr. Smith is a son of Rear Admiral A. B. Smith and Mrs. Smith of Baltimore, Md., and his wife, before her first marriage, was Miss Virginia Hewitt of Washington, D. C. They obtained their marriage license Saturday, when the bride gave her age as 27, and Mr. Smith said he was 38 years old.

Hall-Washburn Wedding Dec. 15.

The wedding of Miss Anna Loraine Washburn and the Rev. Basil Douglas Hall of this city is to take place on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 15, at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. George H. Washburn, 377 Marlborough Street, Boston, Mass., and is to be followed by a reception at the University Club in Beacon Street.

Mr. Hall is a son of the Rev. Dr. Charles C. Hall, formerly President of the Union Theological Seminary of this city. He is a graduate of Harvard University, class of '08, and prepared for the ministry at the Union Theological Seminary and in Edinburgh, Scotland. He is pastor of the Hunt's Point Presbyterian Church, in the Bronx.

The bride's grandfather, Dr. George Washburn, was for many years President of Robert College, Constantinople. She is a graduate of Smith College.

FLANDERS—STAPLES.

The engagement of Miss Elizabeth Yerkes Flanders of Plainfield, N. J., daughter of the late Mrs. George E. Webb and granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. David J. Yerkes, to Frederick C. Staples of Southborough, Mass., has been announced.

PFEIFFER—BECKER.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Pfeiffer of 940 Fox Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Charlotte Pfeiffer, to J. Carl Becker. Mr. Becker is an attorney of this city. A reception is to be held on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 20, at the Hotel Martinique.

Society Attends Two Concerts.

Two concerts which attracted society yesterday included one for the benefit of the D. Y. N. T. Settlement House at 18 Leroy Street, at the Plaza, and Mr. Bagby's two hundred and thirteenth musical morning at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mrs. Ansel Phelps is President of the D. Y. N. T. Society, and many prominent society women were among the patronesses for the concert. The artists were Mrs. Robert Ide and Louis Siegel. Miss Margaret Hawkesworth and Basil Durant danced.

Miss Emmy Destinn, Pasquale Amato, and Efrem Zimbalist were the artists at Mr. Bagby's musical, which was also largely attended.

MISS CHAPIN A DEBUTANTE.

Introduced at Dinner Dance at Sherry's—Party for Miss Stevens.

Mrs. Charles Merrill Chapin entertained last evening with the first large dinner dance of the season at Sherry's to introduce her young daughter, Miss Mary Stevens Chapin, a niece of Richard Stevens of Castle Point, Hoboken, and of Mrs. Thomas Bloodgood Peck. Several dinners preceded the dance, the hostesses including Mrs. Chapin, Mrs. Peck, Mrs. Richard Stevens, Mrs. W. Campbell Clark, and Mrs. W. W. Hoppin, who gave a dinner of twelve covers for young married people and took her guests to Sherry's.

Mrs. Chapin's dinner was for the débutante and the guests numbered forty. The dinner was served at a long table in the banquet room, and Mrs. Peck's dinner for twenty guests was in an adjoining room. The decorations were pink Japanese lilies and pink roses. Mrs. Chapin's guests included many of the season's buds, among them the Misses Louise Hoadley, Josephine de Gersdorff, Priscilla Peabody, Noemi Gibert Townsend, Adrienne Iselin, Sylvia Holt, Angeline Krech, Jeannette Olyphant, Isabella Taylor, and Ensley Hodgson.

Mrs. Peck's dinner was for Mr. Peck's niece, Miss Frances S. Peck, the débutante daughter of Staunton Bloodgood Peck of Chicago. The guests were Mrs. Frank Keech, the Misses Miriam Harriman, Louise Gould, Isabel Flake, Emmaline Ford, Sarah Floyd-Jones Williams, Ina Kissel, Isabel Cuming, Edith McKeever, Janet Robb, and Miss Deacon of Philadelphia; also F. A. Juilliard, Dr. John Freeland, Theodosius Stevens, Frederick Macdonell, Henry Coster Steers, Charles Lanier, Jr., Maurey Paul of Philadelphia, Reginald Sturges, Talbot Jones, Edmund J. Curley, Jr., and Robert C. Myles, Jr.

Mrs. Clark's dinner was for Miss Estelle Clark, and the guests included Miss Betty McVickar and Hermann Boker and Richard Duane.

Mrs. Richard Stevens's dinner was for her daughter, Miss Elsie Stevens, and took place in the marble ballroom of the St. Regis. The guests were seated at a long table decorated with ferns and white carnations. Besides Mr. Stevens and Miss Stevens the guests were Mrs. John Jacob Astor, who did not go to the dance; the Misses Harriet and Janetta Alexander, Helen Turnbull, Theodora Larocque, Mildred Rives, Elsie Parks, Harriette Post, Muriel Winthrop, Gabrielle Warren, Rose S. Dolan, Elsie Nicoll, Mabel Gerry, also Axel Wichfeld, William Reeves, Suydam Cutting, Reginald Lanier, Francis and Maurice Roche, Cyril Hatch, Chester Burden, Chalmers Wood, Hamilton Fish, Jr., Curtis Moffet, Le Roy King, and Lloyd Warren.

The dancing was in the small ballroom, which was decorated with pink begonias and greens. Mrs. Chapin, in pale blue and gold brocade, and Miss Chapin, in white satin and tulle with a cluster of white flowers with green leaves, received. A seated supper was served at midnight in the adjoining suite, and there were 400 guests in all.

Among the other dinner and dance guests were the Misses Kate Colby, Elizabeth Clarkson, Florence L. Blair, Anne Brown, Mary W. Tweed, Civilise and Anna Alexandre, Marietta Chapin, Theodora Dunham, Rita Sturgis, Mimi Scott, Symphorosa Bristed, Priscilla Bartlett, Constance Peabody, Gertrude Welling, Dorothy Taylor, Marie Tailer, Marion Tiffany, Margaret and Louise Trevor, Mary Alexander, Caryl Hackstaff, Pamela Poor, Le Brun Parsons, Eleanor Green, Martha Gay, Noel Johnston, Violet King, Eleanora Kissel, Alexandria Emery, Helena Fish, Helen Flake, Margaret La Farge, Eva Mali, Faith and Ruth Hayden, Sylvia Holt, and Marie G. Johnson.

Also Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. P. B. H. Frelinghuysen, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Z. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Prentice, Mr. and Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll, Mr. and Mrs. John Ogden, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Iselin, Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. F. Y. Dalziel, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Brokaw, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Delafield, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Eustis, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Dilworth, Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Pyne, Dr. Eugene H. Pool and Mrs. Pool, and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas.

Also Murray Hoffman, Samuel Babcock, John W. Riddle, R. Thornton Wilson, Malcolm Sloane, Ralph J. Preston, Sidney Dillon Ripley, Percy R. Pyne, 2d, William McAdoo, Jr., Dennis Hare, George Brokaw, Aymar Johnson, E. de P. Livingston, Zia Mufti, Zache Bey, J. R. Drexel, Jr., Charles de Rham, Jr., C. L. Appleton, Chester H. Aldrich, G. Mifflin Wharton, Elliot Bacon, and G. G. Haven, Jr.

French Produce "L'Age d'Aimer."

The French Drama Society last night produced "L'Age d'Aimer," a drama by Pierre Wolff, at the Century Lyceum. Mme. Meurville appeared in the leading rôle, and other members of the cast were Claude Benedict, José Ruben, and Louis Faure. The piece will be continued through the week.

ALTMAN PAINTINGS ADDED TO MUSEUM

Ten Works of Modern Masters Include Three Corots and Two Daubignys.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S PORTRAIT

Thomas Sully's Original Sketch in Oils Made at Buckingham Palace a Charming Picture—Lace Exhibit.

Paintings by modern artists bequeathed by the late Benjamin Altman to the Metropolitan Art Museum were put on exhibition yesterday afternoon and may now be seen in Galleries 19 and 21. People who are little interested in old masters will be glad to see these later pictures, which are typical of the work of the modern masters who painted them.

There are ten of these beautiful paintings, and as they are not included in what is known as the Altman collection proper, they are hung in the galleries in which they would naturally belong instead of with the collection. In Gallery 21 are the French pictures, three Corots, two Daubignys, one Rousseau, and one Diaz. There are three charming Mauves which are hung in Gallery 19.

Nothing more charming has been brought into the museum for some time than a portrait of Queen Victoria by Thomas Sully, one of five pictures by that artist, a bequest of the late Thomas Sully Darley of Philadelphia. It is the original sketch in oils made by the artist at Buckingham Palace, London, and from which six portraits were painted. The head and bust of the Queen as a beautiful young woman is shown, the head gracefully turned. The Queen is wearing a small crown of diamonds, a diamond necklace, and diamond earrings. On the canvas are sketches of the jewels in detail. The picture is charming and attractive. During the artist's life time it hung in his house in Fifth Street, Philadelphia.

Sully was commissioned by the St. George Society of Philadelphia to go to England to paint a portrait of the Queen, and one of the portraits painted from this sketch, but full length, hangs in St. George's Hall, Philadelphia. Another is in Charleston, S. C.; the location of the four others is not known. An autograph of the Queen given Sully at this time is a part of the bequest.

Of the other portraits, finished work, there is "Mrs. Jane Darley and Her Son Francis," a delightful painting of "Rosalie," one of the artist's daughters, as an art student; a portrait of "Mrs. Sully," and "Rosebud" is the portrait of an infant, with the flower lying beside it on the pillow. The portrait of a "Cavalier," attributed to Van Dyck, is a part of the bequest.

An interesting special exhibition that is opened today in the gallery adjoining the Bishop jade collection is arranged by Miss Frances Morris, the museum lace expert, of Belgian lace. The work from Brussels, Antwerp, Binche, Valenciennes, Ypres, Mechlin, and Malines is shown. In the collection of Brussels lace is a wonderful Brussels point wedding veil loaned by Mrs. Thomas Hastings, 2 yards long by 1¾ wide. It is actually a wedding veil, not a shawl used for a veil.

There have been 63,704 visitors to the Altman collection since it was opened, including the number of visitors on the opening night. The greatest number came on Sunday, Nov. 29, when the collection was viewed by 9,500 people. The attendance for the last year at the museum was 867,043.

The new members to the Board of Trustees, elected Nov. 9, are Lewis Cass Ledyard and V. Everit Macy.

Ellen Terry Not in War Benefit.

THE TIMES has received a letter from W. B. Feakins, representative of Ellen Terry, the English actress, who is now in New York, protesting againts the use of Miss Terry's name in advertisements last Sunday, announcing that she would take part in the Franco-Belgian War Relief benefit on Dec. 15. "Miss Terry will give only two recitals in New York," writes Mr. Feakins, "both for the benefit of the Legal Aid Society of New York City, at Aeolian Hall, the evenings of Dec. 16 and 18.

"Much as Miss Terry would like to give her services to the cause mentioned, it is impossible, because she does not appear anywhere on consecutive days and because of her prior engagement on behalf of the work of the Legal Society."

BULLETIN No. 4

Battles in Tenement Homes

WHEN WORK CANNOT BE SECURED.

Non-employment last Winter and Summer caused a large increase in the number of families forced to seek the help of relief agencies.

Many are still unable to secure work, and there is every indication that for a time at least the condition will not improve.

"Unable to find work" is the reason given by scores who are now asking for aid, many of them breadwinners of families which have never before had to seek assistance.

In many instances the Association gives temporary assistance while our employment agent is helping the breadwinner to get a job.

During seven years of married life James ——, a truck driver, had been able to maintain a comfortable home for his wife and two children.

Although his record with his employer was good' slackness in trade finally forced him out of work.

For two months he tramped the streets looking in vain for a steady job.

The rent slipped behind a month; occasiona l jobs gave him barely enough to buy food.

He came to us one morning with his story of discouragement, fearful that his wife and children must soon face keen suffering.

Our employment agent and he searched for a month before steady work was found.

He then began to pay back at the rate of fifty cents per week the small sum we had loaned him to tide over the emergent period.

During the past year we secured work for 519 men and 238 women out of a total of 2,795 applications.

For emergent relief of all such cases we spent $10,612.26.

We now have in our care 325 families which would be self-supporting if the breadwinner could secure employment.

The generous support of the public is needed for these and others who must have our help this Winter to keep them from suffering until they secure gainful occupation.

THE FLONZALEY QUARTET.

First Concert of Their Season Given in Aeolian Hall.

The Flonzaley Quartet were received with a very cordial, even enthusiastic, welcome when the four players appeared on the platform of Aeolian Hall last evening for the first of their concerts. The quartet had added something really valuable and highly appreciated to the musical life not only of New York, but also to other cities in this country where chamber music is cultivated, and it may be said that they have made a similar contribution to cities in Europe. Their audience was large last evening, and gave frequent evidence of great pleasure in the performance.

The programme comprised Tschaikowsky's quartet Opus 30, two movements of a quartet by Darius Milhau, and Beethoven's Opus 18, No. 6. The quartet by Tschaikowsky is not so often played as the other two that he contributed to chamber music literature; perhaps one reason for this is the gloom that enshrouds a good deal of it. The third movement is funereal in character, and the composer has called it so in his superscription. The work is not, on the whole, one of Tschaikowsky's most fortunate productions. It has a sort of febrile unrest, an insistence on certain almost querulous melodic formulas, particularly in the first and last movements. The musical development partakes of monotony. There are skill and ingenuity in the writing, success in gaining striking effects of instrumental combination, and the scherzo, in which these are notable, made a special impression upon the audience. There are certain passages of difficult intonation here in which the players made one of their rare and unusual failures to attain correctness. The performance otherwise was on a high plane of excellence in quality and balance of tone, in deep and delicate carving of the phrase, in care for all the minutiae of dynamics.

There were all these things likewise in the movements of the quartet by Darius Milhau, which also presented numerous difficulties to the performers and some to the listeners. Milhau is an adherent of the younger French school, a follower of Ravel; for the younger French school itself has its various movements, and all do not follow the same prophets. This music seems scant of specifically musical ideas and devoted more to exploiting effects of modern harmony and color schemes. On a first hearing it seems to wander far afield in search of them. The musicians played it as if enamored of it, and it is not difficult to see how the problems it presents might prove fascinating in the solution.

PLAY FOR WAR RELIEF FUND.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell Again Appears in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray."

With Mrs. Patrick Campbell playing again the rôle with which she scored such a striking success in London more than twenty years ago, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" was given at Wallack's Theatre yesterday afternoon as a benefit to increase the funds of the Committee of Mercy. The benefit yielded $2,406. The performance, which enlisted the services of several well-known players, will be repeated on Friday afternoon when the receipts will be turned over to the Duchess of Westminster's Hospital at Le Touquet.

More than most of the English pieces of its period this always interesting four-act play of Pinero's seems to hold its own. It has been revived often and imitated oftener, and some of its chords have been less effectively struck in more than one play of this very season.

To those who have seen Mrs. Campbell illuminate the great part of the unhappy Paula, her playing of it in this revival must inevitably be disappointing. Due in part, perhaps, to the circumstances of an isolated benefit performance, her work yesterday afternoon lacked lustre.

Kenneth Douglas, the comedian, so largely responsible for the charm of "A Pair of Silk Stockings," played skillfully in the good rôle of Cayley Drummle, the part that Cyril Maude created when "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" was first produced. Edith Wynne Matthison brought her great competence and gracious charm to the minor part of Mrs. Cortelyou, but she seemed quite radiantly out of keeping with the lines of that distinctly dowager rôle. Aubrey Smith was excellent as Aubrey Tanqueray, a part not new to him, and Grahame Browne did nicely as the inebriate Orreyd.

The general performance moved smoothly on its way, with very few of those hitches toward which a specially assembled audience is wont to be tolerant. The three sets collected for the production were quite adequate, but since the women of the cast were all prepared and doubtless even determined to appear in this season's best in the way of finery, and since the very Pinero text had been altered in recognition of the automobile and other signs of the times, it was rather a curious idea to insert carefully in the programme this line of explanation:

"Time: The Years 1890 and 1891."

MR. BESEKIRSKY PLAYS.

A Russian Violinist's First Appearance in New York.

A recital was given yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall by Wassily Besekirsky, a Russian violinist not previously heard in New York, of whom good reports had been spread. Mr. Besekirsky did not quite justify all these in certain aspects of his playing. He has vigor, robustness, dash, that are attractive. His style is sincere and unaffected; he makes no pretensions to virtuosoship. Yesterday, however, he played with lack of finish and polish. His tone was rough and sometimes there was scratching; more deplorable was his frequent playing out of tune. In the prelude of Bach's E major solo sonata there were large sections that were not given truly upon the pitch; and the same was the case with Tartini's sonata, called "The Devil's Trill." It might properly be said in extenuation of his tone that the day was one of the worst for stringed instruments. In the exposition of a cantilena Mr. Besekirsky often showed breadth and freedom of bowing. In a cavatina by Cui he gave pleasure; but the piece is within the capacity of moderate ability. In the "air" from Bach's D major suite for orchestra, as arranged by Wilhelmj for one violin, he did not succeed in getting deeply below the surface.

Besides these pieces he played a "Rêverie" of his own, a "Slavic Dance" by Dvorak, Tschaikowsky's "Sérénade Mélancholique," a suite by Sinding, and Hubay's fantasie on "Carmen."

SIDNEY DREW IN PLAYLET.

"What the Moon Saw," a Spoken Drama, Given at the Vitagraph.

At the Vitagraph Theatre last night a novelty was introduced when Sidney Drew and a number of the other motion picture actors from the Vitagraph studios appeared in a spoken drama, "What the Moon Saw," a one-act piece of much merit by S. Rankin Drew. It takes as its theme two lines from a Kipling poem which run:

> Make 'im take 'er and keep 'er.
> That's hell for them both.

The little play was produced by the author and will be given at every evening performance this week. The actors are unable to appear in the afternoons as they are posing before the moving picture camera during the day.

Two new moving pictures are on the Vitagraph's programme this week in addition to the spoken play. They are "A Strand of Blond Hair" and "C. O. D.," the latter a comedy in four parts by Frederick Chapin from his book of the same name.

"SLAVE SHIP" LAUNCHED.

Thrills in a Novel Nautical Drama at Hammerstein's.

"The Slave Ship," an elaborate vaudeville act devised and staged by Ned Wayburn, the musical comedy director, was produced for the first time at Hammerstein's yesterday afternoon. The piece, which is shown in two scenes, is advertised as a nautical novelty drama which describes the production.

The action in the Wayburn playlet takes place on the sailing slaver Hawk-Eye. There are many mechanical effects, which show the slaves in the hold of the vessel, encounters in the Captain's cabin, and other thrilling adventures. The piece is well staged and there are twenty in the company appearing in the play.

MRS. WATSON LEAVES $1,000,000 ESTATE

Property of Society Leader Goes to Relatives and After Them to Charity.

GIVES FAMILY HEIRLOOMS

Husband and Children Share Equally in the Division Under Testator's Will.

Mrs. Annie Duncan Watson, prominent in society, who died at the Vanderbilt Hotel on Dec. 1, left an estate in excess of $1,000,000, the bulk of which is left equally to her husband, Walter Watson of the stock brokerage house of C. I. Hudson & Co., 36 Wall Street; her daughter, Mrs. Mai Watson Frelinghuysen of 410 Park Avenue, and to her son, William Whiteright Watson, who lives at the Plaza.

Additional bequests to the immediate members of the family include a silver tea set to her daughter, who married Frederic T. Frelinghuysen on Oct. 3. The son gets a portrait of his great uncle and the husband gets all the household furniture, paintings, and bric-à-brac. Atlee Watson, a godchild, gets $1,000. There are bequests of $2,000 each to Mrs. Katherine Campbell Blake, Mary Green, and Emma Varian. Annie Mary O'Brien gets $1,000, and $500 each goes to Helena O'Brien, Harry B. Taylor, and J. Lynch Pendergast. Servants in Mrs. Watson's employ for more than one and less than two years each get $100, and those in her service for more than two years each get $300.

The will provides that if the son and daughter die without issue, leave no will, and the husband be dead at the time of their deaths, then the following public bequests are to come from the residuary estate: $100,000 each to the Fresh Air Fund of St. John's Guild, the General Theological Seminary, and William T. Bull Memorial of New York; $50,000 each to Emma Varian, Katherine Campbell Baker, Mary Green of Washington, D. C., and Davis Barnes of 44 West Forty-fourth Street, the latter being one of the executors and trustees, together with decedent's son and husband.

INDIANS IN MOVIE DRAMA.

"In the Land of the Head Hunters" Vividly Shown at Casino.

At the Casino Theatre yesterday afternoon a remarkable moving picture play received its first presentation here. The new movie is an epic drama made by Edward S. Curtis and called "In the Land of the Head Hunters," and the actors are all members of the little-known tribe of Indians of the North Pacific Coast. Mr. Curtis spent many years in studying the Indian tribes of North America and making photographic studies of them. The movie drama took several years to complete and represents a period in American history of the first exploration of the North Pacific Coast.

Accompanying the pictures is interpretive music composed by John J. Braham from phonographic records made by Mr. Curtis of the tribal music.

While the picture shows the primitive Indian tribes in their native haunts, it also tells a dramatic love story with many adventurous incidents, including sea fights between crews in war canoes, the sacking and burning of Indian villages, and exciting hunting and sealing views. Mr. Curtis took the films along the Kwakiutl of Southern Alaska and Northern British Columbia. These seafaring Indians are little known to most explorers. A large part of the film is shown in natural colors by a new photographic process invented by Prof. Hochsteter.

The Strand Theatre is showing a new movie drama in "The Ghost Breaker," which has been made into picture form from Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard's play of the same name, in which H. B. Warner was seen as a star. Mr. Warner appears in the leading rôle in the picture version.

Obituary Notes.

WILLIAM CUMMINGS FROST, a descendant of William Frost, who located at Glen Cove, L. I., more than 200 years ago, died yesterday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. I. Cozzens, at 886 West End Avenue, in his seventieth year. He was born in Glen Cove, and until a few years ago, when he retired, had been in the insurance business in this city. Mr. Frost is survived by a daughter.

MEYER RUEF, father of Abraham Ruef, one time political leader of San Francisco, died there Sunday night at the age of 79. He had been ill since the State Board of Prison Directors last refused to parole his son from San Quentin Penitentiary, where he is serving a sentence of fourteen years for bribery.

ARTHUR SPEIR SHEPPARD, former owner of The Dover World and a member of the Santo Domingo Commission under President Grant, is dead at Batopilas, Mexico.

WILLIAM BEARD EGINTON, 73 years old, retired, died yesterday at his residence, 733 East Thirty-second Street, Flatbush. He was formerly for many years with the H. B. Claflin Company. Mr. Eginton was a member of the Foresters of America, Kings County Lodge, No. 511, F. and A. M., and the Masonic Veteran Association. He left three daughters.

DANIEL BENDANN, well known in art circles, and a famous old-time photographer, is dead at his home in Baltimore. He was born in Richmond, Va., seventy-nine years ago. Eminent men went to Baltimore to pose before his camera, among them President James Buchanan, Gen. Robert E. Lee, Horace Greeley, and all the then leading actors.

SAMUEL WILDER, 63 years old, a member of the firm of Leon Wilder & Sons, hosiery and fancy goods, of 83 Bowery, died yesterday at his home, 935 East 163d Street. He was born in Germany, and had been in this country for fifty years and in business on the east side for more than forty years. Hands That Do the Housework Often Show It.

If dishwashing, scrubbing and the other necessary duties of your day's work roughen and redden your hands —then use VELOGEN.

Apply it liberally at night after washing the hands with warm water, rubbing it gently into the skin. The dry skin quickly feels its influence and a soothing, softening result follows. Use it again in the morning, wiping off what remains on your hands. VELOGEN does not grow hair, nor does it stain the most delicate fabric. Use it on your face in case of windburn—chapped lips and cheeks.

REV. DR. STEWART MARRIES.

President of Auburn Theological Seminary Weds Miss Ella L. Hart.

The Rev. Dr. George Black Stewart, President of the Auburn Theological Seminary, Auburn, N. Y., and Miss Ella L. Hart of Harrisburg, Penn., were married at noon yesterday in the Brick Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. William P. Merrill, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride, whose brother, Lane S. Hart, 2d, of Duncannon, Penn., gave her in marriage, was unattended. The wedding breakfast was held at the Hotel Biltmore, and later Dr. Stewart and his bride left for the South, where they will spend several weeks.

Dr. Stewart has for the last twenty-seven years been a Trustee of Princeton University and for fifteen years has been associated with the seminary at Auburn. He has written a number of works on religious subjects. Last year he was prominently mentioned for Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. Dr. Stewart's first wife was Miss Mary Adeline Thompson of Columbus, Ohio, who died ten years ago. They had three sons and a daughter, all of whom are living.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hart and a niece of Major Lane S. Hart of Harrisburg. She is a graduate of Wilson College, and has been active in social and church work in Harrisburg.

DAY DANCE FOR WORK GIRLS

Society Women Consider Proposal of Strand Theatre People.

Mitchel Mark, head of the Strand Theatre, at Broadway and Forty-seventh Street, plans to open a restaurant on the top floor of the theatre building with dancing at the noon luncheon hour, and food prices at par with dairy restaurants in the neighborhood.

The theatre people are also endeavoring to interest society in the plan, and have talked with Miss Elisabeth Marbury, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Miss Anne Morgan, and others, who have taken the matter under advisement.

Miss Marbury said last night that the scheme was only in its preliminary stage. "We have talked the matter over and are trying to make up our minds whether the idea is feasible for working girls," said Miss Marbury. "Further than that there is nothing to be said at present."

At the Strand Theatre last night it was said that the new resort would be opened on Jan. 1. There will be dancing from 11:30 A. M. until 2:30 P. M., to which admission will be free. No tipping will be permitted and customers will wait on themselves.

From 4:30 to 6:30 P. M. an admission of 50 cents will be charged, but that will include tea. In the evening the same admission will be charged, but there will be nothing to eat—except what the dancers care to buy at low prices without waiters. Hat boys will care for wraps, but will not be permitted to accept tips.

At no time will alcoholic drinks be served. From opening until closing there will be two orchestras for dancers.

Luncheon for Mrs. S. B. Elkins.

Mrs. James R. McKee of West Seventy-second Street gave a luncheon yesterday for Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins at the Waldorf-Astoria, after having had her guests at the first Bagby Musical morning. The other guests included Mrs. Leonard Wood, Mrs. C. A. Coffin, Mrs. J. Van Vechten Olcott, Mrs. Ferdinand Wilmerding, Mrs. Preston Satterwhite, and Miss Leary.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mrs. Edward R. Stettinius and Miss Isabel Stettinius of 16 East Seventy-third Street will give a luncheon tomorrow for several of the season's débutantes.

Miss Barbara Shedd, the daughter of Mrs. John M. Shedd, will give a luncheon today at her home, 148 East Thirty-eighth Street.

Mrs. James Blanchard Clews has invitations out for a luncheon and theatre party on Dec. 28 for Miss Noemi Gibert Townsend.

The wedding of Miss Julia J. Calhoun and Baron Egbert de Nagell will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon in St. Thomas's Church, and will be followed by a reception at the Calhoun residence, 667 Madison Avenue. The Baron is to wear the uniform of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

Mrs. H. Clinton Backus will give a theatre party on New Year's Eve. The guests are to be débutantes of the season, and a number of young men, and a supper at Sherry's will follow the play.

Mrs. T. Halsted Myers will give a party, with dancing on Dec. 21 for her young son, Halsted H. Myers, and young people not yet out.

Miss Marion Macdonald, a granddaughter of Charles Macdonald of New York, will make her début tomorrow, at a reception, at 1,305 Albemarle Road, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Daniel S. Lamont of 2 West Fifty-third Street, will give a reception this afternoon to introduce her daughter, Miss Katharine Lamont.

WANTS NATION'S AID IN LABOR MARKET

Industrial Relations Commission Urges Need of a Central Federal Employment Bureau.

SEEKS CAUSES OF UNREST

Employers and Employes Agree on Many Points—Commissioners Cry "Get Back the Land!"

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—After a nominal existence of nearly three years, but with a working life of little more than one year, the United States Commission on Industrial Relations today submitted to Congress its first annual report. While the report is mostly a summary without comment of the testimony, taken in hearings in industrial centres from New York to San Francisco, it outlines a number of important subjects on which Congress later will, in more detail, be asked to legislate.

The one emphatic recommendation in the report favors the establishment by Congress of a Bureau of Employment in the Department of Labor, which would co-operate with State and municipal employment offices, regulate private employment agencies, doing interstate business, and establish clearing houses for industrial information, "uniting all labor exchanges into one national system." The report avoids the political question of the causes of unemployment, but indicates its widespread existence by a strong reference to "the imperative necessity of organizing a market for labor on a modern business basis, so that there will be no vacant jobs and idle workers in the same community at the same time."

In addition to this recommendation, which is made with considerable definiteness, the report announces that proposals for constructive legislation will be submitted to Congress later regarding labor exchanges, industrial education, vocational guidance, and apprenticeship, safety, sanitation, health of employes, and administration of laws relating thereto, smuggling of Asiatics, mediation, conciliation, and arbitration, women and child labor, minimum wage, hours of labor; agriculture and farm labor; social insurance, especially workmen's sickness, and invalidity insurance, and labor and the law.

The report is signed by Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, Chairman of the commission; Prof. John R. Commons of Madison, Wis.; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of New York City, Harris Weinstock of San Francisco, S. Thurston Ballard of Louisville, John B. Lennon of Bloomington, Ill.; James O'Connell of Washington, and Austin B. Garretson of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

The commission early in its investigations reached the conclusion that unrest as between employers and employes was not confined to mining, manufacturing, and transportation, but extended to agriculture. Witnesses convinced the commission that on the farms there was the same trouble regarding uncertainty and irregularity of employment as in the factories, and that the marked growth of the tenant system of farming was alienating agricultural workers from the land and wiping out the small farmer. On this subject the report says:

"We are warned that a gradual alienation of the worker from the land has taken place. In proof of this contention our attention is derected to the increasing price of land, which makes it more and more difficult for a poor man to acquire a farm or a home, with the large holdings in the hands of corporations and individuals, and to the growth of the large class of roaming, homeless agricultural and casual laborers.

"To the cry 'Back to the land' is suggested a counter-appeal, 'Get back the land.' The commission is investigating these questions of land tenancy, farm labor, land ownership, speculation and taxation, as affecting industrial conditions and relations."

The most radical suggestion in the report is made interrogatively following an extended discussion of the attitude of both employer and employe to the law. Witnesses from both groups told the commission that the machinery of the law was used against them and justice.

Without passing upon the merits of the conflicting contentions, the commission opens up a wide future investigation with the question:

"Is there need for changes, improvements and adaptations, or must entirely new legal machinery be devised for the control of industry."

As to some of the causes of industrial unrest there was substantial agreement among witnesses, both employers and employes. These may be summarized as follows:

Largely a world-wide movement arising from a laudable desire for better living conditions. Advanced by representatives of labor, Socialists, and employers and generally indorsed.

A protest against low wages, long hours, and improper working conditions in many industries. Advanced by practically all labor representatives and assented to by many employers.

A desire on the part of the workers for a voice in the determination of conditions under which they labor, and a revolt against arbitrary treatment of individual workers and a suppression of organization. This was almost uniformly approved by labor witnesses.

Unemployment and the insecurity of employment. Generally advanced by witnesses from every standpoint.

Unjust distribution of the products of industry. Advanced by most labor representatives and agreed to by most employers.

Misunderstanding and prejudice. Agreed to by employers and employes.

Agitation and agitators. Generally advanced by employers, but defended by labor representatives and others as a necessary means of education.

The rapid rise in prices as compared with wages.

The rapidly growing feeling that redress for injuries and oppression cannot be secured through existing institutions.

Among the causes advanced in addition by witnesses who represented employers are the sudden transition of large numbers of foreigners from repression to freedom, making them an easy prey to labor agitators; a universal craze to get rich quickly; the decay of old ideas of honesty and thrift; organization for combative purposes instead of for co-operation; violence in labor troubles; sympathetic strikes; jurisdictional disputes; meddlesome and burdensome legislation, and the financial irresponsibility of labor unions.

Both sides generally approved of collective bargaining. Both sides advocate arbitration and mediation, and both sides agree in opposing any form of compulsory arbitration. At the same time the employers for the most part advocated a rule similar to that of the Canadian Industrial Disputes act prohibiting strikes and lockouts in public utilities pending investigation by mediators assisted by representatives of the contending groups. The employes told the commission that such a rule would work only to the advantage of the employing public corporation, giving it time to take steps to break the strike should it finally be declared.

LL. D. FOR DE LAPRADELLE.

Columbia Honors Visiting French Professor.

Geouffre de Lapradelle, Professor of International Public Law in the University of Paris, and visiting French Professor for the year at Columbia University, was honored by that institution yesterday by the conferring upon him of the honorary degree of Doctor of Law.

John Bassett Moore, formerly Counselor of State and Professor of International Law at Columbia, presented Dr. de Lapradelle for the degree. Professor Moore commented upon the high standing which Dr. de Lapradelle enjoyed here and abroad and added that, "even though it be true in the title of one of his works, he has coupled 'Imperialism and Monroeism,' it must be confessed that he has discussed international questions with rare intelligence and discernment."

President Butler in conferring the degree referred to him as one "teaching with easy mastery and with unusual charm principles and policies to which the nations of the world must constantly turn for light on the path toward justice and the reign of law in the field of international relations."

HERE TO GREET HERRICK.

Ohio Sends Delegation to Welcome ex-Ambassador Home.

Fifty-two representative citizens of Cleveland arrived at the Waldorf the first thing yesterday morning so as to be sure to be on hand when Myron T. Herrick, lately Ambassador to Paris, arrives here today on the French liner Rochambeau. Bankers, lawyers, manufacturers, merchants, all personal friends of Mr. Herrick, have come to extend the greeting of Cleveland and of Ohio to the man who is now said to be Ohio's favorite son, and from what was heard in the Waldorf lobby yesterday, if a full-fledged boom for the former Governor of that State is launched today for the Presidency of the United States nobody will be surprised.

As H. O. Van Hart, who was instrumental in getting together the Reception Committee and is in charge of it, said everybody composing it knows Gov. Herrick so well that he won't have to kowtow and say "Your Excellency," and then wait about to see whether he can approach the Presence.

The Ohioans came to New York in four private cars. There are John Sherwin, President of the First National Bank; C. A. Otis, a broker; A. W. Ellenberger, who is said to be either President or Director of more concerns than almost anybody in Ohio; S. P. Haller; John J. Sullivan, former United States District Attorney; Andrew Squires, a well-known corporation lawyer; A. A. Augustus, A. N. Barron, Harvey D. Goulder, and lots of others.

Parmley Herrick, son of the former Ambassador, came along, and he and Mr. Van Hart, with the latter's wife and son, expect to go down the bay on the revenue cutter, and it is likely that the rest of the party will make the trip to Quarantine on a tug. Anyhow, the first reception will take place on the pier, and then Mr. Herrick will be conducted to the Waldorf, where there will be a second celebration of his homecoming.

GERARD PROPRIETOR WINS.

John Rankin Obtains Court Decision for Withdrawal of Police.

The two policemen who for some time have been standing near the clerk's desk in the Hotel Gerard in West Forty-fourth Street warning all persons that the hotel was disorderly and that persons registering there did so at their own risk will be withdrawn. Supreme Court Justice Pendleton granted the application yesterday of John Rankin, the proprietor, but the bluecoats were still there last night. They must go away today, however, or the Police Commissioner, and maybe the Mayor, will be in contempt of court.

The hotel was raided on Nov. 13, 1913, on the suspicion that it was disorderly. Many guests of the hotel, who had lived there a long time, signed a petition saying that the surveillance was unjustified. Among the signers were Mrs. Mana E. Sears, widow of Commander Walter J. Sears of the United States Navy, and Anna S. Peck. The decision of the court applies only to this particular hostelry, and is not a blanket decision covering all similar acts of surveillance whenever the police consider it necessary.

Mr. Rankin has a suit pending against the city for $50,000 damages for the injury done his property by the presence of the police.

OUTBOUND SHIPMENTS.

Firearms, Machinery, and Foodstuffs Figure in the List.

Manifests of vessels leaving this port Nov. 7, released for publication yesterday at the Custom House, show that on the date mentioned, good-sized quantities of cotton duck for army requirements, as well as firearms, started for England.

The Atlantic Transport liner Minnetonka took out 6,489 packages of cartridges, valued at $185,257; 77 cases firearms, valued at $4,621; 494 packages cotton duck, valued at $28,943; 125 automobiles and parts for use of the British army, valued at $112,590; 313,931 pounds copper, valued at $38,661; 118 metal working machines, valued at $22,354; 598,250 pounds spelter, valued at $32,346; 149 cases hosiery, valued at $18,637; 60,104 packages canned meat, valued at $272,897; 5,613 cases eggs, valued at $46,114; 75,855 pounds bacon, valued at $10,318; 279 packages copper wire, valued at $22,803; 44 horses, valued at $4,400; 4,579 pigs lead, valued at $16,160; 12,600 bags flour, valued at $48,500; 11,500 bags sugar, valued at $48,675, and 2,025 packages drugs and hospital supplies, valued at $44,051.

Steamer Joseph W. Fordney, clearing here Nov. 7 for Copenhagen, carried 29,900 bags flour, valued at $168,000; raw wool worth $21,773; 39,860 bushels wheat, valued at $47,074, and 173 cases typewriters, valued at $14,641. The steamer Kansas City for Bristol, Nov. 7, manifested 448,338 pounds spelter, valued at $33,360; 14,330 bags sugar, valued at $66,848, and 488,578 pounds wax, valued at $33,360.

TEA BOXES DUTIABLE.

Customs Court Holds Big Ones Are, but Not Small Ones.

Importers of tea in small coverings or containers have won a substantial victory in the United States Court of Customs Appeals, over merchants entering tea in bulk and putting it up for sale.

Paragraph 627 of the free list of the present law as finally enacted reads as follows: "Tea, not specially provided for in this section, and tea plants: Provided that the cans, boxes, or other containers of tea packed in packages or less than five pounds each shall be dutiable at the rate chargeable thereon if imported empty."

The decision of the Customs Court construing the above provision stands in the name of the Wright & Graham Company, commission merchants of this city.

Judge Barber, who wrote the decision for the court, acknowledges that the language of the paragraph is not free from ambiguity. In finding for the importing firm, and reversing the board, Judge Barber says:

"The Government's claim that it was the intent of Congress to afford some measure of protection to the tea packers of this country is satisfied by this interpretation. The only difference is that we give effect to this intent by a tax upon the larger and more durable, useful and valuable containers instead of upon those that are small, unsubstantial and of no commercial value."

BUSINESS IS IMPROVING.

This Is a Report from Machinery Manufacturing Plants.

J. A. Massel, commercial agent of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, who has been making a tour of the machinery manufacturing plants of the country preparatory to sailing on Saturday for South America to investigate opportunities for American trade expansion in the machinery line, said yesterday that conditions are rapidly improving at all of the plants he visited. The agent's trip took him through the leading machine shop centres of the East, and as far West as Chicago and Milwaukee. The trip was made with a view to bringing the manufacturers and exporters of machinery into touch with the agent before his departure.

Mr. Massel conferred with representatives of machine tool, gas engine and concrete machinery plants. While all of these industries have experienced poor business until recently, necessitating the laying off of employes, the agent everywhere received reports that men are being taken back so that many firms are now operating on a 75 per cent. basis capacity. Other concerns, shut down for a considerable period, are running from 25 to 50 per cent. of capacity with every indication that in the near future they will be running on a 100 per cent. basis.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Following the retirement of L. S. Fribourg on Saturday last, the business of H. Herrman, Sternbach & Co., piece goods, 21 Waverly Place, will be continued by Daniel Webster Herrman, the senior partner. The firm is considering moving uptown, but a new location has not yet been chosen. F. Vietor & Achelis will no longer be factors for them.

About 85 cents on the dollar was averaged yesterday at an auction sale of dry goods conducted by I. Singer at 582 Broadway, Brooklyn. Staple cotton goods seemed most in demand. There was a good attendance of buyers.

Not Many Mills for Indigo Work.

A selling agent in the piece goods market, after a canvass of the mills, found out that just eighteen are capable of making uniform cloth in which indigo is used for dyeing purposes. He figured out that, working day and night, a production of sixty yards to the loom might be calculated on. Allowing an average of sixty looms to the mill, indigo dye fabrics to the amount of 64,800 yards for every twenty-four hours would be produced by the mills constructed to turn out such work. Three weeks must be given the mills for assembling materials and making preparations to start actual operations, and the deliveries called for in some of the contracts offered, he said, seem to take no account of this.

Information That Misleads.

The credit man for a large house selling the cutting-up trade registers a rather strong complaint against the loose way in which certain houses answer credit inquiries. It has come to his notice very often, he said, that a credit man will give out misleading information. For instance, the investigator will be told that a manufacturer is sold up to $3,000 whereas he has not been on the books of that concern for over a year. Offhand, the extension of such liberal credit would seem to indicate that the account was a good risk. The condition of the firm might have altered considerably in a year's time, however, leaving the credit man who is to check the account in a poor way for lack of accurate information.

Sure of Fabric Glove Supply.

Conditions in the fabric glove manufacturing industry abroad have shown marked improvement lately, according to an executive connected with a house that operates a factory in Saxony. Production for a time fell to 15 per cent. of normal, but sufficient women and men over the age of 45 have been found to fill the vacancies created by those operatives who have joined the colors. The prospect for the coming Spring in the fabric glove business is regarded as very good by the manufacturers, chiefly on account of the scarcity of kid gloves and the small chance of getting further supplies of the latter. The chamoisette gloves made abroad and the silk gloves turned out in this country seem assured of large sales during the coming season.

A New Spring Pump.

Another pretty pump made its appearance in the local shoe market late last week, according to the Retailers' Profit bulletin, sent out by Morse & Rogers. The general style idea is the same as that of the satin brocade Colonial pump now so popular for evening wear, with the tongue left off. The new pump is made with a patent leather vamp and a gray buckskin back, which comes around to the front and meets over the vamp, thus forming a collar of about half an inch. The centre seam is covered with a small, round cut steel ornament, and the heel of the pump is of the much-favored Spanish type. Gray topped shoes are in high favor with young men at the moment. Most of them are made up with gunmetal vamps.

Velvet Dress Sales Hurt.

While business in velvet dresses has been fairly good this season with the houses that make them, it has been badly handicapped by the lack of sustained cold weather. Certain style features of this year's models, notably the use of all-velvet bodies, have made their sale more dependent on seasonable weather than usual, by reason of the weight and warmth of these garments. Because of this, some of the manufacturers say that if a real cold snap does not come soon, a good part of the season's business will be lost. Combinations of velvet with satin, faille, and other lighter materials have done quite well, being favored by some buyers, because they were lighter in weight than all-velvet garments. Few circular skirts are being shown in velvet dresses.

Rug Buyers Hold Off.

Reports from certain quarters of the carpet and rug field say that advance buying of Spring merchandise by the retailers this year has not been over active. Just how much of this inactivity is due to a retrenching policy and to the auction which preceded the regular openings is problematical. The fact remains, however, that while most of the jobbers have covered themselves well, retail stocks are in many cases abnormally low. As this condition is usually indicative of a good repeat business, the manufacturers are not worrying, though they would naturally like to have as many orders in hand as possible. Some of the sellers are at a loss to know why the buyers should be holding off at this time, for all of the major raw materials are getting scarce and higher, and higher production costs are in plain sight. This, it is said, will mean higher selling prices before the new year is far advanced.

Use for Returned Goods.

One of the local wholesalers who has been troubled greatly by the return evil practiced by some of the retailers with whom he does business has hit upon a scheme for lessening his losses from it. When he gets back goods that are not too badly mussed by the handling they have received, he puts a certain mark on the container to show that the goods have been put back in stock after being sold. Then, when another proved returner sends in after some of that kind of merchandise, the wholesaler sends him as much as he can of the goods that were returned by the first man, and repeats the process when necessary. In this way he confines his returned merchandise to the same goods so far as possible, and is enabled to have a much larger percentage of his stock fresh for shipment to good accounts than would otherwise be the case. As yet his plan has not been detected by any of his "returning" customers.

Big Order for Uniforms.

It was announced yesterday that the British War Office has placed an order with Gillespie Brothers & Co., 11 Broadway, and 82 Fenchurch Street, London, for uniforms to the approximate value of $3,000,000. This order calls for 200,000 complete Winter uniforms, consisting of overcoat, service coat, and trousers. All of the material to be used in making up the clothing is to be supplied here, as well as the labor required in manufacturing the goods. The order is to be executed within ten weeks. It is understood that it will give employment to at least 7,000 people for that length of time. A representative of the firm said yesterday that when the filing of the order starts, it is expected that the uniforms will be turned out at the average rate of one every twenty seconds. Gillespie Brothers & Co. have been the agents for many years for the various island governments of the British West Indies. Further large war orders in this country are expected to be placed through this firm.

Toymakers to Enlarge Plants.

In order to keep up with the increased demand, due to the war, the domestic toy manufacturers will add to their production facilities during the coming year. It seems to be the general belief that the business coming from the necessary substitution of domestic for foreign toys will, in large part, remain here, even after the close of the war. This is looked for as a result of the wider understanding on the part of buyers of what this country can supply. Formerly the buyers were accustomed to pay a flying visit to this market and embark as soon as possible for the other side, where the bulk of their purchases were placed. Now, even though a trip abroad is to be made, the buyer will pick up what he can here before running the chance of returning empty handed from Europe. The increase in the toy business which the manufacturers confidently expect will develop most strongly in the mechanical toy end.

Printcloth Trading Fair.

A fair business was done in printcloths in this market yesterday. One of the best orders placed during the day, called for 10,000 pieces of 38½-inch 60-48s for January-July delivery at 3⅛ cents. There were some fair sales of 38½-inch 64-64s at 3 13-16 cents for January delivery. While bids of 3⅝ cents for 1915 shipments of 64-60s were declined in several quarters, it was reported that some small sales of these goods had been put through at that figure for delivery during the early months of the coming year. There was not much attention given to sheetings and drills during the day, and fancies received hardly more than passing notice. There was some divergence in the prices asked for certain printcloth constructions, and figures quoted for this month's delivery could not be duplicated in several instances when shipment was asked beyond the turn of the year. A fairly average price list follows:

39-inch, 80-80s	5⅛c	38½-in., 64-56s	3 9-16c
39-inch, 72-76s	4⅞c	38½-inch, 60-52s	3¼c

38½-in., 64-64s	3 13-16c	27-inch, 64-60s	2⅛c
38½-in., 64-60s	3 11-16c	27-in., 56-52s	2 1-16c

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Duties on Tiles Not Levied on the Vacant Spaces Between Them.

It was decided yesterday by the Board of General Appraisers that special band cutters and self-feeders are not agricultural implements or harvesters within the meaning of the Tariff act of 1909. A. S. Fraser of Buffalo thought that they were and claimed a 15 per cent. rate. The Collector took duty at 45 per cent. as manufactures of metal. Judge Fischer concludes that as the articles in controversy cannot be used for planting, drilling, or reaping, nor be deemed harvesters, the assessment was properly made.

Austin Nichols & Co. succeeded in getting an allowance for peas in tins damaged by sea water. The goods, with the exception of two cases, were delivered from the dock to the importer's warehouse. The consignment sent to the Appraiser's Stores for the usual customs examination and appraisal was in good condition. The entire shipment was thereupon assessed at the regular duties accruing on goods of this kind and duties paid. Later the firm discovered that 1,892 tins contained in the cases sent to the company's warehouse were soaked with water, which had penetrated into the tins. Judge Waite holds that the damaged part of the shipment is a non-importation entitling the importers to refunds of the duties paid.

Karl Neuhoff convinced the board that the appraising offcers erred in the classification of some of the goods covered by invoices under protest. Webbings or trimming entered by this importer were held dutiable under the old law at the rate of 45 cents a pound and 60 per cent. ad valorem as manufactures in chief value of artificial silk. Witnesses put on the stand in behalf of the importer, together with data from the books of Vogelsang, Goebel & Co., the manufacturers, giving details of the cost of production, material used, &c., resulted in a portion of the goods being granted entry at 60 per cent. as manufactures in chief value of cotton.

Importers are not required under the tariff laws to pay duty on the aggregate of the vacant spaces shown between earthenware tiles, according to a decision in the name of Rudolph Schroeder. The importer's protest was not against the rate of assessment, but the method followed in measuring the tiles, which resulted in the payment of duty on space between tiles. The tiles are less than two inches square. The old tariff specified that tiles are dutiable at 8 cents per square foot. The Appraiser's determination was reached by ascertaining how many of the circular tiles could be placed in a space of 12 square inches, thereby making no allowance for the necessary vacant space in consequence of the tiles being circular. The contention of the protestant, sustained by the board, is that the Appraiser should have taken the measure of each tile which would have been shown to be uniformly of 13-16 of an inch, and that upon such basis of calculation there would be 278 pieces to the square foot.

The board affirmed the assessment made by the Surveyor of Customs at St. Louis on importations of alum in rolls entered by Charles W. Wyman & Co. Duty was taken at 60 per cent. ad valorem under the act of 1909 as toilet preparations. One of the claims was for a tax of three-eighths of 1 cent. a pound as alum in cakes, and the other for 20 per cent. duty as a non-enumerated manufactured article.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States, for the Southern District of New York.—In the Matter of AMERICAN STEEL BARREL COMPANY, Alleged Bankrupt.

WHEREAS, application has been made by the petitioning creditors herein for the dismissal of their petition for adjudication in bankruptcy against the American Steel Barrel Company, a domestic corporation, of No. 17 Battery Place, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, in said District;

NOW, on motion of J. Gardner Stevenson, Esq., attorney for the petitioning creditors herein, it is ORDERED that all creditors of the American Steel Barrel Company show cause before the District Court of the United States, for the Southern District of New York, at the Federal Post Office Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, in said District, on the 21st day of December, 1914, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as such hearing may be had, why such application should not be granted.

That notice of such hearing be given by mailing a copy of this order at least ten days prior to the date set for such hearing to each of the creditors whose names appear on the list of creditors set forth in the affidavit of Charles A. Guibert annexed to the petition on which this application is based, and by publishing a copy thereof in the designated newspaper of such alleged bankrupt's residence not later than one week prior to such date.

WITNESS, the Hon. Charles M. Hough, Judge of the said Court, at the City of New York, in said District, on the 4th day of December, 1914.

C. M. HOUGH, U. S. D. J.

NO. 20285.—IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF the United States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of BENJAMIN KUTNER, Alleged Bankrupt.

TO THE CREDITORS OF THE ABOVE NAMED ALLEGED BANKRUPT:

NOTICE is hereby given that on the 2nd day of September, A. D. 1914, a petition in bankruptcy was filed against the above named alleged bankrupt, and that said alleged bankrupt has filed schedules of his property and a list of his creditors as required by law, which schedules may be examined at this office.

And you are further notified that after the alleged bankrupt has been examined in open court the said alleged bankrupt proposes to offer terms of composition to his creditors of 20 per cent. cash, and that a meeting of the creditors herein will be held at the office of Peter B. Olney, Esq., Referee in Bankruptcy, No. 68 William Street, New York City, on the 18th day of December, A. D. 1914, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the creditors may attend, prove their claims examine the alleged bankrupt, act upon the composition proposed by the alleged bankrupt and transact such business as may properly come before said meeting.

Dated, New York, December 7th, 1914.

Bermudian Is Being Refitted.

The Quebec steamship Bermudian, which was chartered by the Canadian Government to carry troops to England, is now being refitted in the Erie Basin drydock. In order to accommodate 800 Canadian militia the greater part of her cabin accommodation was torn down and other alterations were made. The saloon and cabins will be entirely refurnished in time for the Bermudian to resume her weekly service to Bermuda on Dec. 26.

Dismiss Bolognesi Case.

The bankruptcy petition filed against A. Bolognesi & Co., private bankers, of 52 Wall Street, was dismissed yesterday by Judge Hough in the Federal District Court on the ground that as all the qualified creditors who had filed the petition had received permission to withdraw, it was not possible to grant the petition on the intervention of other qualified creditors after four months had elapsed.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The coast storm was central Monday night off New Jersey and moving north-northeastward. It caused a continuation of severe gales on the Atlantic Coast north of Cape Hatteras and rains in the Middle Atlantic States and snow in parts of Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, and New England.

Temperatures have not changed decisively in any section in the last twenty-four hours. There will be rains and snows Tuesday and probably fair Wednesday in the North Atlantic States.

Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from Hatteras to Eastport.

Winds along the North Atlantic Coast will be northeast, shifting to northwest gales, and diminishing Tuesday and Wednesday; Middle Atlantic Coast, strong north and northwest, diminishing; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate variable.

FORECASTS TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York and New England—Snow or rain Tuesday. Wednesday, fair.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Cloudy Tuesday, probably preceded by local rains. Wednesday, fair.

Western New York—Local rains and snows Tuesday. Wednesday, partly cloudy.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1913.	1914.		1913.	1914.
3 A. M.	48	33	4 P. M.	53	35

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Favorable Significance of the Decision to Resume Public Trading in Stocks.

Overshadowing all other financial developments yesterday was the decision of the Governing Committee of the New York Stock Exchange to reopen the Stock Exchange, for trading in stocks, on Saturday. This is to be done under restrictions in the matter of prices as well as in the matter of the stocks to be admitted to public trading as a measure of safeguarding the market, but the list of the stocks is to be a long one and the prices at which current sales are being made are in many instances so far above the July 30 prices that it is evident that public trading will be resumed under favorable circumstances. The event will be a notable one for it will give public expression in striking form to the vast improvement which has lately come about in the financial situation.

For ten days trading has been proceeding in bonds on the Stock Exchange and no untoward developments have checked the improvement denoted by the re-establishment of a public market in those issues. The success attained there is looked upon as offering favorable promise of what may be expected when the dealings are extended to stocks. Events are moving steadily toward the freeing of the security markets to a still further extent of the restrictions which have been put upon them since the outbreak of war. Each step in this direction marks fresh progress in the deliverance of the business and financial situation as a whole from the barriers erected against them by the war.

When the call money market was reopened, in connection with the re-establishment of a public market in bonds, a long step was taken toward lifting the chief incubus which had rested on the money market. Until then the call loans outstanding at the close of July were called loans in name only. With the reopening of the Stock Exchange still greater freedom will be given to the collateral loan market and call loans will, no doubt, soon be demand loans in reality, as well as in name. Indeed, even now they are to a large extent, for it is now possible to borrow freely both on call and on time. The most notable feature of the money market yesterday was an advance in German exchange. Marks which lately were selling under 86 and at the close of last week no higher than 87⅝ sold yesterday up to 92. This still leaves German exchange considerably under the point at which we could normally import gold from Germany, but nonetheless brings this exchange a considerable distance away from the very abnormal condition which existed of late. The chief explanation of yesterday's rise in marks was found in the sales of American securities which have been made here for German account. In attempting to estimate the extent of this movement from the rapid rise in exchange it must, of course, be borne in mind that the market of late has been a narrow one. The purchase or sale of a relatively small amount of marks therefore influences the rate of exchange to a much larger extent than usual.

The opening of the Stock Exchange to bond trading did much to stimulate cheerfulness in the financial district and still more influence in that direction is likely to be exerted by yesterday's decision to reopen for stocks as well. That has been regarded very naturally as offering a more serious problem than the resumption of bond trading, and the fact that the Governors of the Exchange feel warranted in taking this further step toward the re-establishment of an open market carries much favorable significance. Bankers have been in favor of this step for some time past, in the belief that conditions have so far improved that public trading in stocks could be resumed to great advantage. The step now to be taken by the Exchange was resolved upon after consultation with the banks and has therefore not only the approval of the Governors of the Exchange themselves, but also of the banking community.

GIVES UP ORE PROPERTIES.

Steel Corporation to End Relations with Great Northern Ore Co.

DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 7.—Relations between the Great Northern Ore Company and the United States Steel Corporation will end Jan. 1, 1915, it was announced today. The Great Northern Company will operate its own ore properties, which have estimated deposits of 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 tons.

The Great Northern Ore properties have been under lease to the Steel Corporation since 1907. All are on the Mesaba range, in Minnesota.

STOCK TRADING OPENS SATURDAY

Business on the Exchange to be Permitted with a List of 180 Issues.

GOVERNORS ACT IN UNISON

Improvement of Financial Situation and Resumption of Business Cheer Brokers.

Governors of the Stock Exchange voted in a special meeting yesterday to resume trading in stocks on the Exchange next Saturday. The decision to renew operations met with the unanimous approval of the Governors, who acted with assurance that bankers believed the financial situation so much improved that open dealings in stocks could be conducted without serious disturbance of the money and credit situation.

At the close of the meeting a list of 180 stocks was made public, of the 565 issues on the board, in which business will be permitted under price restrictions to be decided upon on Friday.

The vote of the Governors bore out the statement in THE TIMES last Saturday that a plan of resumption of trading had been completed by the Committee of Five and approved by the Clearing House Committee of the banks and would be placed before the Board of Governors on Monday. Inquiries at the Stock Exchange on Saturday brought from the Committee of Five the statement that plans to resume dealings in stocks on the floor of the Exchange had not yet been completed and that no meeting of the Board of Governors had been called, and none would be called until the plans were perfected.

The Governors at the meeting yesterday passed a resolution empowering the Committee of Five to permit dealings on the Exchange in such stocks as it might designate under restrictions prescribed by it. The ratification of the plan for renewed trading had been a foregone conclusion, and the committee had all necessary details in order. In a general way the method to be followed was outlined in this statement by the Committee of Five:

> Beginning on Saturday, Dec. 12, 1914, dealings in certain specified stocks listed on the Exchange will be permitted on the floor of the Exchange between the hours of 10 and 3 o'clock each day, except Saturday, when dealings shall cease at 12 o'clock noon.
>
> Dealings in such stocks as shall be specified by and be under the supervision and regulation of the committee, shall be for "cash" or "regular way" only, and not below the minimum prices authorized by the committee from time to time. Transactions at prices below those allowed by the committee or in evasion of its rules are prohibited.

Better Terms Than for Bonds.

In one respect more liberal terms for early dealings in stocks were prescribed by the committee than were established for bonds two weeks ago. Shares of one class were set off by themselves without any regulation of prices whatever. These were stocks which were quoted on July 30, the day the Exchange closed, at or below $15 a share. Included are numerous one-time active speculative issues, such as Rock Island, Wabash, Denver and Rio Grande preferred, American Woolen, and Corn Products common.

All stocks admitted to dealings which were being cleared through the Clearing House of the Exchange on July 30 will be admitted to clearance through the regular channels when business starts up. The shares which have been bought and sold through the Clearing House since the Exchange closed will no longer be handled through this medium when open trading starts if they are included in the list at the Stock Exchange. If they are barred from the floor they will still be dealt in at the Clearing House.

The plan provides for the re-opening of the "loan market" for stocks on the board simultaneously with the renewal of business, but for those shares only which are admitted to trading. Of the stock loans outstanding when the Exchange closed down it is understood that about 40 per cent. have been cleared away, and the Committee of Five has been empowered to see that the remainder is liquidated as rapidly as arrangements may be made between borrower and lender.

Borrowed and loaned stocks will be cleared as before July 30, but only in cases where the shares involved are admitted to open transactions on the board. The Committee of Five has decided that loans of stocks which are excluded from the Exchange be permitted to stand unless both parties to contracts agree to complete them.

In the subjoined list are the stocks which will be open for trading on Saturday. It will be noted that some of the more prominent issues, which have enjoyed a wide distribution abroad, are not set down, including New York Central, Union and Southern Pacific, and Steel preferred and common.

Guard Against Foreign Selling.

The Governors desire to withhold from general trading for a time those shares which might prove to be targets for heavy selling from abroad, but it is expected that if European liquidation fails to appear in force, Union Pacific and its companion issues will soon be added to the list. The fact that dealings will be allowed only "regular way," or for delivery on the day following the one when sales are made, shows that the Committee of Five had the possibility of foreign selling in mind in drawing up the trading rules. As every possible means is to be taken to head off severe liquidation, it is expected that minimum prices for most stocks will be at or near the final figures established in sales on July 30.

The Committee of Five, however, has received power from the Governors to change minimum quotations from time to time. In this a radical change was made from the procedure governing transactions through the Clearing House. In Clearing House dealings the closing prices of July 30, minus the first dividend paid, have been rigidly adhered to as the lowest at which business could be done.

Definite news that the Exchange would reopen this week was decidedly cheering to brokers, whose income has been greatly reduced for more than four months. Arrangements were made immediately by some houses to take back employes who were laid off shortly after the board closed, and salary increases occurred in some quarters. J. S. Bache & Co. announced that their men had been restored to a full-pay basis, after many weeks of half pay because of dull business. About 200 persons were affected by the change.

BOSTON EXCHANGE TO OPEN.

Will Resume Business on Thursday —Trading to be Restricted.

BOSTON, Dec. 7.—The local Stock Exchange will be opened for restricted trading on Thursday. The decision was reached at a special meeting of the Exchange today. Business, it was arranged, will be conducted in a manner similar to that regulating the sale of bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

Charles Hayden was chosen Vice President of the local exchange to fill the vacancy caused by the death last week of A. L. Devens.

ST. LOUIS EXCHANGE OPENS.

Prices Steady and Demand for High-Grade Securities Good.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 7.—The St. Louis Stock Exchange, which has been closed since July 30, reopened today with a minimum price fixed for all shares traded in on the Exchange.

Opening prices were steady and the demand for high-grade securities was good.

PARIS BOURSE OPENS.

Curious Crowd Is Present, but Little Business Is Done.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—When the Paris Bourse opened today after having been closed since Sept. 3, many brokers and members of the outside public assembled, but their presence was apparently simply due to curiosity. The strident cries of stock prices usually audible were entirely absent, and if transactions took place they were effected in the course of conversation.

The market opened hesitating, and the closing was generally good. Rentes were quoted at 72 francs 50 centimes. The exchange on London was 25.10.

The brokers stood about after the opening endeavoring to find out from acquaintances something concerning the value of Government issues and other leading stocks. Every one was reticent, however, and no sale or purchase was recorded for nearly an hour. Then two bargains were struck. These were for East Parisian Priorite, which was quoted at 89, and Volga at 40.

Outside in the street many hundreds of jobbers were gathered, but, like those inside, they were idle.

It was remarked that many well-known faces were missing from the Bourse, principally those of Germans, who used to frequent the markets in great numbers. Others of the missing have been called to the colors of their regiments and are now fighting at the front.

The Stock Exchange Committee has issued a notice declaring that all brokers and their employes must produce evidence that they are French citizens or have been naturalized.

Los Angeles Exchange Opens.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—The Los Angeles Stock Exchange opened today after having been closed seventeen weeks. Trading was unrestricted in all listed stocks and bonds. Business at the outset was quiet, with prices firm.

Providence Exchange Reopens.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 7.—The Providence Stock Exchange, after being closed since July 30, reopened today for unrestricted trading.

PIERSON, JR., & CO. ASSIGN.

Stock Exchange Firm's Liabilities Estimated at $200,000.

The Stock Exchange firm of J. F. Pierson, Jr., & Co. made an assignmnet for the benefit of creditors yesterday to Ralph Wolf of 115 Broadway. Abraham Hershfield, attorney for the house, said that the firm had not been able to meet its obligations chiefly because a number of customers had failed to deposit adequate margin to carry stocks bought before the Exchange closed on July 30.

The firm's liabilities Mr. Hershfield estimated at about $200,000, which would be nearly, if not wholly, covered by assets in the final closing out of its affairs. The assignee will take charge of the business today and a statement of the firm's condition will be issued shortly.

It was learned in Wall Street that the assignment was made after the Stock Exchange authorities had inquired into the firm's cash and credit position, and found that the business could not be continued without additional resources. Since the Exchange closed the Board of Governors has kept a close eye on the affairs of the members, to the end of strengthening weak spots or of eliminating them before trading was renewed on the board.

The firm consisted of J. F. Pierson, Jr., and Clarence E. Fell, Mr. Pierson being the Stock Exchange member. The co-partnership dates back to Dec. 15, 1900.

BONDS WIN IN N.Y. RAILWAYS

Opposition to Present Accident Reserve Policy Elect Directors.

Holders of income bonds of the New York Railways Company, who sought proxies to elect representatives to the Board of Directors, won at the annual meeting yesterday, electing their candidates by 143,000, against 38,700.

Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life, leader of the opposition to the regular ticket, was elected, with F. S. Witherbee, a director of the Equitable Life, F. L. Leland, President of the New York County National Bank; Henry Ollesheimer, President of the Metropolitan Bank, and J. C. Cobb of Boston. They defeated Alexander J. Hemphill, President of the Guaranty Trust Company; Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the Westinghouse Company; Harry Bronner, of Hallgarten & Co., and E. S. Marsten of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company.

The Board consists of eleven members, six representing shareholders and five the bondholders. Opposition arose to the old Directors, because some bondholders thought they were getting too little, while too much of the company's earnings was being applied to a reserve fund to meet accident claims. Suit has been brought to test the matter.

ARRESTED FOR BANK RUN.

Circulars Printed by Tomashoff Alarmed East Side Depositors.

Simon Tomashoff, 19 years old, of 411 Christopher Avenue, Brooklyn, who conducts a printing establishment at 153 Henry Street, was arrested yesterday and charged with violating Section 303 of the Penal Code by circulating false information about a bank on which there was a recent run. A week ago Saturday, according to the police, a great many circulars, printed in Yiddish, which advised depositors in a certain east side bank to withdraw their money, as the bank was known to be insolvent, were distributed in a crowd in Rutgers Square. The distribution of the circulars, it was said, was followed by a run on the bank.

The State Banking Department obtained one of the circulars and turned it over to the police. Detectives Ettinger, Schallon, Herman, and Smith say they traced the circulars to Tomashoff's shop. They went there yesterday afternoon, and, posing as depositors of a bank, asked the printer if he would print for them circulars warning other depositors of the bank's insolvency. Thomasoff replied, the police say, that he had printed 8,000 of the other circulars for $14 and would print 5,000 similar to them for $11, whereupon the detectives placed him under arrest.

Tomashoff said he had taken the contract for printing the circulars from a man whose name he did not remember. The police believe that the recent runs on the Kass, State, and other banks were also caused by circulars.

SHIP CHINESE EGGS HERE.

63,238 Cases Will Go to Armies in the Field Eventually.

The British freighter Bredmount arrived yesterday from Hankow, China, having passed through the Panama Canal, with a cargo of 63,238 cases of frozen eggs in her refrigerator. This is the first shipment of eggs from China to reach this port. The Chinese have had the art of preserving eggs indefinitely for centuries past by burying them in the rich black mud along the banks of the Yang-tse, which contains preservative ingredients, it is said.

Officers of the Bredmount explained that the eggs for the foreign market are removed from their shells before being frozen. After being landed from the steamship today the Chinese eggs will be put in a bonded warehouse and will be re-shipped to Europe for consumption by the armies in the field.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

C. E. Fay, formerly with Gilbert Elliott & Co., and W. D. Shivers, formerly with Bigelow & Co., have formed a copartnership under the name of Shivers & Fay to transact business in investment securities at 66 Broadway.

Gordon R. McAllister has retired from the firm of Jenks, Gwynne & Co. to become a partner in Berdell Brothers, 34 Pine Street.

The Stock Exchange has received an application from the Interborough-Metropolitan Company to list $17,942,000 5 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, which has been in a voting trust.

George B. Caldwell, a former President of the Investment Bankers' Association, has been elected President of the Sperry & Hutchinson Company and of the Hamilton Corporation.

EXPORT 80,000 BALES OF COTTON

Shipments Made Yesterday Constituted a Record for This Season.

OPERATORS HOLD OFF

They Are Not Eager to Make Commitments in Advance of the Government Reports.

So far as developments in the cotton contract market yesterday were concerned, there was practically nothing worthy of comment. Trading was again of minimum proportions and was confined chiefly to May and October. The extreme range of prices was four to five points, and the net change for the day was trifling.

This is usually the case at this stage of the season, as operators show a disposition to hold off in making new commitments prior to the issuance of the important Government reports which will begin today with the census report on the ginning operations up to Dec. 1, and the estimate of the crop, which will be published at 12:15 P. M. on Thursday.

The actual cotton situation, however, shows a further improvement. Yesterday's exports approximated 80,000 bales, which constitutes a record for the present season. Clearances were reported from most of the important Southern ports and shipments went to Great Britain, France, and to Continental countries.

There was considerable interest on the floor in the announcement from Chicago that the American Express Company had established a "farm-to-home service." Through its 10,000 agents the company will attempt to bring producers and consumers more closely together. It is believed that this policy will result in promoting diversification of crops, particularly throughout the South. Constructive work of this character, with a practical purpose in view, it is thought, will tend to interest the one-crop-cotton grower in the raising of commodities whose production has been limited entirely to quantities suited to home consumption.

Exports of Egyptian cotton in 1913 were valued at $130,000,000, of which $56,000,000, or 43 per cent., represented exports to Great Britain and 20 per cent. exports to countries which are neutral in the present war.

According to gossip on the floor, the heavy buying of the distant positions last week is believed to have been chiefly for domestic trade account rather than for German interests, as originally reported. According to one of the local market news agencies, there is a tendency to attribute the purchases to Southern mills, which are said to find it difficult to secure spots for forward delivery in quantities, and are buying futures for protection.

Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were:

The local market for spot cotton was quiet and unchanged, with 7.50 for middling upland; sales, 4,000 bales.

The range of contract prices was as follows:

WANTS EXCHANGE INQUIRY.

Congressman Tribble Asks for Investigation of Local Board.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Congressional investigation of the New York Cotton Exchange and its method of dealing with the present cotton situation was asked in a resolution today by Representative Tribble of Georgia.

Representative Tribble explained his resolution in a statement:

"When the Cotton Exchange opened the price of cotton was exceedingly low, and yet the New York Cotton Exchange hammered down the price 1 cent per pound almost immediately. This was a fair test of the methods of the Exchanges. The Exchange was closed and opened on a low market, and yet the opening of the Exchange cost the farmers of the South millions of dollars. If I secure an investigation and the facts can be brought out this investigation will, in all probability, bring about the prosecution of those guilty of fleecing the farmers of their well-earned profits and may result in the total abolishment of the Exchanges."

The resolution was referred to the Rules Committee.

Blanks for Cotton Loan Subscriptions

The Cotton Loan Committee is sending out blanks for the formal subscriptions to the $100,000,000 fund promised by banks and bankers in the North and West, out of which loans are to be made by Southern banks upon their paying into the pool 25 per cent. of the amount to be taken out.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The action of the wheat market yesterday was disappointing to the bulls, as, after advancing ⅝ to ¾c during the forenoon, prices broke sharply toward the close, and final quotations were ⅛ to ½c net lower. Underlying sentiment was bullish on the belief that the visible supply will be heavily drawn upon by large sales to Europe, and the weekly figures showed a decrease of 1,712,000 bushels in stocks in the United States, while the total American visible decreased 2,683,000. Receipts at interior points were 840,000 bushels less than for the corresponding day last week. In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1.25¼ and No. 2 hard, $1.26¼, all rail, cost, insurance, and freight, track for export; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.28⅛, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.31, cost, insurance, and freight, Buffalo to arrive.

CORN.

The corn market was firm early, prices advancing ½c owing to the general rains over the country, which were expected to interrupt the movement, and on firmness in Europe, but late in the day values declined and at the close were at the lowest point of the session, with net losses of ¼c to ⅜c. Receipts were quite liberal at interior points, and the visible supply increased 2,771,000 bushels, bringing the total to 6,153,000, compared with 2,352,000 a year ago. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 73½c, cost, insurance, and freight, to arrive, and prime Argentine at 73c, nominal, delivered.

OATS.

The oats market was moderately active and prices were influenced largely by the action of wheat and corn, the close being ⅜c net lower. The visible supply decreased 1,008,000, compared with a decrease of 761,000 last year. The local spot market was steady; standard quoted at 53½c; No. 2 white, 54c; No. 3 white, 53c; No. 4 white, 52½c; fancy clipped white, 55c to 56c; ordinary clipped white, 53@54c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was inactive, with comparatively small price changes, although the undertone was rather heavy, owing to continued liberal receipts of hogs at Western points and lower prices at the yards. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 40,000 head; estimated for Tuesday, 48,000 head; Kansas City received 6,000 head and Omaha, 4,200 head.

COFFEE.

The coffee market developed unexpected strength during yesterday's operations, and at the close values were 36 to 41 points net higher. The volume of business was larger, total sales aggregating 28,000 bags for the day, and throughout the session the buying was better than the selling. The world's visible supply of coffee, using foreign private estimates for the European stocks, decreased 158,624 bags during November, compared with an increase of 478,945 last year.

The local spot market was firm and higher for Rio grades, which were quoted on the basis of 6¾c for Rio 7s.

PLAN NEW THEATRES NEAR TIMES SQUARE

Auditorium to Seat 4,000 to be in One of Two Houses in Forty-eighth Street.

WILL ALTER THE VICTORIA

Hammerstein to Remodel Music Hall and Put Office Building Over It.

At least two new theatres are proposed for the Times Square district notwithstanding the complaint of theatrical managers that there are already too many show houses in New York. According to plans filed by Thomas W. Lamb, the architect, yesterday, with Building Supt. Ludwig, one of the theatres, which is to be erected in Broadway, near Forty-eighth Street, will be built in conjunction with a modern twenty-story office building.

In addition it was said last night that other moving-picture operators were preparing to build an enormous theatre, with a seating capacity of 4,000, in the same block. Oscar Hammerstein also announced that his Victoria Theatre in Forty-second Street would soon be altered extensively, and that an office building and stores would be erected on part of the site.

The building in Forty-eighth Street is the only one for which drawings have been made. Lewis C. Van Riper of Chicago, who is interested in moving picture theatres and who has been transforming a large garage in Broadway, near Seventy-seventh Street, into a picture house, is back of the plan. Mr. Van Riper left Chicago for New York last night.

The site of the Van Riper project is on the west side of Broadway, ninety feet north of Forty-eighth Street. The plot has a frontage of thirty feet on Broadway, and extends back 100 feet, where it joins with a plot facing in Forty-eighth Street, which has a frontage of 119 feet.

The plans for the building, which call for a modern steel and concrete structure, show a twenty-story building in Broadway and a two-story structure in Forty-eighth Street. The theatre is to be in the Forty-eighth Street L, with the main entrance through the Broadway building. The theatre will be almost directly opposite Harry Frazee's Longacre Theatre.

Leonard L. Hill, who is one of the owners of the Broadway property, when questioned about the proposed building last night, asked the newspaper men if they were joking with him. "The only information I can give," said Mr. Hill, "is to refer to J. B. English, the real estate broker, of 1531 Broadway. He knows more about the building than I do."

Mr. English said that the filing of the plans yesterday came as a surprise to him, although he knew that they had been drawn. "I know very little about the matter," Mr. English asserted, "except that I got an option on the lease of the property as a broker from the owners for Mr. Van Riper, who is a Chicago man and is interested, I believe, in moving-picture theatres. He put up much money for the options, which hold the property until Jan. 1. Further than that I know nothing about it."

The other theatre which, it is said, is being considered for the same Broadway block has not been designed yet. But men with interests in the Times Square district said last night that they understood Western capitalists were deeply interested in the matter, and expected to build a large theatre to compete with the Strand, which has been remarkably successful as a picture house.

Oscar Hammerstein will begin to remodel the Victoria on April 1.

NO STATE RECEIVER.

Court Denies Application of Rock Island Bondholder.

Supreme Court Justice Pendleton yesterday denied the application of Horace L. Brand for the appointment of a receiver of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad. Mr. Brand is a bondholder of the company, and his application was based on the statement that the appointment of a receiver by the Federal Court had left the bondholders unprotected, and he wanted the State courts to act in their interest. Justice Pendleton held that the bondholders were sufficiently protected by a trustee who was acting in their interest, and said that some of the bondholders had denied several of the allegations made in Mr. Brand's application.

The court said that the relief sought would probably be granted through the final settlement of the suit. Mr. Brand lives in Chicago and owns $15,000 worth of the $71,000,000 bond issue. When interest was not paid he got a judgment for $300 in the City Court, and the money was sent to him before the matter could be carried to the Supreme Court. Roger Foster, Mr. Brand's attorney, said there was danger of the assets of the company being sold under foreclosure while Stock Exchange trading is limited, but Justice Pendleton said that the bondholders are in as good a position to intervene in the Federal suit as any receiver would be.

WON'T ORDER BANK PAYMENT

Court Refuses to Interfere with Settlement of Private Concerns.

Judge Hough denied yesterday in the Federal District Court the application for an order providing that dividends should be paid to the depositors of M. & L. Jarmulowsky and Adolf Mandel, private bankers. In doing so the court said that the applications seemed to him to be "of a well-meaning kind," but expressed the view that they would serve no useful purpose.

"It is impossible to imagine," Judge Hough said, "that the court would put any compulsion upon the Superintendent of Banks to pay a dividend against the Superintendent's own good judgment."

As soon as Supt. Richards considered that a dividend would be advisable, the court would do everything in its power to expedite it, but he would do nothing whatever to force his hand.

Supt. Richards, as temporary receiver for Adolf Mandel, asked the court yesterday to direct the Aetna Accident and Liability Company to pay to him $100,000, which was, it was alleged, due on a surety bond executed by Mandel and the Aetna Indemnity Company and delivered to the State Controller on Aug. 30 to guarantee the bankrupt's solvency.

An examination of Mandel's effects showed, said Mr. Richards, that the approximate liabilities were $2,932,000, and the assets $1,873,000. The bankrupt had about 14,000 depositors, whose claims amounted to $2,005,000. Judge Hough sent the application to a referee.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

A New Theatre and Twenty-Story Office Building Planned for Times Square—Washington Heights Apartment Traded for East Side Tenement Property—Bronx and Suburban Sales.

With the exception of a trade involving a Washington Heights apartment house and several scattering sales in Manhattan and the Bronx, the realty market produced few transactions of general importance yesterday.

A large deal in the Grand Central Station zone is reported to be pending and plans were filed for a two and a twenty-story theatre, office and store building to be erected on the west side of Broadway, 93 feet north of Forty-eighth Street. The plot has a frontage of 30.4 on Broadway, where the twenty-story office building will be built, and 119 feet by irregular on Forty-eighth Street, where the theatre will be built.

The Washington Heights trade involved 2,153 and 2,155 Amsterdam Avenue, a six-story apartment house on a plot 50 by 100, located 122 feet south of 167th Street, which was sold by Meyer Vesell.

In part payment the Benson Construction Company, of which Louis Norman is President, gave the six-story new law tenement occupying a plot 40 by 75 on the northeast corner of Rivington and Essex Streets.

Builders Buy Bronx Corner.

As a site for a new apartment house the Cosenzo Building Company has purchased from H. Globe and L. Gerger the vacant plot 75 by 86 feet on the northwest corner of 187th Street and Crotona Avenue.

The same company recently purchased the southeast corner of 187th Street and Crotona Avenue from the Spies estate and improved it with five-story apartment houses. Charles M. Villone negotiated the sale.

Bronx Borough.

The Mott Avenue Holding Company has increased its holdings on the west side of Vyse Avenue by purchasing from William McVeigh a vacant plot 50 by 125, giving the buyers a plot 150 by 144, which will be improved with five-story apartment houses. A. J. Madden was the broker.

The five-story apartment house on the north side of 182d Street, 321 feet east of Crotona Avenue, a plot 50 by 100, has been sold to an investor by Smith & Phelps.

New Bronx Apartments.

The Eifel Construction Company has commissioned Maximilian Zyphes to draw plans for a five-story and basement apartment house to be erected at the southwest corner of Marmion Avenue and 178th Street at a cost of $50,000. The apartments will be of the most modern type of construction and will contain all improvements.

Staten Island.

Harold E. Wittemann has sold his residence at the corner of Seneca Avenue and Niagara Street, Clovena Park, to an investor for occupancy.

Westchester County.

R. C. Coleman has purchased a plot on the corner of Walworth and Greenacres Avenue from the Scarsdale Estates, on which he will erect a residence to cost $12,000. The same company has also sold a plot on Walworth Avenue to Dr. Ralph R. Ryan, adjoining the residence recently constructed by him.

Kenneth Ives & Co. have sold for Jerome Bradley, to Sarah E. Russell for occupancy, the house and one-half acre in Ogden Park, Dobbs Ferry. The same brokers have placed a mortgage of $12,000 for Ferdinand N. Sheppard, covering the new one-story department store at 369-371 South Broadway, Yonkers.

Berkshire Farm Sold.

The stock and dairy farm known as Highland Farm at Litchfield, Conn., has been sold by Harry C. Shaw to a New York City investor. John Crawford was the broker. The property contains about 600 acres with a ten-room house and outbuildings. It was valued at over $50,000.

Commercial Leases.

Sidney L. Warsawer has leased the four-story loft at 218 West Thirty-seventh Street to the Greene Motor Trucking Company; also the store at 356 West Forty-second Street, to John Blankenhorn.

The World Film Corporation, which occupies the third floor in the Leavitt Building, 126 to 132 West Forty-sixth Street, has leased in the same building from the Leavitt Realty Company the store, basement, and mezzanine floors.

Pease & Elliman have leased for the Misses Cockcroft, the two-story, 20 by 100 foot, building, at 30 East Thirty-second Street, just east of Madison Avenue, to the furniture firm of Amos S. Hill. The lease is for a term of years. Hill & Co. will alter the building for their own use.

Nelson, Lee & Green and Cross & Brown leased, for the Mitchell H. Mark Realty Corporation, in the Strand Theatre, to Le Bihan, umbrellas, the store directly south of the lobby, its rental completing the renting of the Broadway frontage.

Porter & Co. have leased, for Theodore Kauffeld, to the Morningside Athletic Club, the three-story, brownstone dwelling, located at 107 West 130th Street.

Weil & Stern have leased for Leonard J. Carpenter the store and basement, in 24 and 26 Waverley Place, to Morse Brothers & Ehrlich, and for Michael Coleman the store at 34 West Twenty-fourth Street, to Eisenstark & Plesser.

The 1914 Building Record.

Building permits issued in New York City this year will be about $150,000,000, says The American Contractor. At the same average throughout the country the total building of the country would amount to about $3,000,000,000.

The building permits in Chicago for the year will reach about $90,000,000. On that basis the total for the country would be $4,500,000,000.

The active work in Philadelphia in 1914 will total somewhere near $40,000,000. At a corresponding rate the building for the entire country would reach close to $3,000,000,000.

Taxpayers' Meetings.

The annual meeting of the Allied Real Estate Interests of the City of New York will be held in the rooms of the Board of Trade and Transportation, 203 Broadway, on Thursday, Dec. 10, at 3:30 P. M.

The Harlem Property Owners' Association will meet Thursday evening at 147 East 125th Street. Reports of the markets and other committees will be made.

The Greater New York Taxpayers Association will hold its first entertainment and ball, at Palm Garden, on Dec. 24, Christmas Eve.

The Executive Committee of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York will hold an important meeting at Utica, N. Y., next Saturday.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the Southern District of New York.—JOHN C. EAMES, Complainant, against THE H. B. CLAFLIN COMPANY, Defendant.—In Equity.

To all creditors of or claimants against The H. B. Claflin Company:

Take notice that by order of the above entitled court, duly made and filed herein, on the 27th day of November, 1914, it was Ordered

"1. That any and all creditors of or claimants against The H. B. Claflin Company, who claim that The H. B. Claflin Company is indebted to them or that they possess a cause of action against it, and all other persons whomsoever who assert any claim against it, are hereby required to assert their said claims on or before the 28th day of December, 1914, and on or before said day present and file duly verified written statements or proofs of their claims against The H. B. Claflin Company and its estate with Joseph B. Martindale and Frederic A. Juilliard, as Receivers of The H. B. Claflin Company at their office, No. 224 Church Street in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County and State of New York.

2. That no creditor of and no claimant against The H B. Claflin Company who claims The H. B. Claflin Company is indebted to him, or that he possesses a cause of action against it, and no person whosoever who asserts any claim against it, who fails to file a statement or proof of claim on or before the said 28th day of December, 1914, as hereinabove directed shall thereafter be permitted to assert any claim whatsoever against the estate of The H. B. Claflin Company in the hands of said receivers or to share in any distribution thereof whatsoever."

JOSEPH B. MARTINDALE and FREDERIC A. JUILLIARD, Receivers of The H. B. Claflin Company, 224 Church Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

Live at Edgehill Terraces (or directly adjoining it)

WHY?

Because the healthful quietude is a TONIC after a hard day in the Counting House, the Schoolroom, or the business office.

Because this quietude, plus the natural scenic beauties, is inspiration for the thinker—the idealist and business man.

Because a home at Edgehill Terraces adds to social prestige.

From an economic standpoint, your dollar invested here next Saturday will mean a Tenfold Profit as New York continues to grow northward.

BATTLE REPORTED IN MEXICO CITY

Carranza Bureau Hears There Is Street Fighting Between Villa and Zapata Forces.

HAD AGREED ON HARMONY

Delayed Dispatches Tell of Amicable Conference Held by Chiefs—Naco Shooting Near Crisis.

Information that a battle between the forces of Zapata and Villa was raging in the streets of Mexico City, was cabled to the Mexican Bureau of Information, a Carranza organization, in the Whitehall Building, yesterday. The cablegram came from Modesto C. Rolland, the Minister of Communications, in Carranza's Cabinet at Vera Cruz, and as given out by the bureau read:

> VERA CRUZ, Dec. 7.—A battle between the Villa and Zapata forces is raging in the streets of Mexico City. The battle started after the Villa and Zapata representatives failed to come to an agreement. Zapata left the capital while the fight was in progress. Incendiary proclamations calling each other traitors have been issued by both Villa and Zapata.
>
> Near San Martin the Constitutionalist forces under Gen. Cesario Castro met and defeated the Zapata forces, killing or wounding 1,200 men. Gen Castro captured nine machine guns, 1,200 rifles, and 47,000 rounds of ammunition.
>
> Gen. M. Herrera, who deserted Villa, has made sensational charges against him and against his advisers. He charges that Villa has allied himself with the enemies of the Mexican people. Gen. Herrera has arrived here to confer with First Chief Carranza as to his campaign in the north.
>
> ROLLAND.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 4, (via El Paso, Texas, Dec. 7).—Gens. Villa and Zapata met today at Hochimilco and after a conference announced publicly that they would work together and that each would retire to private life when his work was accomplished.

George C. Carothers, special representative of the Washington State Department attached to Gen. Villa's headquarters, and several of Villa's officers previously had conferred with Zapata in an effort to persuade him to come to the capital. A serious hitch evidently had occurred. Zapata was organizing his forces at Cuernavaca, where the Villa delegation met him.

After the conference today Gen. Villa said that his forces would begin immediately a vigorous campaign against Carranza. The forces of Villa and Zapata will enter Mexico City tomorrow (Saturday).

Leon Canova, representing the United States, attended the conference, and an official statement by the two leaders was given to him.

Gen. Villa requested the newspaper men present to say that he congratulated Gen. Scott on his appointment as Chief of Staff of the United States Army. He said: "Gen. Scott is a great soldier, and is my warm friend."

An active campaign will begin within a week by both the Villa and Zapata forces, according to the statement of a high official of the present Government. The plan calls for the sending of four strong columns to attack the followers of Carranza. The first expedition will consist of 18,000 men, who will leave within the week, their objective point being Vera Cruz. In the with this plan Villa today took over the railway of an English corporation running between the capital and Vera Cruz.

The second column of 15,000 men soon afterward will be sent toward Guadalajara, their ultimate destination being the west coast. Another will be sent to Tampico and the fourth to Saltillo. The South will be taken care of by the Zapata troops, who already are besieging the city of Puebla.

The civil and military convention will meet next week in the capital to approve these plans and to appoint new provisional officials. It is reported that a new Provisional President will be selected on this occasion.

LOOK INTO SALAZAR'S ESCAPE.

Fomenter of New Revolution Got Away from New Mexican Authorities

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Officials of the Department of Justice are investigating conditions under which Gen. Inez Salazar, who has proclaimed a new revolution in Mexico, recently escaped from an American prison.

Salazar, who crossed the border with other refugees of Huerta's army after Gen. Villa's occupation of Ojinaga, was held on a charge of murdering Thomas Fountain, an American gunner, captured as a prisoner of war while fighting for the Madero Government. Two weeks ago the civil authorities of New Mexico asked for Salazar to try him on a charge of perjury. The army sent an armed guard to Albuquerque, N. M., and there turned him over to the State authorities. While in the charge of the latter he escaped and promptly crossed into Mexico, where he has been active since in organizing a new revolution.

EL PASO, Texas, Dec. 7.—Gen. Ornelas, the Villa commander at Juarez, announced today that a strong force of Villa soldiers soon would be sent against the troops of Gen. José Ynez Salazar, the former Federal leader who has started a new revolution in Central Chihuahua.

NACO BAFFLES GOVERNMENT.

Can't Stop Bullets Without Invading Mexico—Garrison Makes That Clear

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The persistence with which Mexican bullets are flying across the international boundary line into American territory at Naco, Ariz., killing or wounding American soldiers and civilians, has caused Gov. George W. Hunt of Arizona to send an urgent appeal to Secretary Bryan to take action for the protection of citizens on the American side.

There is no way in which the American Government can meet the crisis on the border except by sending troops into Mexico. Secretary of War Garrison today made this plain to Secretary Bryan.

When Mr. Bryan received Gov. Hunt's message he replied that the matter had been referred to the War Department. Secretary Bryan's message to Gov. Hunt was not made public here, but a dispatch from Phoenix, Ariz., said that a message from Mr. Bryan to the Governor read:

"I am assured the military authorities will be instructed to afford all possible protection to American citizens near the border."

An announcement by the War Department today said:

"From a report received on Sunday from Gen. Bliss, it is learned that the casualties on Saturday in Naco, Arizona, by Mexican bullets were as follows:

"Miguel Ramos, male, Mexican, 24 years old, chest wound, not serious.

"D. T. Lane, male, American, 40 years, hit in leg while in Post Office, not serious.

"Government horses struck today, one in hoof, one in jaw, and bullet extracted from a third, not known when received."

TALE OF CARRANZA'S ARREST.

Held for Taking Funds from Vera Cruz Customs House, Villistas Say.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, Dec. 7.—A telegram was received at the commander's quarters in Juarez tonight saying that Venustiano Carranza, First Chief of the Constitutionalists, had been placed under arrest by Gens. Blanco and Gonzales in Vera Cruz on the charge of taking a large sum of money from the Custom House without authority.

The money is said to have been sent to the border by the First Chief.

BANDITS ROB AMERICANS.

Expelled from Ranch in Mexico—Government Bringing Them Home.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Six Americans were robbed recently in the region south of Vera Cruz, at which port they have just arrived after some hardship, according to advices received by the State Department today from Consul Canada, at Vera Cruz. He said the crime was committed by fifteen bandits, who expelled the Americans from their ranch, 144 miles south of Vera Cruz The Americans were aided in reaching Vera Cruz by some Constitutionalists.

Mr. Bryan said he had given instructions to Consul Canada to assist the Americans in coming home, and to bring the case to the attention of the Mexican authorities.

ENGLAND WANTS GUARANTEES.

Recognition of Villa Government Only After Grievances Are Redressed

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The British Government's advices show Mexico City to be quiet, much quieter, in fact, than officials had expected.

The course which England will follow has not been considered yet, but there is no doubt whatever that England will refuse to recognize Villa until satisfaction has been obtained for various grievances, while the recognition of any new Government in Mexico will follow only after guarantees of payment of the British claims for losses of life and property.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Secretary Bryan took occasion today to deny reports that Great Britain was about to reopen the Benton case. The Secretary said he had been assured by Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, within the last few days that the British Government had taken no new action in the matter.

NUNS FLEE BEFORE FIRE.

Dominicans Vacate Williamsburg Convent While Factories Burn.

Twenty-five Dominican nuns were driven from their convent, a three-story frame building in Throop Avenue near Broadway, Williamsburg, next to the Church of All Saints, at 11 o'clock last night, by fire which started in the hat factory of Albert Weiner at 690-692 Broadway.

The blaze spread quickly to 688 Broadway, occupied by the Rival Shoe Company, and to 694-696, used as a factory by John Uzman & Sons, shoe makers.

The firemen responded to three alarms and confined the blaze to these buildings, but Mons. George Kaupert, rector of the church, aroused the nuns, and they filed into the chapel, where they remained in prayer while the firemen worked.

Edward Smith of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company worked for half an hour with a pulmotor over Fireman Edward J. Hartten of Truck 104, overcome by smoke before he resuscitated him. Then he was taken to St. Catherine's Hospital.

The Rival Shoe Company and Weiner were burned out and Uzman's plant was badly damaged.

WOMAN BURNS IN OIL FIRE.

Found Writhing in Hallway After Explosion Blows Out Window.

The report of an explosion and the falling out of a window on the top floor of the five-story apartment house at 49 Seventh Avenue at Fourteenth Street, brought several policemen running early today. They ran through the halls, arousing the seventy-five tenants, and found Mrs. Theresa Dugan on the top floor, her clothing afire. She had rolled about the hall until she had set the carpet and curtains ablaze also.

Firemen from Truck 12 helped the tenants down the stairs and Mrs. Dugan was sent to St. Vincent's Hospital. She was terribly burned and will probably die. She is a widow, 55 years old.

She could not tell how the fire started, but it is believed that an oil stove she had in her room exploded.

HELD FOR AN AUTO KILLING.

Chauffeur Who Ran Over Miss Foote and His Brother Arrested.

George L. Kern, chauffeur for Mrs. Nellie S. Conrad of 1,277 Madison Avenue and his brother, Gottfried, were arrested early today in their home, 36 Franklin Avenue, Maspeth, L. I., for running over with their automobile and killing Miss Eliza C. Foote of the Martha Washington Hotel at Seventh Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street Sunday night. The automobile was found abandoned yesterday in Woodside, L. I., and was traced by its license number.

Kern and his brother, the police say, admitted that the chauffeur had the car out without the knoweldge of Mrs. Conrad and had fled consequently after the accident.

CATHEDRAL CONSECRATION.

Bishop Hulse First to be Invested in St. John the Divine.

The first consecration of a Bishop in the new Cathedral of St. John the Divine was set yesterday for Tuesday, Jan. 12. The missionary priest to be consecrated is the Rev. Hiram R. Hulse, Archdeacon of Orange, at one time with Bishop Potter in the old Pro-Cathedral in Stanton Street, and later rector of St. Mary's, in upper Harlem. He will go to Cuba, there to succeed Bishop A. W. Knight, who resigned to become Vice Chancellor of the University of the South.

Bishop Greer is to be the consecrator, and he will be assisted by Bishop Lines of Newark and Bishop Knight.

To Discuss "Is Shaw an Immortal?"

Through the courtesy of Mmes. John Berwind, August Belmont, George Etheridge, James A. Wright, and Philip M. Lydig, a morning talk will be given to the Colony Club on Friday by the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant. The topic will be: "Is George Bernard Shaw an Immortal?" The beneficiary will be the Manassas School for Colored Youths, among the Blue Mountains of Virginia.

Health Journals Consolidate.

The Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette, which is just completing its thirtieth year, has been purchased by The Critic and Guide Company, and beginning with January will be consolidated with The Critic and Guide. The combined journals will be under the editorship of Dr. William J. Robinson. The offices of publication are at 12 Mount Morris Park West.

BAFF CASE UNSOLVED, POLICE DEPUTY QUITS

Woods Denies McClintock Resigned Because of Delay in Clearing Up Murder.

100 CLUES TO RUN DOWN

Detectives Watch 100 Persons Also Suspected of Knowing About Poultryman's Death.

Barnet Baff was killed by gunmen in the West Washington Market two weeks ago today, and this morning the police had made no arrest for the murder. They said yesterday that they had made progress in the case, which meant that more false clues had been eliminated and the two or three clues that still seemed worth while had become more promising, but, as far as could be learned, the work of the detectives had developed only expectations.

Some of those working on the case think that these expectations will be completely realized. They say that the Baff case was one of the most difficult murder cases that had ever confronted the police, and that it could not be cleared up suddenly.

"There are 100 clues to be investigated," one detective said yesterday, "and 100 suspicious persons to be watched. Every day we get a new clue or hear of a new person, and attention must be given to all of them. In almost every case the information that comes to us is useless, but we have to prove it so before we throw it away. Thus a lot of apparently fruitless work is done, and it seems that a great deal of energy is wasted, but we are getting everything unessential out of the way, and sooner or later we are sure to get all of the real facts together. Then we will be able to wind up our case in a short time."

Watch Supposed Ringleader.

It was said at Police Headquarters that suspicion still rested on one automobile as the murder car and one man as the leader of the gang responsible for the actual shooting of Baff. This suspicion, it was said, in the minds of some amounted to a moral certainty, but it was explained that the man in question had not been arrested because the police would not have sufficient legal evidence to hold him in jail if they put him there.

The resignation of First Deputy Police Commissioner John McClintock was announced at Headquarters yesterday, and it was at first reported that his retirement from the department had in some way resulted from police activities since the Baff murder, but this was denied by Commissioner Woods. The Commissioner said that Mr. McClintock had resigned because he wanted to go into business and that he had determined upon his resignation before Baff was killed. Mr. McClintock's resignation had been accepted, he said, to take effect Dec. 15. As the First Deputy Commissioner has received a leave of absence until that date, to all intents and purposes he is out of the department now.

The report that Mr. McClintock had resigned because he wanted to enter the police service in the Canal Zone could not be affirmed, because Commissioner Woods said he knew nothing of this, and Mr. McClintock, it was said, left for the South day before yesterday. Mr. McClintock was appointed to his office by Police Commissioner McKay last February. He is a retired Captain of the United States Army, having seen service in the Philippines, and he was at one time Collector of Internal Revenue at Luzon.

Shift in Deputy Commissioners.

Leon G. Godley, the present Third Deputy Police Commissioner, will be appointed Second Deputy Commissioner at once, Commissioner Woods said, and will be made First Deputy when Mr. McClintock's resignation takes effect on Dec. 15, but he will not do the usual work of either office he is to fill. As Third Deputy he is stationed in the Brooklyn Headquarters, in charge of the policing of that borough, and he also has supervision of the trials of policemen. He will continue in his present duties while First Deputy Commissioner.

Commissioner Woods said that he would appoint Lawrence B. Dunham to succeed Mr. Godley as Third Deputy Commissioner. He is now Deputy Commissioner of the Department of Bridges, having been appointed to that position by Bridge Commissioner Kracke last January. His duties will be in Manhattan, as Mr. Godley, when First Deputy, will remain in Brooklyn.

Mr. Dunham was highly recommended for his new place by ex-Police Commissioner Bingham. He is a lawyer and graduate of Yale University. His home is at 30 West Forty-fourth Street. Bridge Commissioner Kracke said that he would appoint Joseph J. Holwell, at present Secretary to the Department of Bridges, to succeed Mr. Dunham as Deputy Bridge Commissioner. Ernest J. Cuozzo, General Inspector in the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, would fill Mr. Holwell's place as Secretary to the Department of Bridges, Commissioner Kracke said.

The report has been heard around Headquarters that the Commissioner really wants to appoint his secretary, Guy Scull, to the Second Deputy Commissionership, but that Mayor Mitchel has not given his consent to the appointment. This is the reason, it is said, that the post has been left vacant. When questioned on this point Commissioner Woods denied that any difference of opinion over the office had arisen between himself and the Mayor, and when he was asked if he did not desire to appoint Mr. Scull he said he had decided upon no one.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Through an error of the composing room of The New York Times in the Hearn advertisement in Sunday's Times, (December 6th,) price of Finest Axminsters—8.3x10.6 ft.—was made to read, val. $19.98—1.98.

Correct advertisement should have been:

FINEST AXMINSTERS— 8.3x10.6 ft. — Oriental, florals and medallions— val. $19.98 .... } 15.98

This mechanical error is extremely regretted.

Said His Friends:

That's some Velour you've got, Fred. Imported? No? The quality looks imported, but the style is too distinctively New York for an imported hat. Where did you get it? Truly Warner's. Well, I might have thought so. That's the one place to go if you want a hat—a really smart, unusual hat.

I'm going to get one of those Velours.
